Liberty University's Research Week is March 29-31. It provides undergraduate and graduate students, residential and at a distance, the opportunity to present their research. The call for submissions closes on March 7. This is a great opportunity for students to showcase their research.

Submissions will be accepted from both residential and online students, and presenters will be able to give their presentations either in-person or remotely. Presentations will fall into the following four types:

- Physical Poster Presentation (Residential Students)
- Digital Poster Presentation (Online Students)
- Oral Presentation or Creative Work Presentation (Residential Students)
- Remote Oral Presentation (Online Students)

Visit http://digitalcommons.liberty.edu/research_week/ for more details and to submit a proposal by 3/7. Contact Josh Waltman at jcwaltman@liberty.edu or (434) 592-6830 with any questions.
