Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.liberty.edu/paper_05_06

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.liberty.edu/paper_05_06/3

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Liberty University School Newspaper at Scholars Crossing. It has been accepted for inclusion in 2005 -- 2006 by an authorized administrator of Scholars Crossing. For more information, please contact scholarlycommunications@liberty.edu.
President Rice?
Condoelleza right person for president in '08

Healthy Eating
Life! gives tips for staying healthy in college

Student government elects new leaders

By Tanya Whelly
If you have enjoyed being able to wear jeans and flip-flops this semester, you can thank the Student Government Association.

SGA held their annual elections on Sept. 8, ushering eight new students into office.

"People were lined up all the way down the hall (at the election)," says SGA president Chris Gaumer.

The meeting, held in DeMoss Lobby, was one of the SGA's largest, according to Gaumer, who was elected Student Government President last April. He has played a major role in getting the dress code changed. The purpose of the student government is "to let the administration know what the students want done," says Gaumer. "I am excited to be a part of this great opportunity," said freshman Vice President Meghan Kirkpatrick. "This year, my goal is to be there for my fellow students in order to make their voices heard. I want to pass with them, listen to them, and need to their needs."

The SGA's plans for this fall include hosting Student Life with a Homecoming weekend bonfire, a football season ticket in cooperation with Sodexo and their largest event, Battle of the Bands, which will be taking place on Nov. 12. This winter, they are planning a canned food drive and are hoping to take part in the Lynchburg City Christmas parade.

Besides putting on activities for the campus and community, the SGA works to ensure communication between students and the administration. The mission statement for the SGA reads, "To act as a bridge between the Liberty University student body and the Liberty University administration."
Lynchburg Regional Airport takes flight amidst Delta woes

By Matthew Warner

Lynchburg Regional Airport officials say the facility could soon be more competitive.

Director Mark Courtney, Lynchburg Regional's director, says the airport can compete with larger facilities.

"They have to increase in size, including the runway," Courtney said. "The (current) runways have to increase in size, including the taxiway."
Continued from page 1

“To accomplish its mission the SGA has been involved in student government concerns. It is comforting to know that I had some say in what changes they will rally for in the next year,” Heather Shilton, who served as a senator before becoming Senior Class President, says she would like to gather ideas from students in different areas on campus, whether it be "what students who live on the circle or on campus east. "We want to do things for the campus itself," says Shilton. "We want to make the school beautiful."

"What's significant to the students parking is food," says Junior Class President Chad Campbell. In addition to making the food better at the dining hall, Campbell says he would also like to see an extension of the Student Government Association’s Operation Identification aims to ward off thieves and let us meet our advertising needs.

"Things do get stolen and you'd have to know that I had my computer engraved as well as some jewelry that was given to me by my family," Hirsch says. "I am very happy with how things have turned out since the last time I attended Liberty University," sophomore Breanne France, who recently applied for the student senator seat. "It's a lot of fun, and I have made some amazing people." Those newly elected also include Vice President Misty Gilze, Vice President Mike Hewitt, President Justin Strode and Vice President Melinda Trotter. Freshman Class President Andrew Fordlightt.

Get involved with SGA

The SGA is affiliated with several clubs and organizations.

"The new Hunting and Fishing club "CroatanRevere".

Check out their site at http://www.liberty.edu/stu
dentral.html.

Contact Tanya Whelly at twhelly@liberty.edu.

Operation Identification aims to ward off thieves and aid in the recovery of lost or stolen items to their rightful owners.

"With the recent increase in the number of people who are on campus in the coming year, it is pouring in and they are spreading it toward other communities. A Chilliwack, now come to New Life."

"We want to do things for the campus itself," says Shilton. "We want to make the school beautiful."

"What's significant to the students parking is food," says Junior Class President Chad Campbell. In addition to making the food better at the dining hall, Campbell says he would also like to see an extension of the Student Government Association’s Operation Identification aims to ward off thieves and let us meet our advertising needs.

"Things do get stolen and you'd have to know that I had my computer engraved as well as some jewelry that was given to me by my family," Hirsch says. "I am very happy with how things have turned out since the last time I attended Liberty University," sophomore Breanne France, who recently applied for the student senator seat. "It's a lot of fun, and I have made some amazing people." Those newly elected also include Vice President Misty Gilze, Vice President Mike Hewitt, President Justin Strode and Vice President Melinda Trotter. Freshman Class President Andrew Fordlightt.

Get involved with SGA

The SGA is affiliated with several clubs and organizations.

"The new Hunting and Fishing club "CroatanRevere".

Check out their site at http://www.liberty.edu/stu
dentral.html.

Contact Tanya Whelly at twhelly@liberty.edu.

Operation Identification aims to ward off thieves and aid in the recovery of lost or stolen items to their rightful owners.

"With the recent increase in the number of people who are on campus in the coming year, it is pouring in and they are spreading it toward other communities. A Chilliwack, now come to New Life."

"We want to do things for the campus itself," says Shilton. "We want to make the school beautiful."

"What's significant to the students parking is food," says Junior Class President Chad Campbell. In addition to making the food better at the dining hall, Campbell says he would also like to see an extension of the Student Government Association’s Operation Identification aims to ward off thieves and let us meet our advertising needs.

"Things do get stolen and you'd have to know that I had my computer engraved as well as some jewelry that was given to me by my family," Hirsch says. "I am very happy with how things have turned out since the last time I attended Liberty University," sophomore Breanne France, who recently applied for the student senator seat. "It's a lot of fun, and I have made some amazing people." Those newly elected also include Vice President Misty Gilze, Vice President Mike Hewitt, President Justin Strode and Vice President Melinda Trotter. Freshman Class President Andrew Fordlightt.

Get involved with SGA

The SGA is affiliated with several clubs and organizations.

"The new Hunting and Fishing club "CroatanRevere".

Check out their site at http://www.liberty.edu/stu
dentral.html.

Contact Tanya Whelly at twhelly@liberty.edu.

Operation Identification aims to ward off thieves and aid in the recovery of lost or stolen items to their rightful owners.
Homecoming festivities coming to LU

Chelsea Franklin

Come home. There is a time to unite with family members and heed the call to return home. The Liberty University family acknowledges that time, while adding a special meaning to the common expression, “homecoming.”

During the 2005 Liberty University Homecoming, the main goal is to ensure that administration, faculty, staff, current students and alumni alike will have the opportunity to enjoy their Christ-centered, campus home and University family Sept. 30 to Oct. 1.

The events scheduled for this year’s homecoming may be similar to years past. Many changes have been made to the alumni activities in hopes to make the events more family oriented and comfortable, allowing alumni as well as their families to feel like they are welcome.

“We want the whole family to come and see what God is doing here at Liberty University. We believe that God placed presidents and current students here for a reason, and it is our firm belief that the alumni will be the spiritual and financial backbone of the University for years to come,” said Director of Alumni Affairs Andy Barrick.

Pre-registered alumni are to check-in upon arrival and will receive a T-shirt, coffee mug, decals for their vehicle and family membership for admittance to each event.

Scheduled for Friday night, Sept. 30, 8 to 11 p.m. is the Alumni Block Party. The event, for alumni only, will be held in front of the Luhrs student center. The dinner buffet will be catered by Pearl’s Seafood of Wilmington, N.C. Different Liberty music groups are scheduled to perform, and Dr. Ed Dobson will talk to the alumni. Dobson will be followed by Dr. Jerry Falwell, who will pray and then address the crowd with a message of the week speech on what is new or in progress on the campus of Liberty University.

Beginning at 9 a.m. in the David’s Place parking area will be the annual LU bonfire and marshmallow roast. “The annual bonfire is an LU tradition and an opportunity to hang out with friends, listen to live music and enjoy the event,” Barrick said.

Students are reminded that University parking in the David’s Place parking area so traffic is an issue and we promise we don’t block off anything we don’t have to. "Let’s all remember that with LU as our Alma Mater—whether a current student or alumni, we have shared in a vision. I think students can best show hospitality and gratitude to alumni by interacting as members of an LU family,” Richards said.

It is the hope of the University that events like these will help unite the current student body to the alumni. Richards believes current students and alumni will feel “sama- redeemed and pride knowing they have shared in the growth and development of something substantial,” Richards said.

Alumni events will continue on for the remainder of the day on Oct. 1. From 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. will be the alumni cookout. “There will be tents set up for the various schools and departments where Alumni and student meet with friends and family. There will be indoor infant care for this event as well,” Barrick said.

The Alumni Carnival, the last event scheduled for alumni during homecoming, will be from 3 to 9 p.m. The carnival will feature concession stands, popcorn, cotton candy and rides for children. The event is targeted toward children, so they can have fun at.

Contact Chelsea Franklin at cfranklin@liberty.edu.

Alumni events will continue on for the remainder of the day on Oct. 1. From 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. will be the alumni cookout. “There will be tents set up for the various schools and departments where Alumni and student meet with friends and family. There will be indoor infant care for this event as well,” Barrick said.

The Alumni Carnival, the last event scheduled for alumni during homecoming, will be from 3 to 9 p.m. The carnival will feature concession stands, popcorn, cotton candy and rides for children. The event is targeted toward children, so they can have fun at.

Contact Chelsea Franklin at cfranklin@liberty.edu.

"We want Liberty University to be a place for the entire family. My utmost goal is to change the alumni mindset to allow them to see that it is a privilege to give back to the university,” Barrick said.

Current Liberty students have the great advantage of having homecoming as a time to show alumni that their support is important. “There are stages for each student, the stage when they are choosing a college or university, the stage when they attend that college or university, and eventually a stage when they leave. Current students will eventually be alumni and it is our hope that current students and alumni alike will always feel they have a place at LU,” Richards said.

Get everything for your dorm room at Wal-Mart.com and still afford tuition.

Contact Chelsea Franklin at cfranklin@liberty.edu.
It's not a secret today that several of the controversial issues have in the United States, many of which directly affect our personal lives as citizens, are being decided more and more in the Supreme Court. For many conservatives, the Supreme Court has been a battle ground in recent years in which many battles have been lost. Issues that should be decided by the people and their elected representatives are now being decided by nine appointed judges. With two vacancies on the court, the first in vacancies in 11 years, President George W. Bush has a chance to shift the court's liberal legacy, and John Roberts is the man for the job.

In July, the president announced his nomination of John Roberts who would now take the place of Chief Justice Rehnquist, instead of Sandra Day O'Connor. Most conservatives are optimistic about the president's choice, believing that he will be a crucial key in tilting the court back to the right.

If one looks at the history of judges appointed to the Supreme Court by Republicans in the past, one would find that many of them are not as conservative as they once were perceived, some turning out not to be conservative at all. For example, Justice John Stevens was nominated by President Ford. Justice Anthony Kennedy and Sandra Day O'Connor by President Reagan and Justice Stevens by George H.W. Bush.

Given the past, what solid conclusions can we make about John Roberts? For the most part, conservatives have many reasons to be optimistic. In 1991, Roberts, co-authored a brief representing the government in Roe v. Sullivan. The most controversial part of this brief, to the pro-choice community, was a position that referred to the unconstitutionality of Roe v. Wade. It states, "we continue to believe that Roe was wrongly decided and should be overruled...The Court's conclusion in Roe that there is a fundamental right to abortion is wrong...We support in the text, structure, or history of the Constitution."

Roberts has also proved to be rule conservatively since appointed to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. circuit in 1986. He has consistently held that congressional environmental groups when in any way he dis­agreed with the court's ruling to uphold the government's power to control pollutants, for example. He has been reported as saying that the Environmental Protection Agency is "the most powerful agency in the land".

So is there any reason to have doubts about Roberts? One of his critics, a brief that Roberts co-authored in the Rust v. Sullivan had raised many concerns in the Senate, of course, was the issue of whether the bill was constitutional. Roberts finally voted against the constitutionality of the bill in the appeals court. Roberts responded that he was serving as "an advocate for a hypothetical client." Even more interesting was his statement about Roe v. Wade. When asked if he would overturn it, he stated that Roe v. Wade is "the settled law of the land" and "there is nothing in my personal views that would prevent me from fully and faithfully applying precedent." As shocking as this statement could be to conservatives, we should remember that John Roberts has made clear that he has no presuppositions or agenda. If conservatives can bring abortion before the Supreme Court, we can expect an open, objective judge to hear our arguments.

Another concern could be raised in his participation in the case of Romer v. Evans. If people don't know big a deal this case was to the homosexual community, attorney Susan Goldvein of Lambda Legal's "national law and policy program committed to the recognition of the civil rights of lesbians, gay men, bisexuals, transgender people..." stated that Romer v. Evans "is the single most positive Supreme Court ruling in the history of the gay rights movement."

There is no reason to have doubts about Roberts. We should be optimistic. It's not a secret today that it is a conservative. Still, one could argue that no matter how far he may have spent in that most court, he still contributed to a case that has proven to be a huge contribution to the homophile agenda. Our conclusion about John Roberts and the future of the Supreme Court is up to you. It is my opinion that he will be confirmed as the next Chief Justice and perform his duties just as he is expected to perform. I, as a liberal and American need to pay for John Roberts and pray for President Bush as he decides who will appoint him next. His position will have an unprecedented effect on the people of Iraq and the terrorist threat. In short, many pre­sumptions or agendas. If conservatives can bring abortion before the Supreme Court, we can expect an open, objective judge to hear our arguments.

Iraq pullout would be a major setback for human rights

Many liberals went on to pull out of Iraq. They believe the freedom that so many of our people are fighting for around the world is not worth it to them. Even worse, they are fighting to get away from their duties that make them work for the Iraq people who are trying to build a democratic society. They forget the reason for the U.S. involvement in Iraq was to give Iraq's a chance to prosper. If Iraq is a failed state, is there anything in my personal rights that we enjoy. While protesting the war for Iraq's freedom, liberals preach about the importance of human rights back home. Here in the U.S., we are making marriage, Same-sex marriages available to women, and decriminalizing the use of drugs. These are improvements that are throwing into India and the struggle seems pointless when lives are lost. The war in Iraq are not being compromised. We always hear liberals whine about pretense human rights back home. They are self-consciously censoring our ideas. They do not want to infringe on the rights of others. There is much less to go with this. I want to know about the human rights that the people of Iraq now enjoy. They should also appreciate the struggle, even if it means we have to go to war. For example, Americans have been the most enthusiastic supporter — you have to agree that Iraq is better for us now. Liberals should be thrilled about the human rights that the people of Iraq now enjoy. They should also appreciate the struggle we made in this conflict. The citizens of Iraq now enjoy freedom, independence, and rule of law. They have been able to achieve their goals. Americans have been able to achieve their goals.

Iraqis must be thrilled about the human rights that the people of Iraq now enjoy. They should also appreciate the struggle we made in this conflict. The citizens of Iraq now enjoy freedom, independence, and rule of law. They have been able to achieve their goals. Americans have been able to achieve their goals.

Liberals should be thrilled about the human rights that the people of Iraq now enjoy. They should also appreciate the struggle we made in this conflict. The citizens of Iraq now enjoy freedom, independence, and rule of law. They have been able to achieve their goals. Americans have been able to achieve their goals.

Contact Melanie at mimitroff@liberty.edu

Iraq pullout would be a major setback for human rights

Many liberals went on to pull out of Iraq. They believe the freedom that so many of our people are fighting for around the world is not worth it to them. Even worse, they are fighting to get away from their duties that make them work for the Iraq people who are trying to build a democratic society. They forget the reason for the U.S. involvement in Iraq was to give Iraq's a chance to prosper. If Iraq is a failed state, is there anything in my personal rights that we enjoy. While protesting the war for Iraq's freedom, liberals preach about the importance of human rights back home. Here in the U.S., we are making marriage, Same-sex marriages available to women, and decriminalizing the use of drugs. These are improvements that are throwing into India and the struggle seems pointless when lives are lost. The war in Iraq are not being compromised. We always hear liberals whine about pretense human rights back home. They are self-consciously censoring our ideas. They do not want to infringe on the rights of others. There is much less to go with this. I want to know about the human rights that the people of Iraq now enjoy. They should also appreciate the struggle, even if it means we have to go to war. For example, Americans have been the most enthusiastic supporter — you have to agree that Iraq is better for us now. Liberals should be thrilled about the human rights that the people of Iraq now enjoy. They should also appreciate the struggle we made in this conflict. The citizens of Iraq now enjoy freedom, independence, and rule of law. They have been able to achieve their goals. Americans have been able to achieve their goals.

Iraq pullout would be a major setback for human rights

Many liberals went on to pull out of Iraq. They believe the freedom that so many of our people are fighting for around the world is not worth it to them. Even worse, they are fighting to get away from their duties that make them work for the Iraq people who are trying to build a democratic society. They forget the reason for the U.S. involvement in Iraq was to give Iraq's a chance to prosper. If Iraq is a failed state, is there anything in my personal rights that we enjoy. While protesting the war for Iraq's freedom, liberals preach about the importance of human rights back home. Here in the U.S., we are making marriage, Same-sex marriages available to women, and decriminalizing the use of drugs. These are improvements that are throwing into India and the struggle seems pointless when lives are lost. The war in Iraq are not being compromised. We always hear liberals whine about pretense human rights back home. They are self-consciously censoring our ideas. They do not want to infringe on the rights of others. There is much less to go with this. I want to know about the human rights that the people of Iraq now enjoy. They should also appreciate the struggle, even if it means we have to go to war. For example, Americans have been the most enthusiastic supporter — you have to agree that Iraq is better for us now. Liberals should be thrilled about the human rights that the people of Iraq now enjoy. They should also appreciate the struggle we made in this conflict. The citizens of Iraq now enjoy freedom, independence, and rule of law. They have been able to achieve their goals. Americans have been able to achieve their goals.
"In Dr. Rice, the world will see the strength, the grace and the decency of our country..."

George W. Bush
AT THE NOMINATION OF DR. RICE FOR SECRETARY OF STATE

Commander Condoleezza Rice
Dr. Rice the right woman to lead America

Today, in 2005, progress has penetrated every aspect of America's moral, ethical and political philosophy. Some say that this progress is altogether bad. In fact, many of us "conservationists" fall within the bounds of that category. However, there is one aspect of public life where I think progress has finally come far enough to offer a new undertaking. This new undertaking is electing an African-American woman to the office of President of the United States. Her name is Dr. Condoleezza Rice. Currently, the Secretary of State to the Bush administration, Condoleezza Rice has earned a reputation of a fighter who is steadfast in her beliefs and loyal to her friends. Through events such as the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, the way in Iraq and a devastating hurricane, Rice has proven that the public looks to for steadfast support and leadership in such circumstances.

Regardless of your opinion on the current way that Iraq is being handled, it is hardly possible to claim that Rice was not among the frontrunners in support of dismantling Saddam Hussein. On Dec. 8, 2002, Rice testified before the commission saying "We wanted to ensure there was no respite in the fight against al-Qaeda. On its operational level, we decided immediately to continue to pursue the Clinton administration's covert action and other efforts to fight the network." It is doubtful there is anyone in the Bush cabinet who could handle such a situation with as much tact as the National Security Adviser.

On a more personal level, having grown up in Birmingham, Ala., in the 1950s, Rice has overcome the gravest of trials and segregation to become the woman she is today. Her parents taught her that through education and actions with, she could change the life she desired. It was this mentality that allowed her to graduate from high school at 15 years old, and then graduate cum laude from the University of Denver at the age of 19. In short order, this woman who propelled herself through her master's and doctorate program. At a mere 26 years old, Rice became a fellow at Stanford University's Centre for Security and Arms Control. From this, we see a determined individual who worked her way up from humble beginnings to the office she occupies now. The life of Rice truly embodies the American dream.

Regrettably, the American dream has in past times been much more difficult for some to achieve than others. One of the darkest shadows that will forever haunt the American history books is that of racism, segregation and slavery. The Civil Rights movement has come a long way, but the office of the presidency is a literal and symbolic representation of where this country stands. What greater moment in freedom's history would there be than when an African-American takes the oath of this country's highest office? Indeed, a mile from where Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. delivered his "I Have a Dream" speech 40 years ago? The racial barrier to the presidency is one that must be broken down, and Rice affords us a golden opportunity to do so. Another barrier that Rice would be breaking if elected to the presidency would be the history of all male presidents. I see this as an even greater barrier than race. Those who would still be ignorant and foolish enough to actually believe that the color of one's skin should determine their opportunities are now a small number of naive bigots. The common argument I have heard when mentioning Rice as a presidential candidate is the possible negative perceptions by foreign countries. There are still many countries, including many in the middle east, who would no doubt look down upon a woman president, possibly to the point of refusing negotiations. Even if this was the case, the United States should never lower our standards of freedom and equality. The world must know that when we claim equal opportunity for all, no government administrative office is exempt.

Rice now possesses both the academic credentials and the experience necessary to lead this country. Through some of the worst conditions, both personally and professionally, she has risen above and handled herself in a manner that would no doubt look down upon a woman president, possibly to the point of refusing negotiations. Even if this was the case, the United States should never lower our standards of freedom and equality. The world must know that when we claim equal opportunity for all, no government administrative office is exempt.

Rice now possesses both the academic credentials and the experience necessary to lead this country. Through some of the worst conditions, both personally and professionally, she has risen above and handled herself in a manner that would no doubt look down upon a woman president, possibly to the point of refusing negotiations. Even if this was the case, the United States should never lower our standards of freedom and equality. The world must know that when we claim equal opportunity for all, no government administrative office is exempt.

 today, in 2005, progress has penetrated every aspect of America's moral, ethical and political philosophy. Some say that this progress is altogether bad. In fact, many of us "conservationists" fall within the bounds of that category. However, there is one aspect of public life where I think progress has finally come far enough to offer a new undertaking. This new undertaking is electing an African-American woman to the office of President of the United States. Her name is Dr. Condoleezza Rice. Currently, the Secretary of State to the Bush administration, Condoleezza Rice has earned a reputation of a fighter who is steadfast in her beliefs and loyal to her friends. Through events such as the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, the way in Iraq and a devastating hurricane, Rice has proven that the public looks to for steadfast support and leadership in such circumstances.

Regardless of your opinion on the current way that Iraq is being handled, it is hardly possible to claim that Rice was not among the frontrunners in support of dismantling Saddam Hussein. On Dec. 8, 2002, Rice testified before the commission saying "We wanted to ensure there was no respite in the fight against al-Qaeda. On its operational level, we decided immediately to continue to pursue the Clinton administration's covert action and other efforts to fight the network." It is doubtful there is anyone in the Bush cabinet who could handle such a situation with as much tact as the National Security Adviser.

On a more personal level, having grown up in Birmingham, Ala., in the 1950s, Rice has overcome the gravest of trials and segregation to become the woman she is today. Her parents taught her that through education and actions with, she could change the life she desired. It was this mentality that allowed her to graduate from high school at 15 years old, and then graduate cum laude from the University of Denver at the age of 19. In short order, this woman who propelled herself through her master's and doctorate program. At a mere 26 years old, Rice became a fellow at Stanford University's Centre for Security and Arms Control. From this, we see a determined individual who worked her way up from humble beginnings to the office she occupies now. The life of Rice truly embodies the American dream.

Regrettably, the American dream has in past times been much more difficult for some to achieve than others. One of the darkest shadows that will forever haunt the American history books is that of racism, segregation and slavery. The Civil Rights movement has come a long way, but the office of the presidency is a literal and symbolic representation of where this country stands. What greater moment in freedom's history would there be than when an African-American takes the oath of this country's highest office? Indeed, a mile from where Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. delivered his "I Have a Dream" speech 40 years ago? The racial barrier to the presidency is one that must be broken down, and Rice affords us a golden opportunity to do so. Another barrier that Rice would be breaking if elected to the presidency would be the history of all male presidents. I see this as an even greater barrier than race. Those who would still be ignorant and foolish enough to actually believe that the color of one's skin should determine their opportunities are now a small number of naive bigots. The common argument I have heard when mentioning Rice as a presidential candidate is the possible negative perceptions by foreign countries. There are still many countries, including many in the middle east, who would no doubt look down upon a woman president, possibly to the point of refusing negotiations. Even if this was the case, the United States should never lower our standards of freedom and equality. The world must know that when we claim equal opportunity for all, no government administrative office is exempt.

Rice now possesses both the academic credentials and the experience necessary to lead this country. Through some of the worst conditions, both personally and professionally, she has risen above and handled herself in a manner that would no doubt look down upon a woman president, possibly to the point of refusing negotiations. Even if this was the case, the United States should never lower our standards of freedom and equality. The world must know that when we claim equal opportunity for all, no government administrative office is exempt.

"Colin Powell should run because we need a moral Christian perspective in the white house."
--Cathy Felton, Fr.
Chesapeake, Va.

"Any conservative, middle-aged male who knows how to deal with terrorism."
--Noah Lee, Jr.
Kamiah, Idaho

"A Christian president... or anyone besides Hillary Clinton."
--Davidernest
Colony Heights, Va.

"A female (like) Hillary Clinton."
--Kamiah, Idaho

"A female (like) Hillary Clinton."
--Kamiah, Idaho

"Hillary Clinton...I perceive her as a qualified candidate for the 2008 presidential election."
--Katherine Niewoom, Sr.
Colonial Heights, Va.

"Colin Powell, because he could do something good for this country..."
--Katherine Niewoom, Sr.
Colonial Heights, Va.

"Colin Powell, because he could do something good for this country..."
--Katherine Niewoom, Sr.
Colonial Heights, Va.

"Colin Powell, because he could do something good for this country..."
--Katherine Niewoom, Sr.
Colonial Heights, Va.

"Colin Powell, because he could do something good for this country..."
--Katherine Niewoom, Sr.
Colonial Heights, Va.

"Colin Powell, because he could do something good for this country..."
--Katherine Niewoom, Sr.
 Colonial Heights, Va.

"Colin Powell, because he could do something good for this country..."
--Katherine Niewoom, Sr.
 Colonial Heights, Va.

"Colin Powell, because he could do something good for this country..."
--Katherine Niewoom, Sr.
 Colonial Heights, Va.

"Colin Powell, because he could do something good for this country..."
--Katherine Niewoom, Sr.
Toasted Razzback

By Nickolas

Last Friday night’s 2-1 win over Arkansas could be the turning point in the Lady Flames season. They were finally to get over the proverbial hump. After not being able to pull off the upset against Atlantic Coast Conference members N.C. State, Liberty was able to knock off the Lady Razorbacks of the South Eastern Conference.

The first was the equivalent of a heavyweight title fight with both fighters just feeling their way around and playing a couple of big shots here and there. The two teams went halfway tied at 0-0.

The game also marked the continuation of a Sourthern Conference title bid both the Flames and the Penguins in the Atlantic Coast. Since the first round, the Flames were upset against Atlantic Coast title fight with both fighters equivalent of a heavyweight Conference member N.C. Razorbacks of the South tied at 0-0.

As a result of the loss, the Flames seemed like it might be the nearest the Flames put together a second game as the Flames seemed to be marching down the field on their opening possession of the game. However, on a third-and-11, the Flames seemed to be at the 20-yard line. To make matters worse, the 15-yard drive that took only 1:37 ended with a pass from Zetta to Jamieson Evans, pushing Youngstown’s lead to 13-0 at the intermission.

After holding the Penguins on their opening possession of the second half, Liberty (1-5) seemed to be marching down the field towards the end zone. On its first drive of the quarter, a Zach Terrell pass on the middle for a 11-yard touchdown pass as he completed a 10-yard throw to the sideline to the fullback who found the end zone with 3:35 left in the third quarter. The Penguins made the last time that the Flames made a reference to the road to face seven.

The Flames Club’s purpose is to raise funds for the athletic programs and to underwrite scholarships for the university’s student-athletes. The Flames Club exists to underwrite LU athletic programs grow along with it, the cost of maintaining a competitive athletic program will also grow accordingly.

Please see FLAMES CLUB, page 82

March of the Penguins

By Todd Meurer

For just the second time in school history, the Flames have suffered back-to-back shutout losses as Liberty fell 47-14 to Youngstown State.

The last time that Liberty failed to score a point in two consecutive games was during the 1977 season when Liberty last shut out James Madison on October 29 and 27 at second-straight. Vernon the following weekend on November 4.

The game also marked the continuation of a Sourthern Conference title bid both the Flames and the Penguins in the Atlantic Coast. Since the first round, the Flames were upset against Atlantic Coast title fight with both fighters equivalent of a heavyweight Conference member N.C. Razorbacks of the South tied at 0-0.

As a result of the loss, the Flames seemed like it might be the nearest the Flames put together a second game as the Flames seemed to be marching down the field on their opening possession of the game. However, on a third-and-11, the Flames seemed to be at the 20-yard line. To make matters worse, the 15-yard drive that took only 1:37 ended with a pass from Zetta to Jamieson Evans, pushing Youngstown’s lead to 13-0 at the intermission.

After holding the Penguins on their opening possession of the second half, Liberty (1-5) seemed to be marching down the field towards the end zone. On its first drive of the quarter, a Zach Terrell pass on the middle for a 11-yard touchdown pass as he completed a 10-yard throw to the sideline to the fullback who found the end zone with 3:35 left in the third quarter. The Penguins made the last time that the Flames made a reference to the road to face seven.

The Flames Club’s purpose is to raise funds for the athletic programs and to underwrite scholarships for the university’s student-athletes. The Flames Club exists to underwrite LU athletic programs grow along with it, the cost of maintaining a competitive athletic program will also grow accordingly.

Please see FLAMES CLUB, page 82

By Josh Valllta

The Flames Club has a long history dating all the way to donations of $10,000 or more. The club was founded in the 1970s as the former Liberty Athletics while receiving personal invitations to luncheons every Tuesday to hear the coaches and athletes to enjoy a wide range of benefits including media). The Flames Club’s purpose is to raise funds for the athletic programs and to underwrite scholarships for the university’s student-athletes. The Flames Club exists to underwrite LU athletic programs grow along with it, the cost of maintaining a competitive athletic program will also grow accordingly.

For fans of Liberty Athletics that want to put their money where their mouths are, look to further than the Liberty Flames Club, the program through which one can financially support Liberty Athletics while receiving personal benefits simultaneously.

The Flames Club is run by students. "In terms of donations, some of us have personally contributed, while many others have actually made direct donations of $10,000 or more." With each level on the chart, members enjoy a wide range of benefits including media passes, preferred parking for athletic events and Flames Club pavilion members also invited to luncheons every Tuesday to hear from speakers from Liberty and other athletic network with other members.

However, according to Good, the greatest benefit is that you are being to the lives of student athletes and you're furthering the cause of LU athletics and strengthening the athletic program." As Liberty grows as a university and its athletic programs grow along with it, the cost of maintaining a competitive athletic program will also grow accordingly.

Please see FLAMES CLUB, page 82

Flames Club begins a new season

By Nickolas

For fans of Liberty Athletics that want to put their money where their mouths are, look to further than the Liberty Flames Club, the program through which one can financially support Liberty Athletics while receiving personal benefits simultaneously.

The Flames Club is run by students. "In terms of donations, some of us have personally contributed, while many others have actually made direct donations of $10,000 or more." With each level on the chart, members enjoy a wide range of benefits including media passes, preferred parking for athletic events and Flames Club pavilion members also invited to luncheons every Tuesday to hear from speakers from Liberty and other athletic network with other members.

However, according to Good, the greatest benefit is that you are being to the lives of student athletes and you're furthering the cause of LU athletics and strengthening the athletic program." As Liberty grows as a university and its athletic programs grow along with it, the cost of maintaining a competitive athletic program will also grow accordingly.

Please see FLAMES CLUB, page 82
Cross country delivers 1-2 punch

Page B2

mixed results in the overall extremely hot and humid and Liberty cross-country team race and placed seven girls in her first collegiate cross-mores Carol Jefferson and despite another one-two fin-captured fourth place overall.

continued from page B1
donations join," Good said.

Though many students may not be able to financially support the Liberty Flames athletics, but we can not underestports, but we can not underes­ keen to give back to their alma mater.

Good said that financial support is that current students transition into the real world they can and should do their part to support LI

“it is also largely the responsi­ not only in cheers but also in loose change.”

Good said the alumni should be the driving force behind the Flames athletics.

“We have to want what’s there, if we want to go to another level and advance our

Good said students need to realize that as they graduate and get out into the world, it is their responsibility to give back to their university.

Contact Josh Vinlel ag@liberty.edu.

Flames Club supports Liberty athletics through donations

Rachel Bredensteiner, senior soprano, believes that it is important for students, staff, and alumni to support Liberty Flames athletics.

While the University has an athletic budget, that amount to that need, it is largely up to current students, staff, and alumni to support Liberty Flames athletics.

President Dr. Mitchell Harrison and LIU.

“We cannot afford to let our

Bethesda Good said that students need to realize that as they graduate and get out into the world, it is their responsibility to give back to their university.

Contact Josh Vinlel ag@liberty.edu.

Flames Club supports Liberty athletics through donations

Rachel Bredensteiner, senior soprano, believes that it is important for students, staff, and alumni to support Liberty Flames athletics.

While the University has an athletic budget, that amount to that need, it is largely up to current students, staff, and alumni to support Liberty Flames athletics.

President Dr. Mitchell Harrison and LIU.

“We cannot afford to let our

Bethesda Good said that students need to realize that as they graduate and get out into the world, it is their responsibility to give back to their university.

Contact Josh Vinlel ag@liberty.edu.

Flames Club supports Liberty athletics through donations

Rachel Bredensteiner, senior soprano, believes that it is important for students, staff, and alumni to support Liberty Flames athletics.

While the University has an athletic budget, that amount to that need, it is largely up to current students, staff, and alumni to support Liberty Flames athletics.

President Dr. Mitchell Harrison and LIU.

“We cannot afford to let our

Bethesda Good said that students need to realize that as they graduate and get out into the world, it is their responsibility to give back to their university.

Contact Josh Vinlel ag@liberty.edu.

Flames Club supports Liberty athletics through donations

Rachel Bredensteiner, senior soprano, believes that it is important for students, staff, and alumni to support Liberty Flames athletics.

While the University has an athletic budget, that amount to that need, it is largely up to current students, staff, and alumni to support Liberty Flames athletics.

President Dr. Mitchell Harrison and LIU.
The Lady Flames volleyball team began its week hot and ended it cold, defeating Davidson 3-2 on Tuesday before dropping their next three matches against Albany, Virginia, and Appalachian State at the Fairfield Inn Jefferson Cup tournament this past weekend.

On Tuesday, the Lady Flames were coming off a strong showing in the Atlantic Invitational. They took that momentum against the Davidson Wildcats. The Lady Flames took game one 30-24, but the Wildcats shook it off and took game two 30-18. Game three was a tight battle, but Davidson was able to outlast Liberty and win 30-24. Despite losing, the Lady Flames turned up the heat in game four and won 30-22 to send Liberty and won 30-28. Down 2-1, Liberty was unable to present much of an attack and lost game five, 30-16. The Lady Flames fought back to win 30-23, but Davidson was able to outlast Liberty and win 30-21.

On Saturday afternoon, the Lady Flames faced the Virginia Cavaliers in their second match of the tournament. In game one, the Cavaliers came out strong, gaining a 10-1 advantage before the Lady Flames fought back to win 30-24. That ended up being the only game Liberty would win in the tournament. Virginia took games two, 34-32, and three, 30-21.

Our passing improved and our defense improved, we came out with great passion on the field.” said Head Coach Shane Pinder. “We did not serve tough enough in their second match of the tournament. In game one, the Lady Flames were ready to attack their next opponent, Wofford. "Our team came out and played to our potential," Mahan said. He explained that the Flames were like a bunch of wild animals ready to attack their next prey. The Flames were excited to be back in front of their home crowd after three games on the road and wanted to show everyone what the term “teamwork” means. There was great leadership from the coaching staff, which got the entire team involved in the game. Adrian Rumbolt scored the first and only goal of the match in the first 1 second. "This really inspired our team to keep pushing forward,"Letsen said. Both Mahan and Letsen commented on the amount of teamwork the Flames played with. Even though both players said there were areas for improvement, the Flames still came out with a victory, and that is what counts. The 1-0 victory against Wofford moved the Flames record to 1-3-1. “This is what we needed to get us started. The Wofford team proved that we have no chance against us tonight.” Mahan said.

The Flames have leaped out of their three game wireless streak and are anxious to play their next game. For many of the freshmen, winning their first win in their collegiate career and that should jumpstart their engine and help boost their morale as a team. The Flames have a little time off from the competition to improve mistakes they made in the past few games. Their next game is at Appalachian State on Sept. 27 to face Southern Virginia.

Contact Corey Crane at cmcrane@liberty.edu.
Senior safety CJ Moore hopes to be the next Flame to go pro

By CJ Krasyk
sports reporter

As Liberty traveled up to Storrs, Conn., to take on the University of Connecticut last weekend, no one was more fired up for the match-up than C.J. Moore. Liberty's senior safety from Palmetto, Fla., looked at this game as a chance for revenge. Connecticut recruited Moore and he even took a visit to Storrs.

"Because of my GPA, I had to get a 970 (on the SAT), so a lot of schools kind of backed off me because they did not know if I was going to pass, so UConn backed out on me," he said.

However, Moore's defensive backs coach in high school knew one of Liberty's assistant coaches. The coach had come down to watch Moore play, but he figured that Moore would go Division I. He told Moore's coach that Liberty University would leave him a scholarship open.

"I had never even heard of the school at first and God just put me here. I came up here in the summertime on a visit here and I liked it," Moore said.

He is glad that he stuck it out here.

"God definitely puts things in your life and everything always happens for a reason. At first I was just asking God why... why am I not going where I thought I was going, but I learned not to ask God why, and just let him work in my life and that is what he did. I ended up coming here, which has been a successful career for me academically as well as spiritually," Moore said.

The safety started playing football at the age of 8, when his dad started him in youth football and even held him after practice working catching extra passes and developing a good work ethic.

"I played running back and I was bigger than a lot of kids, so I played offensive line and linebacker," Moore says of those years.

Then he was moved back to the secondary and started to like it.

"I went from playing linebacker and basically I was still hitting and it seemed that safety was a lot more fun because I get to roam around and get picks and stuff," Moore said.

"My favorite high school memory was our homecoming game my senior year. I was Homecoming King at halftime, like the third quarter started and I got a pick and I took it back to the 10 yard line and that jump started the team, and we came back and won," Moore said.

As of right now, his favorite moment at Liberty is his first start during his freshman year.

"I started against Wingate. I had an interception and fumble recovery. That was the first game that we won that season," he said.

Moore, who watches NFL safeties Brian Dawkins and Ed Reed, hopes to follow them into the NFL next year.

"That is something that I would love to happen if that is what God has in his will for me."

Even if the NFL is not in Moore's future, he will graduate with a degree in sports management.

"I may get into coaching or working with the front office to work my way up with a sports team. I want to work with sports, but you know that God always calls you to do whatever he wants. Whatever God wants for me that is what I will have."
“BOOOGOM!!!”

Everyone was excited as a fast-paced beat is heard rattling from a snare drum that lures everyone at a steady forward pace, and a flag is soon up ahead to show the way, but not a single person attains to such as a schnick.

The sound of columns, cannons and military drumbeats without any sort of consultation how can this be? The answer to this is: Civil War Reenactment.

In the United States, there are over 50,000 Civil War reenactors, according to www.historicalsandusky.org. Their Web site for this battle actually has information of not only how to get involved in the actual battles, but also states that anyone can come to a performance to watch for free that range under $12.

For people who aren’t Civil War enthusiasts or just plain curious, this is something that is worth looking into, whether you are a history “buff,” Civil War reenactor or just plain curious, this is something that is worth looking into, whether you are a history “buff,” Civil War reenactor or just plain curious, this is something that is worth looking into.

For all those who are interested in becoming a reenactor can contact Dr. Kenny Rowlette at (434) 582-2087 or e-mail him at kgrowlet@liberty.edu.

Currently, Rowlette is a reenactor, Rowlette urges people not to “jump into it lightly.” He says the route for a beginner is to rent gear from an organization called Reenactor’s Missions for Jesus Christ that strives to bring the Gospel to the Civil War reenactors of America. He began his ministry back in 1984 and claims that ever since then he has come to know Christ through this ministry, and many who have also become pastors and missionaries.

On Parker’s Web sites, www.rmjc.org, there is a list of sessions, a schedule of events and other facts about the Reenactor’s Mission for Jesus Christ that are available for everyone to review.

Lynchburg also contains the former home of Civil War Major George Christianson; Hutton. The house is called “The Sandyhook,” and is currently used as a museum with exhibits from the time period, and is open to the general public for visits.

For all those who are interested in becoming a reenactor can contact Dr. Kenny Rowlette at (434) 582-2087 or e-mail him at kgrowlet@liberty.edu.

Contact Marcelo Quarantotto at reenactor@largerweb.net.
He died in 1910, Haley’s Comet came into view again.

The 5 worst things you can eat and detail

According to Dr. Joseph Mercola with Rachel A. Drouge

www.mercola.com

• Doughnuts — Average doughnut supplies you about 1000 calories, mostly from sugar and fat.
• Chips — Most commercial chips, and this includes corn chips, potato chips, tortilla chips, you name it, are high in unhealthy fats. Mahoney said that students should avoid eating the same foods in order to save time.
• Fried mini-sandwiches — best 500 calories, mostly from fat. Mahoney said, "It's very unhealthy."
• Fried fast food — best 500 calories, mostly from fat. Mahoney said, "It's very unhealthy."

WATER — instead of gulping a soda, get some water. (It's cheaper and healthier.)

There are some great people on our campus halls. They are not evil or particularly bad, in fact, some people will not even see them, or if they see them, will not make eye contact with them. Those great people are often very quiet, but sometimes you can hear one or two booming a hymn softly or bantering with each other.

They are not professors or students. They are the maintenance workers. They keep the floors clean, the hallways, the water fountain looks nice.

There was one that I saw ever so often. She would not look up or walk by, until I spoke to her. I made polite conversation with her, but after that she would hear my high blood pressure on the ground as I needed to her to cross my government class. She said "I'm talking to you while I was in, I would make sure to say "I'm so," and the woman who looks down at the ground, she would look at me with a smile, a warm encouraging smile. I always wanted to return. I don't know how it made me feel, but it made me feel good to know she was near my friend and that I knew she appreciated her hard work to make the school more comfortable.

I went to speak to the workers. Smile at them. Tell them that you appreciate their labor. They will appreciate you. They will appreciate you.

We should not allow our guard down when we are around the workers. Smile at them. Get to know them well. I do every time. I do very often.

Contact Marliesa Johnson at mjohnson@liberty.edu.

The Appalachian Region of American Red Cross Blood Services held a blood drive on campus last week. This particular region is responsible for acquiring blood for all hospitals and 45 counties in parts of Virginia and West Virginia.

Carl Graham is a donor recruiter employed by Appalachian. He sets no time for schedule blood drives, to coordinate for blood donors and to coordinate for blood donors.

"I lend in community work and the mission of helping of people. Blood is something that can't make. There is no synthetic blood. That is why we operate blood drives," said Graham.

There are only two major requirements for donating blood aside from being in good health. Reasons must be at least 17 years of age and weigh 100 pounds or more. Many people, however, are unable even if they are healthy. Fortunately such as traveling or living outside of the country or taking different medications. These can keep you from donating. Donors can give blood every 56 days which equals about 56,000 pints per year.

"We have such high standards for our donors, because we want to provide the best blood," said Graham.

Graham is a total of 10 recruitment account representatives employed by Appalachian that schedule blood drives and make sure the necessary materials for drives are available. There are also four different hospitals in the region that we operate that happen in 1,000.

According to blood donors, donating one pint of blood can save three persons. An average of two seconds someone in the United States needs blood. Appropriately 80 percent of the U.S. population is eligible to donate blood, but only 4 percent actually do.

Every blood drives like donating blood for cancer and other diseases, for organ transplant recipi ents and to help save the lives of accident victims.

"It’s for a good cause. I said Anderson. "It’s for a good cause. I have a lot of blood, so why not share?" said Arthur Clark.

Walter Nelms, assistant manager of donor recruitment. "The Red Cross is always in need of blood, but as little as 1 percent actually do.

LU students Victoria Anderson and Arthur Clark donated blood for the first time last week.

"This is my first time donating. I wanted to see how the whole process worked, and the beverages were hot. I like it," said Anderson.

"I would never give blood," said Nelms. "If you look at it, you don't donate to others, you don't, he create, he explained, "I was shocked to be told. I was.

"I’ve been told that the fire, and the water fountain looks nice."

"I believe in community and I want to make sure to say "I’m talking to you while I was in, I would make sure to say "I’m so," and the woman who looks down at the ground, she would look at me with a smile, a warm encouraging smile. I always wanted to return. I don’t know how it made me feel, but it made me feel good to know she was near my friend and that I knew she appreciated her hard work to make the school more comfortable.

I went to speak to the workers. Smile at them. Tell them that you appreciate their labor. They will appreciate you. They will appreciate you.

We should not allow our guard down when we are around the workers. Smile at them. Get to know them well. I do every time. I do very often.

Contact Marliesa Johnson at mjohnson@liberty.edu.

The community is urged to contact the Red Cross at 1-800-366-PHOS or www.givelife.org for more information.

Contact Brit Engbrecht at Britengbrecht@yahoo.com.