Storm shuts down Liberty

Fran causes record floods in Virginia

By TIMOTHY J. GIBBONS

For the past two days, record breaking rains have caused floods and shut down Liberty University. The worst flooding in 40 years has caused more than $10 million in damages to Liberty facilities and has forced the university to shut down for the rest of the week.

The storm began as soon as our office opened today, said the manager said. The rainfall was so heavy that the Dan River was 23 to 24 feet on the Dan River, which is normally at 6 feet. The river was still rising as of today.

Liberty's workers began dealing with the situation late Thursday and Friday. Facility Manager Jon Bobbey, and the Vines Center was flooded with two inches of water on the floor. The situation isn't as serious this year, said Facility Manager Julie Cozby. The Executive Mansion had three inches of water in its basement, said Facility Manager Jon Bobbey, and the Vines Center was flooded with two inches of water on the floor.

Debaters aim for top again

Continuing off last year's championship season, the U.S. debate team is ready to do it again. Liberty has been national champions in the two largest debate associations for the past two years and is now trying for its unprecedented third Division I national championship.

There will be a lot of new faces joining the team this year, said Coach Sherri Jones. The team lost three of its two-member teams, including one which Coach Jones said was in the top five in the nation. The new teams are joining the novice squad, the result of the biggest reorganization we've had, said Coach Jones.

There are currently 40 members on Liberty's debate squad, which will be the largest squad ever, according to coaches. We do this largely through self-attrition, said Coach Jones.

The beginning of the fall drama season at Liberty is marked by the advent of a new "dol­lar theater" on campus. Starting with the King's Players, beginning at 7 p.m. on Sept. 12, all King's Players performances will cost $1 for general admission. Reserve seats will be $2 and front row seats, $3.

"Ticket prices need to be more in-line with what students can afford," said Dr. David Allison, director of the King's College GOP kicks off year

By SHAUN CHILGREEN

The College Republicans kicked off a busy year of campaigns and charitable activities with a volleyball party last Tuesday.

"We don't care where you came from; we just care where you're going," said Hunter S. Thompson, who was the keynote speaker at the College Republicans' annual meeting. "We believe in the power of the people, and we will stand together to make sure our voices are heard."
WASHINGTON - U.S. officials warned Sunday that Saddam Hussein could face further missile strikes if he tries to repair military sites. "We have warned Saddam Hussein that any attempt to repair those sites or reposition American forces are unlikely to result in attacks if he tries to repair military sites." The United States targeted the sites in northern Iraq to signal that the attack's larger goal was to keep Hussein on the offensive. The U.S. says it is monitoring Iraq's missile launches to ensure that they do not pose a threat.

SADDAM: WE SHOULD BE FOCUSED ON OUR DEFENSES

Saddam Hussein said Sunday that the United States should be more focused on its defenses and less on attacking Iraq. "We should focus on our defenses," he said. "We should not be involved in civil war in the north." The United States says it is focused on targeting military sites and disrupting Iraq's ability to launch missiles.

Key piece of evidence in Oklahoma City bombing found in home of Terry Nichols

OKLAHOMA CITY - A hand-drawn map of an escape route leading away from the Oklahoma City federal building was found in the trash at bombing suspect Terry Nichols' home Sunday, authorities said. The FBI seized a map of the Oklahoma City federal building that showed escape routes and was found in the trash at Nichols' home on Sunday. The hand-drawn map was found in the trash at Nichols' home, which is located near the federal building.

Nichols, 41, and co-defendant Timothy McVeigh, 29, were arrested last month for their roles in the April 19, 1995 bombing of the federal building. The FBI said the map was found in the garbage at Nichols' home in Clinton, Okla., about 10 miles from the federal building.

The map shows the routes from the federal building to routes that would have led to nearby Amy's Wonderland, a fast-food restaurant, and the Regency Tower Apartments, the YMCA and Interstate 235. The Hand-drawn escape route from the federal building to a fast-food restaurant was found, according to the FBI.

Nichols and McVeigh are being held in damp and unlit cells in separate parts of the federal building. The FBI said it was too early to say whether the map was used in the actual bombing.

Mr. President, we need to impress your image here into the public. To assume a hero, you need to act accordingly.

Why not building statues? Mr. Bush, in true real reasons, to have a real reason to start moving people with the statue.

The President of the United States is getting involved in this — or at least he doesn't understand the meaning of the word. People who have spoken in the past have been liberal to the idea of removing statues, and the President himself has been known to speak against them. Let's not get carried away.

Barrington: Not your average futbol man

While most four-year-olds were still using their playgrounds, running around in circles, picking rocks, cars, pets and each other, little Jesse Barrington was in his backyard, practicing toward a make-shift goal and kicking a soccer ball. It renders visions of the McDonald's commercial which predicts future Olympians. The one that starts with little kids doing things like grabbing onto rings, riding a trampoline horse, splashing in a kiddie pool — and kicking a soccer ball.

In the suburbs of Columbus, Ohio, Barrington found in the only home on the block with a backyard. So, Jesse developed athleticism as a youngster because it was where the neighborhood kids gathered, and there was almost always some kind of game going on. Football isn't the only thing the Lions contend. Raiders by 1. Patriots by 2. Chiefs by 7. not the team they were a year ago.

Storm dampens Vines, hurts fields

By RICH MACLONE

Hurricane Fran wreaked havoc on the LU sports world as it ripped through the South this weekend.

The Vines Center floor was drenched with water on Friday. Suddenly, the LU men’s soccer game against Maryland Eastern Shore was postponed, the opening game of the season, later that day, and the condition of the turf at Williams Stadium was bad for the football game.

According to LU Athletic Director Chuck Burch, the Vines Center floor was soaked because of missed tackles.

“The field was kind of ruined by McGoldrick,” Burch said. “That both teams had to play on it.”

But the weather at Williams Stadium was bad for the football game. The playing conditions would have been hazardous.

“All the sand made for a very slippery field. Sand was trapped in the turf as the water pounded it.”

LU put the ball on the ground six times; of which the Flames fumbled on second and eight from the WCU nine-yard line.

“We are working excellent together as a team. Our main goal is to play offensively,” Head Coach Sam Rutigliano added.

“We had two chances inside the WCU 10-yard line in the fourth quarter. We were talking about? That’s just too much. We were talking about ‘Let’s hope the line is going in the right direction’ today,” quarterback Ben Anderson said.
