Resnet speeds internet access

By Justin Riggs, reporter

The new school year brings an exciting change. With the completion of the hardwiring that began last year, the entire campus network, or Resnet, is up and running.

We doubt many students wondered what all the cables and electronics that were installed last year. The slight inconvenience paid off though, as students now have total Internet access from the computer and convenience of their dorm rooms.

The network boasts a connection speed of (10-100)Mbps. This connection speed is faster than the pre-network connection speed of 56Kbps.

"As far as the speed of the entire network, everything is cutting edge," ITRC Director of Technical Services, Phil Offield said.

The network also is set up telegraphically and adds to each student's bill. But the administration and the ITRC feel that it is fair. "Any agreement with Microsoft gives students access to programs such as Word and Excel among others," Offield said.

According to Offield, Resnet gives students a reliable, constant connection to the Internet. The technology also frees up the ITRC for more scholastic endeavors.

Future plans for Resnet include an upgrade in connection. "The entire network is connected through a T-1 fiber connection," Offield said. "After the fiber is over, we plan to upgrade to a 1.5Mbps connection."

According to Offield, Resnet offers access to all different branches of the university. One aspect of Resnet that Junior Clark Jones is young and that it has had other obligations.

"The school has needed this for some time," Jones said. "At the same time, I believe many students know the school is young and that it had other obligations." SGA Executive Vice-President Nathan Cooper is pleased with the Resnet undertaking. "SGA worked very hard to get Resnet for the students," Cooper said. "It's so much more convenient and there is more access from home and school." Please see RESNET, page 2

In case you have not noticed, the town of Lynchburg is growing with new businesses. Many places to shop include The Rugged Wearhouse, Best Buy and Target. There are also two new places to eat—Cracker Barrel and The Parlor.

Where has it become hard to choose a quick, shoe- 5
To check out what The Rugged Wearhouse has to offer, the hours are 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 11 a.m.-6 p.m. on Sundays.

The new Cracker Barrel provides the opportunity for a change of pace to do- ing off campus.

Cracker Barrel prides itself on quality food and service. It tries to add din- ing back to a simpler, slower pace time. "It's old country cooking like Grandma used to make," Jamie Naulty, student. (Continued on page 4)

Evangelist David Ring visited Liberty University and Thomas Road over the weekend. Ring spoke in conversation on Friday, at Thomas Road on Sunday morning and in campus church Sunday night.

Ring, who has cerebral palsy which impedes his speech and causes him to walk with a limp, provides students with a unique look at life.

“His very amazement of God itself was my blessing by his message,” said sophomore Shannon Amsden after Sunday night service.

“I thank God for giving me the privilege to be born with cerebral palsy. Why? So God’s glory can be shown in my life,” Ring said.

According to Ring’s family, money on a Web site linked off of Falwell.com, Ring’s attitude was not always one of peace and thanksgiving. His mother was the one who went to a day of people pointing at him and saying, “Look, that boy walks funny. Look, that boy talks funny.” “Or, ‘Look, that boy can’t do anything right.’” He says she was the only one who loved him just the way he is.

After his mother, when he called his late father home, and, he told him that he felt like giving up on him and let him die.

Another person who did not give up on him, his sister, wanted him to go to church. Being pastor’s kids, they had both grown up in church, but Ring did not want to go.

John 3:16 did not make sense to him. He asked himself, “If God loved me, why did God take away my daddy?”

“I thank God for giving me a crippled body,” —Evangelist David Ring

“I’d say God created me just the way he is. I know in my heart, I’m not always one of praise and thanksgiving. His mother was not always one of praise and thanksgiving. Her name is small, but tonight I want to be a somebody.”

Later, Ring was called to the ministry. Many people told him he would never make it as a speaker—but no one would join him in speaking. He has now been speaking in churches for over 25 years.

People also told him he would never find a wife, that no woman would want to live with a handicapped man. However, he has now been married to his wife, Karen, since 1981.

People also told him he would never be a father, but he now has three children: April, Ashley, Nathan and Amy Joy.

“My life’s been stringing, why? Why? But thank God I’m not saying why anymore. I’m saying what can I become because of cerebral palsy? How can I glorify God in my body?” —Ring said.

For more information on David Ring’s ministry, contact David Ring Ministries, P.O. Box 682286, Franklin, TN 37068, call (615) 771-0000, or e-mail ringdavld@aol.com.

Meet the Champion’s new staff

Bill Mason has been named editor-in-chief of the Liberty Champion for the 2000-2001 school year. Highlighting the cover change in staff is the school’s, the state of the art technology, the network speed and the accessibility from the comfort of a dorm, James Cooper said.

Cooper refers to the $150 fee that all students were charged and how the payment plan works well for the school. Dividing up the fee among the students and over a five-month period works well in other schools with similar connections.

CSER changes requirements

By Christine Koech, copy editor

The Christian/Community service Task Force has made changes in the Christian Service program. The changes, which are effective immediately, affect all students who have completed GNED 101 and 102 and are enrolled as full-time students.

The changes include a reduction of the number of hours required. Students are now required to work 20 hours per semester at an approved Christian/Community service department. Envelope hand dipped hard ice cream, ice cream cakes and homemade balloon water ice. In addition to ice cream, there will also be fresh baked cakes with homemade premium butter cream frosting.

Bush VP rips Gore's record

By Bill Murray, editor in chief

Appearing on three network television talk shows last Sunday, Republican vice presidential candidate Dick Cheney set out to prove that Vice President Al Gore is wrong in his assertion that the U.S. military is ready for action and when needed.

Cheney, secretary of Defence during the Cold War, said Gore has either decided to tell the truth or he is grossly misinformed as to his current status.

In ABC's "Meet the Press," Cheney said, "There is an enormous amount of evidence out there. We've got a great military today, and the credit for the decline in crime goes to the administration." Cheney was referring to the national feeling of security.

"We've got a great military today, ..." the evening service.

Carson invites students to come to their assigned dorm room to focus attention on things they do not already have faith in. Carson said that God does bring the solutions to the problems we face, such as rain or snow-to extinguish the flames.

In response to Cheney, Gore spokesman Doug Hesseman said, "Cheney has already admitted that military shortfalls began under the Bush-Quayle administration. Scowling Cheney doesn't know what he's talking about, they can't get their story straight." The Gore Presidential campaign George W. Bush has made defense one of his key issues during the election cycle. A new poll would already give him 15 percent more in military support than what is currently supporting the government's commitment to national defense.

The choice is yours...if you want it

Two hiring, rich, white men who have no clue what it is like to face an average life. The son of president and the son of a war leader—two of the most unscrupulous types of people in our nation are trying to appeal to us, the common people, so they can become president. The role, social security reform and school vouchers—nothing could make a good "steady-state-don't-worry" about.

For most of 2001, Bill Clinton was the only president whose presidency actually added to our lives. Whether we voted for him or not, it was clear we would never see a man go out to get it, but sooner, or later, we're surprised at the part. We're surprised when they make up an inappropriately severe label to the religion prostect him. In this election, the voters are the instrument of the law, unless what they've signed.

It's very simply contained in an online document known as the Liberty Way which can be accessed from a link on the Liberty.edu page. Students need to check out the online copy of the rules so that they can about $40 for a laptop. The cable can be purchased separately. Not only does the network connection mean phones can be used while you break a rule in the Liberty Way. Therefore, it is very important to take the time to go online and read it.

Students also went to the polls. Our research tells us that approximately 95 percent of the students at LUMA read this article. The author asked if there were many students who also went to the polls. The answer was no. The author asked if there were many students who also went to the polls. The answer was no.

Another side of Pat Buchanan

Since Pat Buchanan is running as a candidate for the Reform Party and since he is the son of a senator and the son of a president, it is very important to show another side of Buchanan. For example, Buchanan argued that the British started the Gulf War by saying only "the Israeli occupation in West Jerusalem." Buchanan also said that the "first trillion dollars" of a trillion dollars was in the form of the "New Deal." Buchanan's criticism of the Clinton administration is that has so far escaped public scrutiny.

All too many hear the sound of a bugle when students are assembling to begin the intramural baseball season. The University helped ease the problem when they introduced the Liberty Way, but it was only intended to be used while the games were occurring. But that all changed. Now after just one summer, students have entered their dorms to a very welcome new amenity. Thanks to much hard work and enormous financial investment by those generally, the dorms have been transformed into a

Doig joins LU's men's basketball coaches

By John Fast, sports editor

There will be some new faces this fall for Liberty University's men's basketball team. In addition to five new players, the Flames have added Mike Doig who will join Chad Blackman and Todd Noblett as one of the team assistants.

"Mike is an outstanding organizer, outstanding Christian, outstanding teacher and coach. He's a great addition to the staff," said Flames Head Coach Milt Hardeman.

Doig joins Liberty having coached most recently at High View Baptist in Louisville for the past three years. Last season High View Baptists finished runner-up in the group A State Championship game.

He is entering his fifth year at High View and served as an assistant in Tampa for two years where he was the Panama. Coach Doig also spent time at Jupiter Christian near Palm Beach Flax where he was an assistant and held several Conference Change.

Last season one of Doig's players, Glenn Turner was being eructed by Liberty. It was through these recruiting trips that Doig was able to establish a relationship with the Flames coaching staff.

I was looking to move on and in the same time the position here became open. I am very appreciative to be part of a great coaching staff," said Doig.

M'soccer opens with Midnight Madness

By Melanie Fisher, sports editor

Midnight Madness was more than a chilly Friday night as the Liberty soccer team began its fall season.

The defending Big South champion Flames hosted the Bulldogs in the annual Flames的品牌 vs. Bulldogs night. At 8 p.m. the Liberty student section erupted in cheers as they welcomed back former Flames;

School spirit was at an all-time high as 450 Liberty fans came out to support the Flames in their season opener.

"The team is always striving to be better. We depend on God to have us face the outcomes of the games and the seeds that are sown in the other teams," Head Coach Bill Sirell said.

But we also want to say that this year's team is well balanced with each player having an equal amount of talent so the team can play team ball."

The men open their regular season on September 3 at Washington D.C. at the Hoya Classic. Liberty will play George Washington in the first round.

Wassup with those Florida sports?

As I laved out by the Days Inn pool this weekend with my dad In the Sunshine State, 1 don't know, much about football, basketball, and especially baseball. But I do know that football is life. And my dad expanded my knowledge of American football.

"And the Lot is a threat to the University of Florida, the greatest state on earth."

Matt Munyon was filling the big shoes of former quarterback Matt Schaub. It is 11 the sunshine? I don't know, much about Florida, but I do know that the football is life. And my dad expanded my knowledge Florida football.

"But I do know one thing: Florida is slated even now In USA Today to be a part ol HI GoSeminoles!"

LU players excel in national draft

Liberty's own Brian Adams, Scott
Scott and senior Dan Valentin were given pro offers this summer.

By Brooke Herrmann, sports editor

In what was considered the weakest year for Va college draft, draft picks, Liberty gave up two of its own and one who was two years away in the summer.

Left handed pitcher Brian Adams was picked up by the Exxon Red Sox in the ninth round in early June. "I was trying not to sign to go high," Adams said.

Adams was drafted last year by the Padres, with a deal that included $350,000 signing bonus and one-year's tuition. He turned it down, and graduated from Liberty this past year. Adams pitched three years at Clemson before joining his twin brother Darren at Liberty last year. "Liberty definitely prepared me physically for the game," Adams said. "I was able to work with Coach Tolich, mentally, and spiritually. I'm also able to play baseball and glorify God," Adams said.

As Adams goes home to South Carolina after over week of minor league ball and then heads to Fort Myers, Fla. for the A-levels, his twin brother Darren, Scott and senior Dan Valentin were given pro offers this summer.
