

From: Tim Adams via LinkedIn
To: Barry Thompson
Subject: RE: From Barry Thompson
Date: Tuesday, July 15, 2014 6:09:11 PM

Tim Adams

Experienced in 'Line of Sight' Strategies to assess organizations in improving performance and business outcomes.

Barry -

The Learning Behavior Model was my concept based on other models that have used the same framework. Though I developed it, wrote about it and promoted it when I was CLO for Knowledge Factor I still cite the Copyright for Knowledge Factor and have even cited in current presentation under Knowledge Factor and in Mind Learning and though I doubt they use it anymore and since I created it - yes you can use it! You can cite under permission of Tim Adams, co-founder and former CLO of Knowledge Factor.

I even use it in a new paper that I am developing on taking Bloom's Taxonomy to a new level of Mastery!

Give me a call if you want to discuss.

Tim

On 07/14/14 10:44 AM, Barry Thompson wrote:

Hi Tim

Long time no hear! I hope you are well. I have just completed my doctorate and wish to publish my dissertation but need approval to display the "Learning Behavior Model". I have correctly cited Bruno and others but do not know who "owns" this model and need to provide correct citing. Can you help me?

Thanks again

Reply to Tim

