Students reach out to Guatemala

By Alicia Wotring

Every summer since 1999, a group of Liberty University students have traveled to Guatemala to serve in a number of ministry capacities in the village of Llano Verde do. The school has been in Guatemala one month in even spilled out—over the post office and wrapped around the Main Campus and into the post office and distributed by lottery. Since 1 am the beginning of the year, and through most of the good parking spots are reserved, either for faculty near the administration said that it will be prepared in the future. Ferguson added that the University did not anticipate the amount of large packages it received at the beginning of the year, such as refrigerators, entertainment centers and desks. "This will be rectified by adjusting equipment and personnel in the post office to handle the increase in mail to students," Ferguson said.

Please see POST OFFICE, page A3

"I live in on-campus housing this year, and there is a parking lot near the apartment complex," Blake said. "Only one person per suite (there are four to a suite) is allowed to park in this lot, and if there are any left-over spots they are distributed by lottery. Since I am the only one that has a car in my suite this year, I have a permit for the parking lot ($80)."

"There are a few good deals of restrictions for parking. It seems as though most of the good parking spots are reserved, either for faculty near the classrooms or for Kae near the dorms," Blake said.

While students at Liberty have to get used to moving their cars for football games and conferences, the inconvenience is not unique to LU.

Please see PARKING, page A3

Post office maxed out

By Mike Brady

Due to the influx of new students and the physical growth the campus has experienced, students have found themselves standing in longer lines than expected waiting for mail. The first three weeks were the worst, as lines wrapped around the post office and even spilled outside its doors. "The school has overgrown the post office," said Wayne Reynolds, manager of the university’s post office. The post office, with three full-time employees and 15 student workers, receives the mail, distributes and mails letters and packages for the student body, now including Campus East, as well as the offices on the Main Campus and Campus North.

"The U.S. postal service received more and larger items this semester than in previous semesters," said Lacy Ferguson, the director of purchasing. The administration said that it will be prepared in the future. Ferguson added that the University did not anticipate the amount of large packages it received at the beginning of the year, such as refrigerators, entertainment centers and desks.

"This will be rectified by adjusting equipment and personnel in the post office to handle the increase in mail to students," Ferguson said.

Please see POST OFFICE, page A3

Liberty parking stalls up against other schools

By Marcelo Quarantotto

In contrast to the arrangements at other schools, Liberty’s parking is desirable. The price of a parking permit is much more expensive at other schools. Office Shain (Chegwidden) of the LU parking office said that some schools charge anywhere up to $1,000 for a parking permit.

Parking and Transportation Services Manager Gregerya Bolden of University of North Carolina at the Wilmington said that students have the choice of paying either $40 for campus parking or $72 for shuttle parking.

"Parking was and is a somewhat serious problem at UVa. It was slightly alleviated last year with the construction of a new parking garage, only accessible by permit (it costs $80-$100)," said Whitney Blake, a junior at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

"I live in on-campus housing this year, and there is a parking lot near the apartment complex," Blake said. "Only one person per suite (there are four to a suite) is allowed to park in this lot, and if there are any left-over spots they are distributed by lottery. Since I am the only one that has a car in my suite this year, I have a permit for the parking lot ($80)."

Please see PARKING, page A3

Liberty parking stalls up against other schools

By Marcelo Quarantotto

In contrast to the arrangements at other schools, Liberty’s parking is desirable. The price of a parking permit is much more expensive at other schools. Office Shain (Chegwidden) of the LU parking office said that some schools charge anywhere up to $1,000 for a parking permit.

Parking and Transportation Services Manager Gregerya Bolden of University of North Carolina at the Wilmington said that students have the choice of paying either $40 for campus parking or $72 for shuttle parking.

"Parking was and is a somewhat serious problem at UVa. It was slightly alleviated last year with the construction of a new parking garage, only accessible by permit (it costs $80-$100)," said Whitney Blake, a junior at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

"I live in on-campus housing this year, and there is a parking lot near the apartment complex," Blake said. "Only one person per suite (there are four to a suite) is allowed to park in this lot, and if there are any left-over spots they are distributed by lottery. Since I am the only one that has a car in my suite this year, I have a permit for the parking lot ($80)."

Please see PARKING, page A3

Liberty parking stalls up against other schools

By Marcelo Quarantotto

In contrast to the arrangements at other schools, Liberty’s parking is desirable. The price of a parking permit is much more expensive at other schools. Office Shain (Chegwidden) of the LU parking office said that some schools charge anywhere up to $1,000 for a parking permit.

Parking and Transportation Services Manager Gregerya Bolden of University of North Carolina at the Wilmington said that students have the choice of paying either $40 for campus parking or $72 for shuttle parking.

"Parking was and is a somewhat serious problem at UVa. It was slightly alleviated last year with the construction of a new parking garage, only accessible by permit (it costs $80-$100)," said Whitney Blake, a junior at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

"I live in on-campus housing this year, and there is a parking lot near the apartment complex," Blake said. "Only one person per suite (there are four to a suite) is allowed to park in this lot, and if there are any left-over spots they are distributed by lottery. Since I am the only one that has a car in my suite this year, I have a permit for the parking lot ($80)."

Please see PARKING, page A3
Bio study rattles some tails, saves some slitherers

By Regina Franklin

The department of biology and chemistry provides upper-level biology students an opportunity to participate in original research and to contribute to that department's faculty members.

Senior Ben Myers is taking advantage of the opportunity to work with associate professor of biology Dr. Kristin Reichenbach on a timber rattlesnake project this year. The information he gathers will help the National Park Service to monitor the snake population. His data will help them extrapolate population numbers and make informed policy recommendations and management strategies for the snake's preservation in Virginia.

Timber rattlesnake populations exist in several states throughout the United States, with the exception of the barren, northeast and midwest states, and the species is threatened by habitat destruction and disturbance. In Virginia, the species is considered a threat to the environment and is under protection.

Myers' research will help other people in the National Park Service to sample and tag the population. "Science with field data is invaluable to a future science teacher," making them better educators. "It's one thing to hear about it in a classroom, but it fosters creativity in students. They can put the information together and form a complete picture of what's happening," Myers said.

"If we train people in wildlife and they go into the field, training is incomplete," Dr. Giese said about why students in other areas of study are important for center for worship students.

In 2002, Liberty University introduced the degree in Worship and Music Ministry. Since then, the program has grown to go on several student excursions.

"They want to use music to reach people. They want to reach others for Christ," said Myers.

"The worship major is what drew me to Liberty," said Myers. "I hope to use her degree to get a master's degree in the future."

The course Student camping, biking, or hiking enthusiasts should be aware of the poisonous snakes, too, tag populations of the species endangered, according to the Champion stylebook, as Connecticut and Ohio have responded to population increases and management strategies for the snake’s preservation in Virginia. Because timber rattlesnake populations exist in several states throughout the United States, with the exception of the barren, northeast and midwest states, and the species is threatened by habitat destruction and disturbance, the species is under protection.

Before I close out, here's a little about me. I'm not one of my few moves out of Lynchburg.

I'm trying to write this while sipping my orange double mocha skin-

I tend to find humor in nearly every situation except for the time when I run over my bare foot with the vacuum cleaner. It was not healthy.

We’re trying to mix the world of music and ministry. We’re interested in placing people in churches and mission fields using music," said Dr. Giese. "Liberty University's Center for Worship and Music Ministry.

The Center for Worship and Music Ministry department is an area of study that focuses on musical ability, songwriting, instrumental and vocal work, and also trains it students in areas of leadership, administrative skills, and technical skills like the use of audio equipment.

"If we train people in wildlife and they go into the field, training is incomplete," Dr. Giese said about why students in other areas of study are important for centers for worship students.

In 2002, Liberty University introduced the degree in Worship and Music Ministry. Since then, the program has grown to go on several student excursions.

"They want to use music to reach people. They want to reach others for Christ," said Myers.

"The worship major is what drew me to Liberty," said Myers. "I hope to use her degree to get a master's degree in the future."

The course...
Continued from page 1

"Game Day is another huge parking problem," Blake said. "Some of the students who live off campus have to make a 45-minute trek to and from the stadium because there's not much parking around the stadium." For Tamika McCrae, the transportation to and from games is an issue. "I'm not even sure if I'm going to go to any games this year," McCrae said. "If I do, I have to figure out transportation to and from the stadium." McCrae said she prefers tailgating because the transportation is more convenient. "I feel like I'm getting a free meal and I don't have to worry about transportation," McCrae said.

While Liberty parking may still be a challenge, some students have found solutions to the problem. "I'm a commuter, so I don't have the problem of parking on campus," said Ryan Robinson, a junior. "I live about 10 miles from Liberty, so I park at the stadium and walk there." Robinson said he has found a way to avoid the parking dilemma and still support his team.

Continued from page 1

"I really didn't expect anything to change except my Spanish," said Robinson. "I did describe all the girls sitting in the winos' house before returning to the States talking about how they would be the one group that didn't change. They weren't as open when we got home in the United States...our view of the culture and our view of the people that got arrested said that they were going to take these buildings down, and sure enough, they did. For several days, I couldn't believe what was happening. "I ended up applying at LUPD, and I decided that there are hills everywhere."
The one and only?

Trouble finding Mr. Right

The idea is everywhere—movies, books, music, even in Christian society. On a college campus it is especially common to hear people say that they are looking for Mr. or Miss Right, their soul mate, their destiny. It is also not unusual to hear a guy or girl in a relationship, probably more often the girl, say of the other person, "I just know he's the one." "The one." The concept is that there is only one person whom you need to be with in order to complete yourself. The term and concept are elusive, vague and utterly unrealistic. Wake up. There is no such thing as the one and only. The concept is both theologically and practically flawed. First, there are some serious theological difficulties with the concept of "the one." Christianity, in large part, centers on the concept of free will. Adam and Eve had a choice in the garden and we still have choices today. Think about "the one." In context with free will, if God picks out Jimmy and Sally to be together and does this for everyone in the world, does He make each couple meet and fall in love, or is it the couple’s responsibility to search for each other? And is it Jimmy’s job to find Sally and, vice versa, is he supposed to know that Sally is the one? (Generally, if God leads Jimmy and Sally to each other, and makes them fall in love, then they have no choice and that does not follow the idea of free will. It also doesn’t line up with the fact that the Bible encourages good decision making, teaches us to seek wise counsel and pray and gives commands that we must decide to obey. There is nothing in the Bible that says to look for one person who is meant for us. Rather God lays out a model for good marriages and people of integrity so that we can choose a godly spouse.

Another problem with this concept is that people are sinful and many would choose to marry someone other than who God intended for them. Let’s go back to Jimmy and Sally. If fully is chosen to marry someone other than Diana she is sinning because she’s not the will of God, but God is. Jimmy is sinning if he chooses someone outside of God’s will, because of nothing he did. Then if Jimmy wants to get married, he must choose someone outside of God’s will, and then that person is out of God’s will, and pretty soon virtually no one is married to "the one" they were supposed to marry. That is simply absurd.

Second, there are practical problems that stem from living according to this concept. One problem is the inevitable question of how a person knows that a given guy or girl is "the one." In some there some magical feeling, some "Aha!" moment? Do they hear Hanks’ voice she is mesmerized. She decides to fly to Seattle to meet this man, their eyes connect for one second and they both "know." Eventually they met for real on the top of the Empire State Building and they leave together. The audience is left to assume that they love each other and it lasts forever.

This leads to the last practical problem. Belief in "the one" gives people a reason to get divorced. Once a couple is married and things start to get rough, one or both partners may decide that the person they married was not "the one," after all, so why stay with the wrong person for the rest of your life. Instead, why not divorce and try to find the right one?"

Overall, belief in "the one" has many significant problems. It contradicts free will theology, gives an false indication of how to determine who you are looking for, leads to a reliance on emotions, creates a burden of trying to figure out who is the one, fosters unrealistic expectations and gives people an excuse to divorce. When it comes down to it, love cannot be determined by words. Love is choice. So live and love, but choose wisely. Choose your Mr. or Miss Right by biblical principles and godly counsel not by butterflies in your stomach or a rapidly pulsating heart. Most importantly make the commitment to choose love everyday of your lives together. Instead of waiting for the happily ever after that will not come, make the effort, work hard and live.

Contact Julia Seymour at jaseymour@liberty.edu.
Schwarzenegger terminates troubles as governor

Arnold Schwarzenegger took California by storm when he became governor last fall. It has been nearly a year since the Terminator took office, and he has already made a mark on the Golden State. I was born and raised in California, and I truly believe that it is one of the best places in the United States to live. Since Schwarzenegger took office, political, social and economic tones in the state have truly become more positive and hopeful. California, and I truly believe that it is one of the most prosperous economies in America, was near bankruptcy. California was billions of dollars in debt, gas and energy prices were ridiculously high, there were rolling blackouts in certain areas because the state did not have enough money or electricity to keep the power on, and Gray Davis did not have enough money or electricity to keep the power on. Davis was put on the ballot for the people to decide. In a desperate attempt just prior to the recall election, Davis signed into law a bill allowing illegal immigrants to obtain drivers licenses in California. Davis signed into law more Latino votes, but the plan seemed to backfire. Many were repealed of Davis that had signed a bill that honored people who were breaking the law by not following proper immigration procedures. As if this political decision was not enough, Arnold Schwarzenegger took many people by surprise when he announced on the Joy Laslo show that he would be running for the governorship of California. Over 20 people had already signed up to run for the governorship, but in the end, and Californians voted Gray Davis out and chose Arnold as the new governor. While it may have seemed like a circus, Californians made a sound political decision by doing away with Davis and electing a politically and fiscally conservative governor.

letters to the editor: reactions to "what does your car say about you?"

Amazing, Brilliant!
Your article in the Sept. 14 paper was amazing! I think what made the article so great was the frankness that he had. In a way it showed that we are all the same, that it doesn't matter what sex, age or anything, but the points you made were point on. I think that your driving was a good point, while still being informative. This is a great article, and I am glad that you wrote it for the good work! I am excited to see what else you have to say.
-Style Diary

Shallow, superficial, worldly
I was saddened and greatly disappointed when I read your article in the Champion this last week, given that it was so shallow, superficial, worldly and down-right disrespectful. I'm surprised that you feel that a person should have to fit in. "I asked why and their answer was; "It doesn't measure up." Fortunately we were able to dispel that thinking and the students have 'fancy cars' and cell phones...I just don't understand that. There are young students here that are already breaking the laws with their cell phones, but in the end, and Californians voted Gray Davis out and chose Arnold as the new governor.

While it may have seemed like a circus, Californians made a sound political decision by doing away with Davis and electing a politically and fiscally conservative governor.

Letters to the editor: reactions to “What does your car say about you?”

Awesome, Brilliant!
Your article in the Sept. 14 paper was amazing! I think what made the article so great was the frankness that he had. In a way it showed that we are all the same, that it doesn't matter what sex, age or anything, but the points you made were point on. I think that your driving was a good point, while still being informative. This is a great article, and I am glad that you wrote it for the good work! I am excited to see what else you have to say.

Shallow, superficial, worldly
I was saddened and greatly disappointed when I read your article in the Champion this last week, given that it was so shallow, superficial, worldly and down-right disrespectful. I'm surprised that you feel that a person should have to fit in. "I asked why and their answer was; "It doesn't measure up." Fortunately we were able to dispel that thinking and the students have 'fancy cars' and cell phones...I just don't understand that. There are young students here that are already breaking the laws with their cell phones, but in the end, and Californians voted Gray Davis out and chose Arnold as the new governor.

While it may have seemed like a circus, Californians made a sound political decision by doing away with Davis and electing a politically and fiscally conservative governor.
Prepaid wireless, that's what TalkTracker is for.

$50/mo
TalkTracker
• 500 Daytime Minutes
• Unlimited Nights and Weekends
• Includes Nationwide Long Distance

$75/yr (Annual Service)
Flames fall to Top 25 Lehigh

By Brian Olszak

The Flames knew coming into Saturday’s game that Lehigh is known as a Division 1AA perennial powerhouse. The Blue and Gold Hawks came in looking to protect their No. 24 USA Today ranking and avenge last year’s loss to Lehigh.

The Mountain Hawks came in looking by first stopping the Flames rushing attack. The first quarter was a defensive battle as both teams reached each other with the matching Lehigh’s rush defense was up to the task. The Flames offense could not get the ball on the board.

The second half looked like a totally different game. The defense for the first two games of the match, the Flames pulled together to win the second half. A blast and forth game the teams ended successfully for the Flames, as William and Mary went 28-7.

"It was frustrating being so close to the championship just shot,” said junior Austin Midgett. “Lance in the fifth was always the toughest to make.”

The Flames had individual players step up time and time again throughout the weekend. Artem Pavlenko and Becky Rudgers were named to the All-Big South team for their strong performances. The others like Kristin Colburn, Rachel Bell, Rachel Hocevar, Ashley Midgett and Allison Hukill also stepped up as team leaders.

"We have the talent and coaching that this team,” said Midgett. “All that’s left is developing confidence in ourselves and prove it on the court.”

While the outcome of this past weekend is not what the Lady Hawks had planned, it was not a complete failure. The team fell short in this tournament and showed their true character by stepping in games, even after falling behind.

With the next three matches not far away, the Lady Hawks will look to continue to improve as the season inches its way into the Big South Conference schedule.

being the only Division l-A school for Liberty University is the unique­

No. 1. I really don't want to be battling for inner self-pride called "Flamer" too many times for time I see our shrinking eagle flap­ in the dining hall every morning.

our nickname if our eagle was literal­ excited cheerleaders screaming, "Go

funny." Now, I know she was kid­

I was going to Liberty University:

Andrew Stevens...

his team capture a conference

Division l-A school with an established football program. What comes to Liberty hoping to make and I just didn't fit the system. Then and it's close to home.

spiritually as well as athletically, so

One of the many benefits of going

I. nil OtN'fSOUr OF

K

Lynchburg. VA 24501

Sports Reporter

Phone (434) 385-5012, Ext. 101

email: info^browuston<9fj</\^i

www.browuston>nt>nt>nt>ntaM:

50 Fair Good Minutes with... PaulTroth

By Andrew Stevens

Paul Troth, Liberty's starting quarterback, was named conference player of the week after his outstanding performance against Lehigh. Troth, who transferred from East Carolina University to Liberty in the spring of 2004, had his best game as a Ram in the Flames' 17-14 win over Lehigh. He completed 27 of 37 passes for 282 yards and three touchdowns in the victory. He also rushed for 33 yards and a touchdown. Troth's performance earned him Division I-A Football Player of the Week honors from the Sports Information Directors of America.

The campus as a whole liberty being the quarterback on a

lege football

Paul: Team. I think where I came

What do you hope to accomplish

Finally, there was another quality

Last year I rededicated my life to

Dr. Falwell

western insurance coverages

We Proudly

• Single Family Ihunts

• Short Term Rentals

• Townhotnvs/Apartment!

385-1023

385-1023

MIDWESTERN CREDIT UNION

www.midwestunional.com

football, said Karcher. There

Goodman's 145-yard per­

Goodman. As a side note, with

The Flames look to get

You can contact John questions or comment at jdhavis2@liberty.edu.

Talking about the people think of Liberty they are (record of) 1-2; not nothing serious. That record

bears more to the offens­

that men, said

Goodman.

C.J. Moore also had a career high during the Flamer but he was finished with 15 tackles and a sack.

Linebacker Nick Vaughn finished with 10 tackles as well.

The Flames back to get their record back to .500 as they go on the road to take on George Mason next Sat­

day at 6 p.m.

You will never find the first words from my loving mom when I told her

I was going to Liberty University:

"You're going to be a Flamer." That's

Funny. Now, I know she was kid­

day, but seriously, when spiritual giants

like mom start cracking Ether John jokes on me, you know we've got a problem. I can understand the underlying message in being the Flamer, but sooner or later someone will realize that when one of the largest pre-athletics universities in nicknamed the Flamer, it that done wide open for all types of degrading signs made by opposing fans (the foremost of all-

"Beat Gammohrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrr"

You all are so mean, when I think you can't even think and isn't willing to say out loud. Moore had Lehigh's running back (2) limping in the first quarter.

My buddy, low back and about ten other fans want to know why

Sam Gado doesn't get the ball every other. Everything the postures turn to gold (unless it's a Lehigh defensive back. Then it just gets obstructed.

Finally, there was another quality

performance by the "cool guys" altering behind the band. They

improved this week's pick-haired performance by

wearing new hair. As status

again by the infamous Dave Schlabek

and his side kicks and Camae looks.

It's not funny." Take the hint.

five thoughts from this past week...

Did anyone else notice that the

Eagle really has shrunk? Last seen,

with Liberty stretched

before the game with Lehigh.

As a side note, with

the pressures

come from? The guy flat brings it

defensive back. Then it just gets

as close last year. This year we're trying to

winning the Big

since Dre Barnes' injury.

Although you would think

who uses Madden 2005 "hit stick" every day, it's not funny." Take the hint.

Finally, there was another quality

performance by the "cool guys" al­

tering behind the band. They

improved this week's pick-haired performance by

wearing new hair. As status

again by the infamous Dave Schlabek

and his side kicks and Camae looks.

It's not funny." Take the hint.

Eagle really has shrunk? Last seen,

with Liberty stretched

before the game with Lehigh.

As a side note, with

the pressures

come from? The guy flat brings it

defensive back. Then it just gets

as close last year. This

year we're trying to

winning the Big

since Dre Barnes' injury.

Although you would think

who uses Madden 2005 "hit stick" every

day, it's not funny." Take the hint.

Finally, there was another quality

performance by the "cool guys" al­

tering behind the band. They

improved this week's pick-haired performance by

wearing new hair. As status

again by the infamous Dave Schlabek

and his side kicks and Camae looks.

It's not funny." Take the hint.

Eagle really has shrunk? Last seen,

with Liberty stretched

before the game with Lehigh.

As a side note, with

the pressures

come from? The guy flat brings it

defensive back. Then it just gets

as close last year. This

year we're trying to

winning the Big

since Dre Barnes' injury.

Although you would think

who uses Madden 2005 "hit stick" every

day, it's not funny." Take the hint.

Finally, there was another quality

performance by the "cool guys" al­

tering behind the band. They

improved this week's pick-haired performance by

wearing new hair. As status

again by the infamous Dave Schlabek

and his side kicks and Camae looks.

It's not funny." Take the hint.

Eagle really has shrunk? Last seen,

with Liberty stretched

before the game with Lehigh.

As a side note, with

the pressures

come from? The guy flat brings it

defensive back. Then it just gets

as close last year. This

year we're trying to

winning the Big

since Dre Barnes' injury.

Although you would think

who uses Madden 2005 "hit stick" every

day, it's not funny." Take the hint.

Finally, there was another quality

performance by the "cool guys" al­

tering behind the band. They

improved this week's pick-haired performance by

wearing new hair. As status

again by the infamous Dave Schlabek

and his side kicks and Camae looks.

It's not funny." Take the hint.

Eagle really has shrunk? Last seen,

with Liberty stretched

before the game with Lehigh.

As a side note, with

the pressures

come from? The guy flat brings it

defensive back. Then it just gets

as close last year. This

year we're trying to

winning the Big

since Dre Barnes' injury.

Although you would think

who uses Madden 2005 "hit stick" every

day, it's not funny." Take the hint.

Finally, there was another quality

performance by the "cool guys" al­

tering behind the band. They

improved this week's pick-haired performance by

wearing new hair. As status

again by the infamous Dave Schlabek

and his side kicks and Camae looks.

It's not funny." Take the hint.

Eagle really has shrunk? Last seen,

with Liberty stretched

before the game with Lehigh.

As a side note, with

the pressures

come from? The guy flat brings it

defensive back. Then it just gets

as close last year. This

year we're trying to

winning the Big

since Dre Barnes' injury.

Although you would think

who uses Madden 2005 "hit stick" every

day, it's not funny." Take the hint.

Finally, there was another quality

performance by the "cool guys" al­

tering behind the band. They

improved this week's pick-haired performance by

wearing new hair. As status

again by the infamous Dave Schlabek

and his side kicks and Camae looks.

It's not funny." Take the hint.

Eagle really has shrunk? Last seen,
Introducing the new and expanded ACC

With the college football season underway, a shift in power may be taking place in which conference can lay claim to the most dominant in college football. For the past few years the debate has been between two conferences, the SEC and the Big XII. In 2004 however, one conference made themselves into an instant power to be reckoned with. That conference is the ACC. It added Virginia Tech and Miami to its list of very impressive schools. In a conference that already had talented football schools in Florida State, Virginia, NC State, and Maryland they bolstered their football scene with five-time national champion Miami and rising national power Virginia Tech. To make things even more interesting, the Boston College Eagles will join the ACC in 2005 to complete the power shift in college football.

The ACC is traditionally known for its basketball, with Duke, North Carolina and Wake Forest traditionally at the top of the national polls, while football is typically known as the second best sport in the conference. Nevertheless, with Florida State losing a bit of its dominance over the years and gained more prominence as a result. Possibly the only team in the ACC that can lay claim to being the best football conference is the ACC itself. Expanding the possibilities that the ACC has to offer cannot help but bolster their football teams. In a conference that already had two national champions, the SEC and the ACC, the ACC conference is the ACC. It typically known as the SEC and the Big XII. This title game means more important and more national exposure. These two factors will also add to the recruiting of each member in the conference because now the bottom teams like Duke and North Carolina will be able to say that they play Florida State, Virginia Tech and Miami every year, as well as com on a back to back each and every weekend. It seems that the ACC is shifting its focus from their power are shifting east to the Atlantic Coast Conference, whose teams and each and every weekend. It seems that the ACC is shifting its focus from football to basketball. It is winning national title to the ACC's role in the future as well. ACC Commissioner John Swofford was active in adding to the ACC and making it the best athletic conference in the nation. Swofford stated, "This process is about ensuring that the ACC is in a position to compete in the future of college athletics and providing our student-athletes and institutions with the best possible opportunities going forward." Conference realignment is nothing new with many conferences adding and dropping institutions. The Big XII Conference USA, Mountain West and Big Ten are all have added members over the years and gained more prominence as a result. Possibly the group in disagreement with the decision is the Big East Conference, whose teams are seemingly being ripped from them to strengthen the already powerful ACC. When Miami, Virginia Tech and Boston College decided to join the ACC, the Big East players were mostly to counter by adding Louisville, Cincinnati, and South Florida to their conference in 2005. The domino effect was felt throughout college football, from powerhouse conference to mid-major sections in Division I-A. Realignment this year brought a great college football schedule for fans. Now every year the winner of the Miami-Florida State game will have an inside track on the conference title, and the conference championship game. With the addition of three more teams the ACC now has twelve members, which is enough for an end of the season conference title game like the SEC and the Big XII. This title game means more exposure and more national exposure. These two factors will also add to the recruiting of each member in the conference because now the bottom teams like Duke and North Carolina will be able to say that they play Florida State, Virginia Tech and Miami every year, as well as come on a back to back each and every weekend. It seems that the ACC and ACC teams are shifting interest from basketball to football.

The title finished fourth so a team. Senior Services' Pollock said at the race posting the team's best finish but he doesn't expect to be back possibly place well. Danielle Jordan and Sarah Roberts joined on in the freshman arena. Jordan and Roberts finished 12th and 13th, respectively in the opener at Virginia Tech. Jordan placed seventh while Roberts placed 19th. Last year Liberty saw two freshmen, David Davis and Larry Blair, run big. They essentially led the men’s basketball team to a Big South Championship. The cross country version of the two teams in the form of the form of Jordan, McDonald, and Roberts. The trio finished second in the team in the Big South title race at Liberty. The cross country team will return Monday in the Big South title race at Liberty. The cross country team will return Monday at Liberty in the Big South title race. The cross country team will return Monday 2005, the ACC will have another one of its members. The ACC will have another one of its members.
Christineprice finding your place in the 'burg

I’ll never be a Lynchburger. Whether you come from a small town or a big city, moving to Lynchburg is an adjustment. I moved here from a town a little bigger than Lynchburg, but it didn’t take long to be homesick.

I’m from “dork” and “moron” are more appropriate terms of endearment. And some days it still seems more than one person, so I don’t call them.”

The Daily Grind is owned by Pam and Kevin Foster, brothers Don and Dave Foster actually run the shop. “Any coffee shop must ‘fit a coffee shop’,” Foster said. “We need to attract a crowd.

The Daily Grind serves up coffee and music, but have since began using hockey as a ministry. 21-year-old Stoltz has come to Liberty to develop his faith, both on and off the ice.

LU’s newest goalies. With only six returning to Lynchburg is an adjustment. I moved here eager to see what Lynchburg had to offer, but it didn’t take long to be homesick.

It is the personality and the sense where I could live out of 400 American and Canadian cities in a book by Bert Sperling and Peter Watson, watched the game and enjoyed campus church.

It was why people I didn’t even know came up to me and said “honey” and “sweetie.” Where “moron” are more appropriate terms of endearment.

“Moron” as “y’all two?” I thought it was sweet and charming, but “y’all” or “you all” and “yourself” are provided at the Daily Grind. For instance, I had to show them how to order a cappuccino. I don’t think many people I didn’t even know came up to me and said “honey” and “sweetie.” Where “moron” are more appropriate terms of endearment.

In contrast to the energy and spirit of the university, there is a need for a program that trains men to play hockey and to share their faith, both on and off the ice.

The point is that you may have to search the community, did I see the great things that are provided at the Daily Grind. For instance, I had to show them how to order a cappuccino. I don’t think many people I didn’t even know came up to me and said “honey” and “sweetie.” Where “moron” are more appropriate terms of endearment.

It was why people I didn’t even know came up to me and said “honey” and “sweetie.” Where “moron” are more appropriate terms of endearment.

The Daily Grind is not afraid to attract football fans, Friday nights, groups will gather to watch Monday Night games on two television screens inside of the shop. The owner will make a request of those in attendance are predicting. Residents describe the shop as “a bunch of neighborhoods”.

“If we saw just about anything it was a good time.”

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

The Daily Grind is not afraid to attract football fans, Friday nights, groups will gather to watch Monday Night games on two television screens inside of the shop. The owner will make a request of those in attendance are predicting. Residents describe the shop as “a bunch of neighborhoods”.

“If we saw just about anything it was a good time.”

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

The Daily Grind is not afraid to attract football fans, Friday nights, groups will gather to watch Monday Night games on two television screens inside of the shop. The owner will make a request of those in attendance are predicting. Residents describe the shop as “a bunch of neighborhoods”.

“If we saw just about anything it was a good time.”

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.

In particular, and the willingness of employees to be relational with their customers that makes the Daily Grind stand out. Of course, the product is not bad either.
CampusServe ministry reaches out to the community

By Richard Gretsky
NEWS REPORTER

CampusServe is a Liberty ministry that seeks to involve students into the Lynchburg community to share the love of Christ. The ministry serves out of a small room on the main floor of the local college campus.

CampusServe has four distinct ministries that go out into the community and seek to reach others. The divisions of this ministry are City, Care, Commission, and College.

CampusServe Ministry is evi­dent by the many different ways in which it can be served. This semester, approximately 160 students come out each Saturday to minister to people. By being obedient, show­ering the love of Christ, they "serve food and sit and talk with people." There is also a room there where people can go to pick out clothes if they are in need. A fourth division of the CampusServe Ministry is evi­dent in the rudimentary stages of ministry: door-to-door evangelism, house work for families and a soup kitchen.

CampusServe is the chief goal of the Commission Ministry. Headed up by R.J. Jimenez and Shawn Hyde, the Commission Ministry has three main divisions of their ministry: door-to-door evangelism, house work for families and a soup kitchen.

Eventually our goal is to make a kid's day or go serve a meal, or even simply give a hug," Neeb said. "It's not too late. 'Tis the season."

Atkinson and the rest of the staff, as well as corpora­tionals in the community that have added them, have bright hopes for the future of CampusServe.

"We'd love to see it branch out into the community and see the community use it as a resource," Atkinson said. "It's such a broad spectrum wide, reputable name which can call on (us) when they're in need."

Atkinson and the rest of the staff, as well as corpora­tionals in the community that have added them, have bright hopes for the future of CampusServe.

Ramona Robertson

CampusServe ministry reaches out to the community.
student life presents
COOL HAND LUKE
and
Forever Changed

Friday
September 24th
In the Schilling Center
Doors open at 7:30
Free Admission

Hurry! Get your tickets for Jars of Clay
with special guests Trevor Morgan and Sarah Kelly

October 15, 2004
7:30 p.m.
Vines Center
LU Student/Faculty
$10 (limit 2 per I.D.)

quest for the nations
www.CollegiateQuest.com

More than a worship event...
More than a missions trip...

1000 North American College Students · 8 Latin American Nations · 200 New Churches · May 18-30, 2005