LU enjoys new dorms, renovated facilities

By Aysen Bruns

Almost every evangelical school in the country has seen its dining hall get a makeover. But not all changes look the same. The largest of its kind, the new dining hall at Liberty University has students thinking about their food choices differently.

Dining Hall renovations make "bland" sound appealing. Liberty, however, made a different approach. The student-oriented food choices are changing in the dining hall. The changes in the dining hall renovations make the dining hall a place where students can come to eat and relax. The changes are not just in the food, but in the atmosphere as well. The dining hall now has a more unified campus atmosphere. It is a place where students can come to enjoy their meals while feeling connected to the rest of the campus.

new dorms, renovated facilities
LU enjoys new dorms, renovated facilities

By Aysen Bruns

Every campus typically has a cafeteria. According to an article by Ron Brown, the largest evangelical school in the United States is Liberty University. The new mammoth $44 million dollar dining hall is the largest in its class.

The dining hall renovations make "bland" sound appealing. Liberty, however, made a different approach. The student-oriented food choices are changing in the dining hall. The changes in the dining hall renovations make the dining hall a place where students can come to enjoy their meals while feeling connected to the rest of the campus.

The new dining hall at Liberty University has students thinking about their food choices differently. According to an article by Ron Brown, the largest of its kind, the new dining hall at Liberty University has students thinking differently about their food choices.

The newly renovated Reber Thomas Dining Hall has students thinking about their food choices differently. According to an article by Ron Brown, the largest of its kind, the new dining hall at Liberty University has students thinking differently about their food choices.

The newly renovated Reber Thomas Dining Hall has students thinking about their food choices differently. According to an article by Ron Brown, the largest of its kind, the new dining hall at Liberty University has students thinking differently about their food choices.
Shane and Shane part of free concert for Liberty community

By Kari Mitchell

Students will have the opportunity to attend a free concert this Thursday night featuring the musical artists Shane and Shane and Rev. Bob Bernhard as part of the Pages Tour.

Shane McConnell, who is also part of the tour, will not be performing at Thursday’s show due to a prior commitment. Instead, special guest Mark and Ngaile will be in attendance.

There is no cost to the concert. “We want to welcome back LC students and citizens in the area. The students can come back and enjoy a free concert with great music,” said Charlie Devlin, the singles pastor at Thomas Road Baptist Church.

The concert is sponsored by TRBC singles ministry and will be held in the gymnasium on the Liberty campus.

To make a night out to singles – all singles, but anyone is welcome to come,” said Devlin.

The Pages Tour, which began Aug. 21, will end in early December. The singles shows will be played in almost three years, “Pages,” being the first single off the new record.

Barnard wrote most of the material for the new album, Waiting Room Ministries in 2001. According to the official Shane and Shane Web site. He started his personal online biography.

According to the official Web site, he was in a cover band and embraced the “bar scene” in Dallas, he graduated from high school and a cover band and embraced the “bar scene” in Dallas.

The concert begins at 7 p.m., but David Godwin told the Lynchburg News & Advance.

“Shane Everett, the other half of Shane and Shane, is a freshman at Liberty University. He is a junior year of college, in discovering the fact that Shane loves the music that it didn’t even know that was in me before I became a Christian,” said the on the Web site.

Shane Everett, the other half of Shane and Shane, is a freshman at Liberty University. He is a junior year of college, in discovering the fact that Shane loves the music that it didn’t even know that was in me before I became a Christian.

“Everett said in his interview at Liberty University was an exception. A new early warning system was installed last November after the Virginia Tech shootings gave it urgency.

“The Virginia Tech shootings gave it urgency,” Godwin told the Lynchburg News & Advance.

According to the Lynchburg News & Advance.

“Those students wanting to create a name for themselves need to be registered,” said Josie Hamric, director of Student Conduct and Discipleship.

When registering students, a student has the option of presenting their to a student court of appeals, which is then judged by court justices who arc members of the Student Conduct (SC). The interested individuals in becoming a SC justice should contact the Student Conduct Office.

Any student receiving two or more reprimands for the same offense will be referred to the Student Conduct Office after the offense is repeated in a week.

“We talked about setting the system for three times,” Godwin told the Lynchburg News & Advance.

For examples, in the case of an emergency.

Students must keep the emergency number in their phone. They may also make a text message in case of an emergency.

“Let’s imagine an emergency situation. You’d want to know the way out of the building and how to go to the nearest exit.

Hamric had concerns about procedure. “It depends on the room, the threat and the environment whether or not there will be an effort made to evacuate an area.

“Depending upon the nature of the threat, students will be given directions as to the actions they should take over the PA system, coupled with the screen message, by email, by announcements on the splash page, and, if it is implemented, by recorded message to their cell phone and all land line phones in the area.

“Shane and Shane concert will be held in the gymnasium on the Liberty campus. The concert begins at 7 p.m. by announcements on the splash page.

The Champion encourages community members to submit letters to the editor. Letters should not exceed 400 words and be typed and signed.

The deadline is 6 p.m. Monday.

Letters and columns that appear on the website of the Champion will be added to the Champion-editorial board or Liberty University Information Services,” he said. This is state-of-the-art. Pre-recorded announcements can be transmitted through the system, which will allow the Liberty University Police Department. In the case of a power outage, announcements will be made.

“Proposals for cell or email warning systems are being reviewed by identical University Information Services,” he said. This is an electronic means of warning people in the case of an emergency. The “system will have the ability to sends messages to all students who are subscribed to the system.

“system has many capabilities and can be added on to as we continue to improve our safety and security measures,” said Godwin.

Contact Kari Mitchell @ kdmitchell2@ liberty.edu.
Falwell Jr. addresses students

By Amanda Forth

New engineering program welcomes over 100 freshmen

“TUESDAY, August 28, 2007

“... This was the standard set by the founder, our friend and my mentor, Dr. Falwell. He lived (Jesus Christ),” said Sones.

Although Liberty’s founding policy had boosted Liberty out of the shadows of its neighbors, prayed a prayer of dedication over the school after introducing Dr. Falwell’s wife, Macel, as Liberty, and from his final day on campus, under the wing of Falwell Jr. — crowd surfing, his remarks to the students.

Former President Rev. Dr. Jerry Falwell Jr. jested that his wife, Becki, came to Liberty to receive a degree among students. According to Becki, she was having labor pains and hurried to the hospital. On her way, she was pulled over for doing 57 miles per hour, and from the window she was able to see her husband and children. She was having labor pains and hurried to the hospital. On her way, she was pulled over for doing 57 miles per hour, and from the window she was able to see her husband and children.

The new “abusive driver laws” that went into action July 1.

Virginia driving offenders face steep penalties

The classes that the program offers allow students to work with some of these professionals and develop mentorships that will aid them in the future. One of the classes required for graduation requires the student to work one-on-one with someone in their field and develop a completely new idea.

Falwell Jr. addressed students about the new “abuse of driver laws” programs, which accredit computing and engineering programs, and the ABET, which accredits computing and engineering programs, and said Sones.

Falwell Jr. noted that the late Dr. Falwell’s life — crowd surfing, baby, audacious goals. Returning students, new students and others agreed with the new laws.

Contact Amanda Forth at crossroadsmall@liberty.edu.
The clothes make the president

In a July edition of the Washington Post, fashion critic Robin Givhan devoted an entire column to Hillary Clinton. The article did not detail Clinton's position on Iraq, Social Security or domestic affairs. Instead, Givhan focused on Clinton's choice of clothing and conjectured what it suggested about her political motives.

Givhan delved further into Clinton's fashion sense, detailing the different attires which Clinton had deployed in public appearances dating back to her time as the First Lady. Givhan mentioned Rudy Giuliani's decision to unbutton what Givhan believed was our current president's slight disinterest in pizzazz, but he should still be taken seriously and not placed on the same level as a fashion show.

Perhaps editors are scrambling to find new ideas about a presidential race that will not only define the year for one year, however, even comments written this early will have an impact on next year's election. The seemingly never-ending debates may lack something in the way of pizzazz but they should still be taken seriously and not placed on the same level as a fashion show.

The 2008 election looms as one of the most important in U.S. history. The traditional party lines have been blurred now more than ever. Republicans who support abortion rights based on religious or moral grounds are marginalizing themselves as the polls while some of the most liberal Democrats are running for control of a right wing. Our country stands at a crossroads of social morals and a diminishing status on the world stage. Both are issues that our next president will be burdened to rectify.

SPEAK UP - Will "looks" determine the next president?

"I wouldn't vote for a slob, would you?"
— Evan Carter
Frederick, Md.

"I think physical appearance is important. Because even if it sounds shallow, looks are the first thing you notice when meeting a person."
— Brooke Spangler
Sophomore, Frederick, Md.

"Yes, to some degree it will make a difference but, many people overlook how a person talks, and are more worried about what they have to say."
— Jena Hoge
Sophomore, Pittsburg, Pa.

"The appearance of the candidates will definitely have an affect on the voting. It shouldn't be like that, and people should take an interest in the real issues."— Kyle Stane
Frederick, Md.

"It always affects the election because whether we like it or not, most people naturally form an opinion based on appearances."
— Lena Halbrock
Junior, Noblesville, Ind.

"It wouldn't vote for a slob, would you?"
— Dan Canavan
Frederick, Md.
A learning tool for everyone

During my magazine internship this summer, I had to do extensive research on local high schools for an upcoming feature and just happened to stumble upon what I believed to be the real deal.

TeacherTeach­ers.com is an open forum dedicated to free expression of students and teachers alike. It was founded in 2004 by William Gelds, and is maintained by a group of student volunteers who value the importance of the all-too-often unvoiced (or at least unheard) opinions of fearful students. According to the Web site, the philosophy of the team is that it must correspond to the site's strict rating rules and regulations. Every rating also contains its own discussion forum so that people may openly disagree or agree with all opinions expressed.

It is not that educationals should be given an opportunity to respond to students' comments by creating their own virtual set. On more than one occasion, after viewing comments about themselves, one teacher sent the Web site an e-mail explaining how he had changed his teaching style and techniques in reaction to student comments posted on the site.

Even with protective measures, such as removal of any comments with vulgar or profane words, a sexual nature, name-calling, threats, etc., over 80 districts and 934 high schools have blocked the site.

School officials don't seem to be the only people concerned by the forum. An "uncon­ tentious" section allows people to share their true opinions about a facility or person in secret. For example, one husband of a teacher wrote a poem to the Web site to black­ marks and restore his wife's sense of "self worth," another female teacher wrote in, acknowledging that although some students will always have nasty things to say, cons­ istently removing comments will damage their community's right to free speech.

Isn't that what education is all about — constantly broadening one's horizons and being able to accept constructive criticism at any time? If sensitive teachers begin being taught with the true, unedited opinions of their students, they may well find a crucial learning opportunity themselves. All too often students have the de­cided advantage of being un­protected against unbridled opinions. It is also essential for them to understand their students on a level that may only be expressed in such a confidential setting.

A comment from one user is in June 12, 2004, ratemyma­ster@liberty.edu. "To those teachers who have written and complained about this Web site, you should probably consider a new career." One teacher wrote in general support of the Web site, but expressed concern that "in order to ensure honest and constructive criti­ cism, the students' names should appear with their ratings and be held to the same level of accountability as in our real world."落

Agree that the interaction on the Web site would appear fair if everyone was equally identified. But speaking as a student, I have seen voices freely expressed on the Web sites that would not have been heard otherwise. Considering that students and their families are paying for our education, through taxation or tuition, it is only right that in some cases, teachers are able to be defended in a real sense. So I must some­times express an opinion without fear of publish­ment.

Even with its positives and negatives, I believe this tool can be tremendously beneficial to not only students but teachers as well. Despite sporadic, immature and unevenly crude usage, more than 70 percent of all comments are actually positive. This is made apparent in the Web site's "Wall of Shame," a tribute to the nation's best teachers and schools according to student ratings. In order to qualify for the honor, schools must receive 1,000 ratings and teachers must receive 77 ratings.

This useful, multi-fronted Web site doesn't absolve students from their finish high school. Check out its sister site, ratemyschools.com, for the scoop on the best and worst of college professors nationwide.

So whether you're using the forum to pick a school, check up on your child's teacher, or just read the comments about yourself, remember: if you don't have anything nice to say, try to express it.

Contact Claire Medeiros at cmedeiros@liberty.edu.

www.ratemyteacher.com

As William Gelds told the Liberty Journal, "The university reaches a lot of people in many as­pects of life. If it meshes throughout the world as more and more students go out into the world, we can see the great potential in what they are doing. There is a great need for more teachers who can deliver this kind of course to students and instruct them on how to deal with the real world."

Contact William Gelds at summers@liberty.edu.
iTruths
Life Lessons for the iPod Generation

Pastor Jonathan Falwell will take us through our next sermon series entitled, "iTruths: Life Lessons for the iPod Generation"

This series will focus on the truths that we must know to be successful in our lives

starting Sunday, September 9, 2007 at 8:30am and 11:00am

at Thomas Road Baptist Church

www.trbc.org

---

Domino’s Pizza

Student Value Menu

$7.99

- #1 One Large Cheese or 1-Topping Pizza code 9681
- #2 One Medium 2-Topping Pizza & a 2Ltr. Coke code 9682
- #3 One small 1-Topping Pizza & Any Bread Side item code 9683
- #4 Choose any three bread sides code 9684
- #5 Two Small Cheese Pizzas code 9685
- #6 1X-Large Brooklyn Style Cheese Pizza code 9686
- #7 One Small Specialty Pizza code 9687

Sunday - Thursday 10:30am - 1am
Friday & Saturday 10:30am - 2am

Domino’s Pizza “Official Pizza of Liberty Flames Athletics”

Order online www.dominos.com

434-237-7788

5501 Fort Ave

NOW HIRING Part Time Delivery Drivers
The Rocco Era began last season, beyond his philosophy. Rocco thinks this year’s team will be the one to ignite the Flames offense by throwing the ball up, and breaking out of the season. “Better offense means good to great,” said Rocco.

Coming off a season in which the Flames tied for the nation’s biggest turnaround with a final record of 9-5 in Big South, coach Dave Rocco enters his second season as head coach of this football team. In their first match of the season, they came in third place in the Independent Division, with only the University of Oklahoma and Penn State

A major part of the running game is the offensive line, which looks to be in good condition heading into the season. Liberty returns numerous offensive linemen, including seniors Jared Lutz and Richard Few. “Our offensive line is the heart and soul of our motto. (They are) a big, physical experienced group,” said Rocco.

The solid mixture of veterans and young players is one of the main reasons why the Lady Flames ended the season on a high note and were seeded in the second round of the Big South Championship. The team finished 9-5 in Big South play and was voted into the Big South Preseason Top 10 for the second straight year.

In their first match of the season, they came in third place in the Independent Division, with only the University of Oklahoma and Penn State...
At a half a hour later, a federal grand jury issued Vick an indictment, charging him with the charges, admitted to making bad calls in his life. While trying to avoid all charges, Vick walks scandal, Giants outfielder Barry Bonds, allowed the phrase, "bad things come in threes" to remain a constant. While years from now, when we reminisce about the summers of 2007, we will forget some of for playing time.

"All of this freebies makes the afternoon to contribute. They passed us on to start," Price said.

Many of the Lady Flames leadership will be played on the shoulders of the returnees and senior Ashley Edwards, are two key returnees the team is depending on for leadership and perfor-

Contact Jessica Carniel at jmcarniol@liberty.edu.

Football: Anticipation of first games grows
Conlined from VOLLEYBALL, Al

When God created summer, I think He intended us to enjoy sports while we take time Our bees hit the ground level and we need 10 minutes to get first place in the Big South Confer-

BEATDOWNS

Hornets in scrimmages

VOLLEYBALL: Corbin takes MVP of LU Invite

NEW GAMES FOR THE LADY FLAMES

ATHLON August 15, 5 p.m.

Contact Eric Brown at sports@liberty.edu.

BROWN'S BEATDOWNS

Eric Brown

VOLLEYBALL: Corbin takes MVP of LU Invite

Corbin takes MVP of the Lady Flames The Flames will kick off the 2007 season October 25 at Tusculum for their season opener and 14 letter winners from the 2006 squad, and 13th major, drawing ever so close to Jack Earnhardt Jr. signing with Hendrick Motorsport.

Next games for the Lady Flames

Next games for the Lady Flames

Athlon August 15, 5 p.m.

Contact Eric Brown at sports@liberty.edu.

By Jessica Carniel

The annual Big South preseason coaches poll predicted the Lady Flames soccer team will take first place in the league this season. Last year's Virginia Sports Information Directors Association (VADIA) Men's Soccer Team. The Flames were 3-1 off of goals from seniors Rachel Behrman and Abril Edwards, are two key returnees the team is depending on for leadership and perfor-

Just when we thought the NBA could not get any worse with lackluster playoff finals, the league finds a way to sink farther down.

Just when we thought the NBA could not get any worse with lackluster playoff finals, the league finds a way to sink farther down.

Game time is 6 p.m.

Just when we thought the NBA could not get any worse with lackluster playoff finals, the league finds a way to sink farther down.

The terminated official also confessed to bet-

Contact William Armstrong at wsurm-

When God created summer, I think He intended us to enjoy sports while we take time Our bees hit the ground level and we need 10 minutes to get first place in the Big South Confer-

BEATDOWNS

Hornets in scrimmages

VOLLEYBALL: Corbin takes MVP of LU Invite

Corbin takes MVP of the Lady Flames The Flames will kick off the 2007 season October 25 at Tusculum for their season opener and 14 letter winners from the 2006 squad, and 13th major, drawing ever so close to Jack Earnhardt Jr. signing with Hendrick Motorsport.

Next games for the Lady Flames

Next games for the Lady Flames

Athlon August 15, 5 p.m.

Contact Eric Brown at sports@liberty.edu.

By Jessica Carniel

The annual Big South preseason coaches poll predicted the Lady Flames soccer team will take first place in the league this season. Last year's Virginia Sports Information Directors Association (VADIA) Men's Soccer Team. The Flames were 3-1 off of goals from seniors Rachel Behrman and Abril Edwards, are two key returnees the team is depending on for leadership and perfor-

Just when we thought the NBA could not get any worse with lackluster playoff finals, the league finds a way to sink farther down.

Just when we thought the NBA could not get any worse with lackluster playoff finals, the league finds a way to sink farther down.

Game time is 6 p.m.

Just when we thought the NBA could not get any worse with lackluster playoff finals, the league finds a way to sink farther down.

The terminated official also confessed to bet-

Contact William Armstrong at wsurm-

When God created summer, I think He intended us to enjoy sports while we take time Our bees hit the ground level and we need 10 minutes to get first place in the Big South Confer-

BEATDOWNS

Hornets in scrimmages

VOLLEYBALL: Corbin takes MVP of LU Invite

Corbin takes MVP of the Lady Flames The Flames will kick off the 2007 season October 25 at Tusculum for their season opener and 14 letter winners from the 2006 squad, and 13th major, drawing ever so close to Jack Earnhardt Jr. signing with Hendrick Motorsport.

Next games for the Lady Flames

Next games for the Lady Flames

Athlon August 15, 5 p.m.

Contact Eric Brown at sports@liberty.edu.

By Jessica Carniel

The annual Big South preseason coaches poll predicted the Lady Flames soccer team will take first place in the league this season. Last year's Virginia Sports Information Directors Association (VADIA) Men's Soccer Team. The Flames were 3-1 off of goals from seniors Rachel Behrman and Abril Edwards, are two key returnees the team is depending on for leadership and perfor-

Just when we thought the NBA could not get any worse with lackluster playoff finals, the league finds a way to sink farther down.

Just when we thought the NBA could not get any worse with lackluster playoff finals, the league finds a way to sink farther down.

Game time is 6 p.m.

Just when we thought the NBA could not get any worse with lackluster playoff finals, the league finds a way to sink farther down.

The terminated official also confessed to bet-

Contact William Armstrong at wsurm-

When God created summer, I think He intended us to enjoy sports while we take time Our bees hit the ground level and we need 10 minutes to get first place in the Big South Confer-

BEATDOWNS

Hornets in scrimmages

VOLLEYBALL: Corbin takes MVP of LU Invite

Corbin takes MVP of the Lady Flames The Flames will kick off the 2007 season October 25 at Tusculum for their season opener and 14 letter winners from the 2006 squad, and 13th major, drawing ever so close to Jack Earnhardt Jr. signing with Hendrick Motorsport.

Next games for the Lady Flames

Next games for the Lady Flames

Athlon August 15, 5 p.m.

Contact Eric Brown at sports@liberty.edu.
Former NFL, head football coach Dan Reeves once said, "Difficulties in life are intended to make you a better human being." Former offensive lineman Stephen Sene, 6-6, 320-pound offensive lineman from Columbia, S.C., may have never heard that quote, but he embodies its meaning all the same. Not only did he experience difficulties with his career, but he has thus far taken advantage of his opportunity to become a better football player.

Sene is a redshirt freshman during the 2007 season at the University of South Carolina when he suffered a back injury that prevented him from playing a single snap that season. When asked about it, he admitted his frustration.

"I refused to go to any of the games," Sene said. "Occasionally I would check the score afterwards, but that was about it. (South Carolina) didn't want you on the sideline, so that made it tough.

Sene went on to play eight games for South Carolina before transferring to Dodge City Community College in Dodge City, Kan., where he played one season.

Before the summer season, Sene joined the Flames and said it was night and day compared to his previous football experience.

"They treat you like people here, not just players on a field," he said.

Sene, now a second-year senior, said that he always wondered whether or not he would be able to get his '02 season back.

"I was always pretty confident that I would get it back, but I always thought, "What if I don't?"" he said.

The answer to Sene's question came during the 2006 Christmas Break when he received a phone call from the Liberty coaching staff.

"I really didn't have too much to do with the process," he explained. "But I had to fill out some forms and explain how an extra year would benefit me personally and as a player.

The NCAA is not normally in the business of handing out extra years of eligibility, but in Sene's case, it was not really a surprise. More surprising, perhaps, is Sene's willingness to return to the field after having such a stellar 2006 season. He was named to the Big South First Team and received Second Team All-State honors. He did not allow a sack all season.

"It's a great help for our team because Stephen is a solid, strong, dominating player at his position that you can count on to win his assignment every play," Assistant Head Coach Scott Wachenheim said.

"It's a great help for our team because Stephen is a solid, strong, dominating player at his position that you can count on to win his assignment every play." Wachenheim has nothing but high praise.

"It is a great help for our team because Stephen is a solid, strong, dominating player at his position that you can count on to win his assignment every play," Wachenheim said.

"I think you can always get better," Sene said. "There are always things you can work on.

Sene has worked hard in the off-season to fine-tune areas of his game, and has already begun receiving attention from several NFL scouts.

"I refused to go to any of the games," Reeves once said. "They treat you like people here, not just players on a field," he said.

"Occasionally I would check the score afterwards, but that was about it. (South Carolina) didn't want you on the sideline, so that made it tough.

Sene went on to play eight games for South Carolina before transferring to Dodge City Community College in Dodge City, Kan., where he played one season.

Before the summer season, Sene joined the Flames and said it was night and day compared to his previous football experience.

"They treat you like people here, not just players on a field," he said.

Sene, now a second-year senior, said that he always wondered whether or not he would be able to get his '02 season back.

"I was always pretty confident that I would get it back, but I always thought, "What if I don't?"" he said.

The answer to Sene's question came during the 2006 Christmas Break when he received a phone call from the Liberty coaching staff.

"I really didn't have too much to do with the process," he explained. "But I had to fill out some forms and explain how an extra year would benefit me personally and as a player.

The NCAA is not normally in the business of handing out extra years of eligibility, but in Sene's case, it was not really a surprise. More surprising, perhaps, is Sene's willingness to return to the field after having such a stellar 2006 season. He was named to the Big South First Team and received Second Team All-State honors. He did not allow a sack all season.

"It's a great help for our team because Stephen is a solid, strong, dominating player at his position that you can count on to win his assignment every play," Assistant Head Coach Scott Wachenheim said.

"It's a great help for our team because Stephen is a solid, strong, dominating player at his position that you can count on to win his assignment every play." Wachenheim has nothing but high praise.

"It is a great help for our team because Stephen is a solid, strong, dominating player at his position that you can count on to win his assignment every play," Wachenheim said.

"I think you can always get better," Sene said. "There are always things you can work on.

Sene has worked hard in the off-season to fine-tune areas of his game, and has already begun receiving attention from several NFL scouts.
As they gear up for their quickly approaching exhibition games Aug. 31 and ending Sept. 2, the Flames' basketball team is ready to rock this year.

Basketball: Flames head North for exhibition games

By Jeffery Scott

The Flames will have a strong returning squad as only two seniors left the team. Last season's captain Jon Ziegler and alternate captain Jordan Wilson both graduated, leaving a vacancy in the team's leadership positions. However, this past Thursday, Reuben Loeken was named captain for the upcoming season.

"Our senior leadership is going to be fantastic," Handy said. "Our team will be really exciting to watch." Handy said. "Our team will be really exciting to watch."

The Flames will have a strong returning squad as only two seniors left the team. Last season's captain Jon Ziegler and alternate captain Jordan Wilson both graduated, leaving a vacancy in the team's leadership positions. However, this past Thursday, Reuben Loeken was named captain for the upcoming season.

"Our senior leadership is going to be fantastic," Handy said. "Our team will be really exciting to watch."

With a strong defensive game plan, excellent goaltending and several game-changing players on the forward lines, Liberty seems to be poised for a deep playoff run.

HOCKEY: Ready to rock this year

NOW HIRING!!!
full and part time positions available

Three ways to get BERRY happy.

1. With a strong defensive game plan, excellent goaltending and several game-changing players on the forward lines, Liberty seems to be poised for a deep playoff run.

2. The Flames will have a strong returning squad as only two seniors left the team. Last season's captain Jon Ziegler and alternate captain Jordan Wilson both graduated, leaving a vacancy in the team's leadership positions. However, this past Thursday, Reuben Loeken was named captain for the upcoming season.

3. The Flames will have a strong returning squad as only two seniors left the team. Last season's captain Jon Ziegler and alternate captain Jordan Wilson both graduated, leaving a vacancy in the team's leadership positions. However, this past Thursday, Reuben Loeken was named captain for the upcoming season.

The competition level will be higher, but the coaching staff is ready for the challenge. "We have recruited some excellent impact players," Handy said. "Our team will be really exciting to watch."
Commuters find ways to stay involved through group care

By Natalia Kornarick

Although life off-campus can be fun and definitely has its perks, one can easily lose touch with what the rest of the campus is doing, and as the number of commuters increases, keeping in touch with the rest of the student body seems to be more difficult than ever. Of course, some creative, church and prayer are encouraged, but what else is going on?

Well, there are various resources just a click away. Commuters can log in to the University’s Web site and check out what the splash page has to offer. Read something, a little more in-depth than that? Dam check out the commuter students’ official page on the LU Web site, and find various links to apartment buildings, road plans, recreation settings, LU activities and even links to important occurrences in Lynchburg.

In addition, students and LU employees can chat away on the Great Lynchburg Transit Company’s boards. Join 160 people or anywhere else they are chatting. By just filling their LU email, transportation is free. For more information about transit services available, contact transit@liberty.edu or visit www.liberty.edu/tran.

Students can also visit Liberty-CalhounRelatives.com for advice, prayer support or information on joining Liberty’s Prayer Force.

However, with more than 4,000 students commuting to campus everyday, new programs, such as the Commuter Care Group, have been put into effect to help local students maintain the sense of community that comes with being an on-campus resident.

“I always thought of ways to be more active,” said third-year commuter Nona Beth Kelly, a new leader for the Wyndhurst Ladies Commuter Care Group. “I have always felt like ministering with the youths was something I could do, but it has never been easy to find a vehicle to do it.”

Ranging from Starbucks to a leader’s home, meetings and places and times can vary. Because leaders come up with their own material, activities and places to meet, every group is slightly different. However, with 72 leaders registered, there is always something happening.

The only requirement is for every leader to pray, make contact at least once a week, hold regular group activities and be available for group discipleship.

“Some don’t read it, some just delete, but a day will come when they remember - someone means about us,” said Hughes in reference to the e-mails sent to commuter students.

For ideas on service that commuters might want or need, send a e-mail to commutercare@liberty.edu. Interested in finding a Commuter Care Group in your area? Contact Hughes at crhughes@liberty.edu.

Contact Natalia Kornarick at nkornarick@liberty.edu.

Carbon monoxide poisoning hospitalizes 12 Hokies on eve of memorial dedication

By Christie Moyar

On Sunday, August 19, attention turned to Virginia Tech Campus for a second time in a year, but this time it was due to a carbon monoxide leak, which sent nearly two dozen people to nearby hospitals. According to the Roanoke Times, the cause of the poisoning was a faulty water heater in an off-campus apartment building that housed mostly Virginia Tech students.

The Roanoke Times also reported that the leak was traced back to an apartment, which is home to five women who were all fired up by the news. Each of them is a leader for the Wyndhurst Ladies Care Group.

In its third year running, these structured groups offer discipleship to students. “I look for the trained leaders on-campus to be leaders off,” said Hughes, although the leadership positions are open to anyone interested.

“I am always happy to be a part of this ministry with Dr. Hughes, and I believe that God has called each and every group leader,” said junior Nona Beth Kelly, a new leader for the Wyndhurst Ladies Commuter Care Group. “I have always felt like ministering with the youths was something I could do, but it has never been easy to find a vehicle to do it.”

According to Virginia Tech News, shortly after this event occurred, it was reported that thousands of family members, friends, students, faculty and alumnus gathered to honor the victims of the April 16 shooting at Virginia Tech. Many of these memorialized those who lost their lives. "The new memorial was created to resemble the first memorial, which students put together last April."

A formal dedication of the new memorial took place on Sunday, August 19. The memorial consists of 20 stones, each engraved with a victim’s name. The stones, which weigh 300 pounds, were placed in the same order on the first memorial. The original names representing each victim were placed in a mudbrick box and given to the families of the victims. University President Charles Offieffinger officiated the ceremony, which was also broadcast on the road.

Students at Virginia Tech have reason to be encouraged after this event, as “hate speech” has been ruled out. Four months have passed since the mass shooting took place in what is known to be the most severe school shooting in American history. The massacre occurred when gunman Seung-Hui Cho took the lives of 32 students and five faculty members, leaving 7 injured, August 19, 2007, and the 32nd school shooting of the school year.

Contact Christie Moyar at cmoyar@liberty.edu.

About the Web site: Please see BLOCK PARTY, B6
Liberty students enjoy a new kind of symphony

By Miranda Canady

LA Symphony brought the heat this past Saturday at Liberty University's annual Block Party when hundreds of students, locals and alumni gathered together to hear the latest sounds from the hip-hop sensation.

"First time freshmen seniors Lindsay Washburn of Chesapeake, Penn., said, "They really brought the home down!"

The surge of the crowd was contagious. Sophomore Jennifer Pittman, from Surry, Virginia, quickly agreed, "Even though I have never heard of LA Symphony, I thought they came through and made a great performance."

LA Symphony, though known widely for its hip-hop lyrics, seemed to have an effect on everyone Saturday night. Even those who were not naturally inclined to listen to hip-hop music found themselves swaying to the beat. Sophomore Libby Stucki said, "It wasn’t really my type of music, but I thought it was good for what it was."

Unique to the album are guest appearances by several well-known hip-hop artists including Will.I.Am of the popular hip-hop group Black Eyed Peas. Past albums include "Composition No.1" (1999), "The End Is Now" (2003), "Less Than Zero" (2005), and "Disappear Here" (2005).

The record company also sponsors famous Christian artists such as Family Force 5, Relient K, John Reuben, Our Heart's Desire and Prophecy B. Gotee Records is changing the way Christian music is heard beyond the Christian spectrum, it has become a ministry for a group of students who were not naturally inclined to listen to hip-hop music. Sophomore Peter Johnson, from Virginia Beach, Virginia, quickly agreed. "We’re trying to build a school spirit," Chandler said of the event. "Our purpose is to get to students."

Student Activities wanted the "community to draw to­gether," Chandler said. Kids, adults, and even a professor could be seen enjoying the event. Despite extreme heat early on, there was still a "great atmosphere," said Student Activities Supervisor Casey Richardson.

Contact Miranda Canady at mc54700@liberty.edu.

Annual block party kicks off semester

 Besides free admission to the Block Party, students enjoyed constant giveaways for chips, soda, candy, magazines and more. Students charmed for free food at the block party's food trucks and enjoyed a variety of musical acts and free giveaways. Students enjoyed "the best of both worlds," and many attended,ment students attended,ment students attended.

Students could also get a taste of home away from home. Various food trucks featured local favorites such as Sundae Grille, which sold milkshakes and food, and "the best of both worlds." Despite extreme heat early on, there was still a "great atmosphere," said Student Activities Supervisor Casey Richardson.

Contact Charles Goo at cgo054@liberty.edu.