FAREWELL LETTER FROM THE MANAGING EDITOR

Dear Eleutheria Readership,

"Love the Lord you God with all your heart, soul, mind, and strength."

When Chad, Ronnie, Lee, and myself began our work almost three years ago to create Eleutheria, we did so with the desire to glorify God in our doing. This third issue of Eleutheria is the continued fruit of the labor of not only the board, but of Christ-followers in apartments, libraries, cafes, and offices who submitted manuscripts. I do believe God is glorified in all of it, and I do believe that Eleutheria will continue to play a vital role in the maturation of the minds and hearts of future pastors and professors throughout the world.

I would like to thank the Faculty Advisory Board for their work and counsel throughout this and previous issues, and I would like to thank Chad, Ronnie, and Lee for their constant work and diligence throughout. It is on the minds of these men that the work is done.

Eleutheria is a project I believe in, and it is with ambivalence that I step out of the Managing Editor role as Chad Thornhill steps in. I have consummate confidence in Chad's ability and integrity to lead the Editorial Board and be led by the Faculty Advisory board, for Chad has proven himself academically, administratively, and personally. I will continue to be involved as a patron of the journal in my new context in New England, and I know that the journal will continue its strength and prominence under Chad's leadership. It has been an honor to serve with Lee, Ronnie, Chad, and the Faculty Advisory Board. It truly has been a blessed experience.

In Christ,
Joshua C. Stone
