Flames football practice begins

July 31, 2008

A season of “unfinished business” commenced July 31 as the Liberty University football team began training camp. The defending Big South Champions took the field for the first time since spring, practicing without pads. Recently, the Flames garnered their second consecutive nod as preseason conference favorites.

Leading up to the season opener against North Greenville on Aug. 30, all Flames practices are open to the public. For a complete practice schedule and news from training camp, click here.
