
March/April 2010

2010

3-2010

Seminary forges partnership with Kenya university

Liberty University

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.liberty.edu/lj_2010_mar

Recommended Citation

Liberty University, "Seminary forges partnership with Kenya university" (2010). March/April 2010. 4.
https://digitalcommons.liberty.edu/lj_2010_mar/4

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the 2010 at Scholars Crossing. It has been accepted for inclusion in March/April 2010 by an authorized administrator of Scholars Crossing. For more information, please contact scholarlycommunications@liberty.edu.

Seminary forges partnership with Kenya university

April 12, 2010

Liberty Baptist Theological Seminary has forged its first international partnership. On Nov. 20, seminary president Ergun Caner visited Kenya to sign a memorandum of understanding with Kabarak University that will provide unique opportunities to students of both schools.

“It enables our faculty to teach there, and their students to enroll in Liberty University Online’s Master of Arts in Theological Studies,” Caner said.

LU students will also have the opportunity to study at Kabarak for a semester or for a shorter intensive course while working toward their LUO or residential degree.

Kabarak lies a mere 10 miles south of the equator in the town of Nakuru. The country’s second president, Daniel

T. Moi, founded the school in 2000 to provide Kenyan students with an academically excellent and biblically sound college education.

The partnership between Kabarak and LU started at the suggestion of Dr. Jones Kaleli, an associate professor of intercultural studies at LU. Kaleli is a native of Kenya.

Dr. Ergun Caner, president of Liberty Baptist Theological Seminary, signs an agreement with members of Karabuk University administration at the school’s commencement in November 2009.

