DR. GUTIERREZ RECEIVES WORD OF LIFE ALUMNUS AWARD

Dr. Ben Gutierrez received the Word of Life Alumnus Award in May of 2009. Dr. Ben Gutierrez is an alumnus of the class of 1994 at Word of Life Bible Institute. Currently, Dr. Gutierrez is the Dean for Liberty University Online, Chairman of the Pastoral Leadership Department, Director of Pastoral Training, and Professor of Religion in the School of Religion at Liberty University. He holds a PhD in leadership from Regent University and is a graduate of both Liberty University & Liberty Baptist Theological Seminary where he received both his M.A.R. and M.Div. The annual Alumnus of the Year Award for Word of Life Bible Institute is considered a high honor and is reserved for graduates who have demonstrated a heart for ministry and faithfulness to God’s Word. With Dr. Gutierrez being a very highly rated teacher among the students at WOLBI, it was especially impactful for him to receive this award with the very students present whom he had so faithfully ministered to earlier that year. The student body of WOLBI knows Dr. Gutierrez as a capable and compassionate teacher as he has been their guest lecturer for the past three years teaching the Gospel of John. Executive Director of Word of Life International, Dr. Joe Jordan, Director of Word of Life International, Mr. Don Lough, and Co-Founder, Mr. Harry Bollback were all present at the ceremony. Alumnus, current students, faculty, and staff were also in attendance. Dr. Gutierrez deeply values the relationship Liberty University has with Word of Life International & Word of Life Bible Institute. Liberty University attracts approximately 80 percent of their graduates & they serve in many of Liberty’s student & spiritual leadership positions. Thus, guest lecturing at Word of Life Bible Institute campuses in NY, FL, and Canada is the start of a strong relationship that continues on the campus of Liberty University.

From the Desk of the Dean

Dr. Elmer Towns received an award in convocation Wednesday, September 9 at 10:00 am. The staff of Destiny Image Publishers honored him with the “Destiny Image Gold Award 2009,” which the company gives to the author of its most published work that year. Four members from Destiny Image were present. The award is for Dr. Town’s series on Praying the Scriptures. He has done something that has never been done in the history of Christianity. He has translated the books of the Bible into modern day prayers. As a result, a person doesn’t just read the Bible, but prays the Word of Scriptures as they go through the Bible. This innovated way of reading the Bible has brought revival to many individuals so that they find themselves talking to God rather than just learning about God. Dr. Towns was trained in both New Testament Greek and Old Testament Hebrew in his four years of graduate study at Dallas Theological Seminary, Dallas, Texas. He claims, “I am not a brilliant scholar, but a journeyman who works daily with the original text of the Bible so that I understand what God has said, then writes it plainly so people can understand God’s message.” Thus far Destiny Image has released 11 volumes in this series.

Dr. David Baggett to Give Presentation

Dr. David Baggett, Associate Professor of Philosophy, will be giving a presentation of his paper entitled, “Taking Divine Necessity Seriously” at the 70th annual Virginia Philosophical Association on October 23rd and 24th at Lynchburg College. According to his abstract, Baggett’s paper focuses on the implications of God’s necessary existence as they bear on the question of morality. The following is a brief excerpt from Baggett’s abstract. “This paper brings to bear the modal implications of Anselmian theology to the meta-ethical question of the connection between morality and God. I argue that philosophers on occasion too quickly assume as metaphysically possible a world that is potentially a counter essential, an intrinsically impossible world.” This will be the first time that Dr. Baggett has spoken at this event.
The Liberty School of Religion welcomes new faculty member Jeff Ritchey. Dr. Ritchey graduated with a B.M from Hardin Simmons University. The event commemorated the 100th anniversary of the Pontifical Bible Institute in Rome. A number of evangelical scholars from around the world were in attendance at the conference.
