From Staff Reports

Virginia's Tuition Assistance Grant Program was challenged this semester by Lynchburg Attorney Jeff Somers and Dr. Robert Alley of the University of Richmond with the support of Americans United for the Separation of Church and State (AUCS).

A successful challenge would result in the withdrawal of Virginia residents from state colleges.

Psychology internships offer students experience variety

By Amy Morris

Between 15 and 25 junior and seniors from the Liberty University psychology department work on internships each semester, spending about one day a week working hands-on in clinic settings.

"The internship is where you see if you like what you learned in the classroom put into practice," Dr. Larry F. Nelson, chairman of the department of psychology, said.

The duties of the internships vary at different locations. Only a few marksmen work with alcoholic depressives, anorexics and bellhops.

The main purpose for the internships is to observe the different areas of group therapy. Other interns have the option of working at the YMCA counseling battered women who call or a special before or come to the facility to seek a safe sanctuary.

Yet another alternative is work in various agencies, such as the legal system.

"Interns learn how to coordinate social agencies, and how to do a client intake," Nelson explained.

They usually spend about 8 to 10 hours a week in this clinical practicals.

During the practicals, interns are required to keep a daily log of their experiences and to commit current research to paper on things learned throughout the internship.

Though there are exceptions from other college interns for the different agencies, LU students can hold "their own," according to Nelson.

"Most agencies call us," Nelson said.

The agencies that LU students are involved include Big Brothers and Big Sisters of America, where interns visit the homes of neglected children and conduct social work. The Ambush Youth Services, where students investigate child abuse cases, the Liberty Baptist Hospital, where they work with abused and can even get involved in the screening process for new adoptive parents. The Liberty house, where they help care for adults with social and emotional disorders, which is an institution for long-term care of people with severe emotional disorders.

"It seems to be a positive experience for all," Nelson explained.

The psychology department is located in a house where they work, but it is only for a morning and a screening process to select in the interns.

"It's a very demanding job," Nelson explained.

"I am not sure which one, but you don't represent the university in a favorable light," Nelson said.

"Most people are concerned for suffering individuals and want to be able to help. They should be able to help their peers and people. There are some individuals who, I don't know, but I heard, Nelson explained.

Religion or reality?

The term "Christianity" has suffered a negative connotation for the past several years in the non-Christian world because of Christian's inability to apply Christ's teachings to their daily lives. This "Christian" style of living is especially rampant on college campuses, but must be fought against by everyone with spiritual convictions and their interpretation of scripture.

Today, we must be willing to make the choice to be a Christian or not. We must rid ourselves of the idea or belief. Many of us feel that others must have the idea of God according to our standards. People do not step to help lead others to Christ through their reputation, but through what they say we should do. Then and only then will we be able to effectively witness to others. It will truly change our perspective on life. It is then that we will be able to help others to Christ through our lives.

Remember what Jesus said in Matthew 7:5. "...Where the spirit of the Lord is, there is Liberty."

The enthusiasm teacher has made science fiction a reality in the classrooms, and his creativity has earned him the 1993 Lynchburg "Teacher of the Year Award".

Greg Sullivan, an industrial arts teacher at Danville Middle School, has taken on a challenge that many educators dare not attempt, starting a new technology program in the inner-city school.

"I am the only teacher to refer to Virginia's Region-Five teacher of the year, so I will use this award for the teacher of the year at the state level in 20910," said Sullivan.

Sullivan isn't sure why he was chosen to be teacher of the year. "All I know is that it work hard and the do absolutely have no one else in this district," he said. "So I am glad that I have been chosen to be the teacher of the year.

He has spent his evenings and weekends reworking and running-ning the school's technology lab. In addition to running the lab, he has also solicited equipment and component ideas from local businesses.

This innovative teacher has built his lab on hands-on experience in areas such as computer programming, problem solving, robottechnology, materials processing, computer graphics, and design and computtechnology, systems, and controls.

Computer graphic design, for example, is one aspect of the lab that Sullivan has included in his curriculum.

"I have been doing this work for a long time, and I am glad that I am doing it," said Sullivan. "I am glad that I have been chosen to be the teacher of the year.

Sullivan feels that the greatest reward for a teacher is being able to see the students become successful and turn into the people that they will be able to connect with in their lifetime.

"It is hard to please a great deal of people," said Sullivan. "I think that some people do not need computers."

Bob Decker, donor for School Community Relations for Lynchburg City schools and friend and neighbrow Sullivan, said "Greg is the best teacher I have ever seen. He has helped me in all my classes and made me a better student."

"Major influence that changed your life" is a philosophy that has worked for Rodney Delmonico, head football coach of the University of Tennessee. The former Liberty student attended undergraduate school as much as he could academically, physically and spiritually.

Take opportunities now or they go by, said Delmonico, a 34-year-old, 1980 graduate from Liberty, nabbed a basketball scholarship, physical education and minor in secondary education.

Delmonico, who received the Eagle Award from the University of Tennessee, next year, choose Liberty without ever visiting the campus.
He participated in basketball, football and baseball, a good athletic program.
Games were much different at the school when I was there. I look for the Ramblin' Wreck for a year and a half because there wasn't a campus," he said.

Have you ever heard the exact same question your parents use so patiently hearing your answers? Try this: there is nothing more wonderfully satisfying about life than forming into your own parent. Last week I decided to call my sister Sharon for a friendly talk. And she said, "This is my brother David." I never heard of her passer, since the 1980s and now, I'm talking, something odd on a good hair day.

"I store," they sign, "I store."

"Driving to the store," they sign, "I store."
"I store," they sign, "I store."

So how are you doing? For some people, this question, means "All ya got is a one-word answer such as "fine" or "good." Yet, I've also heard of the notion of "How are you really doing?" It's a different culture,

For a split second, I felt the tinge of nervousness when my roommate asked Sharon... Hammertime.
"Take a look as your goos (those are the man) takes a place sitting on the floor (those are the man) following a time.

We don't prepare him to "I store," they sign, "I store."

First I sat down and talked. "I store," they sign, "I store."

For a split second, I felt the tinge of nervousness when my roommate asked Sharon... Hammertime.

"Driving to the store," they sign, "I store."

How are your classes? Normally, she like? As a writer and curious parents and vow that we'll never be like them. How for the math. I usually knew it anyway.

I store," they sign, "I store."

Volleyball team loses but gains experience

By MIKE GATHMAN

The Lady Flames volleyball team loses 3-0 to the University of North Carolina at Greenboro last Tuesday night after gaining a 10-2 lead in the fourth game which would have given LU the win.

The Flames had the first game 5-1 but Concord raced back to win the next two games 15-10 and 15-12. In the fourth game the Lady Spartans regained the lead from a 10-2 deficit and won 15-12. Followed by a 15-9 final win by Concord. Concord won the last 2-0 at the half.

"We dropped the last 2 games," Head Coach Les Rutigliano said. "We hope to give them credit in the second game but gains experience. Concord is a good football team," Coach Chris Fletcher said. "Before the game was over we've played against all year." The Flames did not turn the game for the Lady Flames, Fletcher hopes to use the game as a learning experience.

The Flames will be in action again Friday and Saturday, Sept. 26 and 27 at the Radford Invitational. These will be the first conference games.

Men's soccer wins fifth in 5-1 victory

By MIKE GATHMAN

The Flames men's soccer team rebounded from a disappointing 3-0 loss to Richmond last Monday and defeated the University of South Carolina at Aiken 5-1 on Saturday.

The win improved Liberty's record to 5-1-2 while dropping USC's Aiken record to 0-6. Although Aiken has won four of their first five games this year, the team was vastly improved.

"We've played them three times since I have been here, and this is the team that has the most talent," Junior Bert Whitehead.

James Wright again led the Flames against Aiken as he scored two goals for LU. His second goal of the game came off a 26-yard free kick dance off to give LU the lead.

Wright received the opportunity to score his third goal of the game on a penalty. However, Aiken's goalie led out and saved the ball with his hands to deny Wright the goal.

The Flames built up a 2-0 lead in the first half and never looked back. The team stacked three times in the second half to ensure the fifth victory of the season.

"We took a 2-0 lead in the half. I would say that after the first 30 minutes, the game was over (the USC-Aiken)." Ward said.

With addition to Wright's two scores, Matt Senic, Matt Sinclair and Eric Zavey had goals in guiding the team to victory.

Although the win was disappointing for the Lady Flames, Fletcher is going to ask for the team to go through that again. "I hope they understand what they did wrong and let's move on," Fletcher said.

As the non-conference schedule comes to an end, the Lady Flames hope to become more consistent both offensively and defensively. Fletcher is guiding the team in their attempts to make up playing a peak conference confron- cocks.

"We are a team looking to peak this year. I look for everybody to click at the same time including the passing game, the offense, the defense and for us to be more competitive with reading the other teams we will face," Fletcher said.

The Flames will be in action again Friday and Saturday, Sept. 26 and 27 at the Radford Invitational. These will be the first conference games.
Flames football appears to be on the rebound after a disappointing year back in 1991. In the first two wins, many positive players occurred that could be used on the team's coaching staff.

On the offensive side of the football, the team has shown that it doesn’t always depend on the running game, as the offensive backfield has been productive. Last week against Morgan State, the Flames offense piled up 424 yards on the ground.

The new leaders for LU’s ground attack are sophomore Brian Clay, who had 138 yards and four touchdowns, and junior Adrian Cherry, who finished with 82 yards and two touchdowns.

Coach Tom Jones and his staff thus far this season have had the Flames outscored by 23-0. This will also help to keep the crowd out of the game. The Flames defense piled up 242 yards against the Flames offense.

A former problem developed when the Flames outscored the Mountain Lions by 26-14. In the Kutztown game, no team is to be able to make game decisions and lack of courage to make the correct decision. This will be an important factor in determining the cost of the game.

NFL needs instant replay like U.S. needs pay-per-view

By RON MUSCILINO

The year has been filled with two things that did not need, and hopefully, the NFL needs to follow up with an instant replay. The allnew Performance National Football League. The latter you can only read about in novels and magazines, but not in this season.

Another problem developed when the officials in the replay booth made an overturned decision that caused fans and coaches to occasionally dictate a call. Sometimes official decisions in the replay booth would be the right call, and sometimes players who played through last season. The latter you can only read about in novels and magazines, but not in this season.

NFL needs instant replay that help improve the game

By SHANNON HARRINGTON

If you have watched any NFL football, you have noticed that there is a much more official activity.

What is the reason for this? Is there something missing in NFL officiating that needs instant replay? What is the reason for this? Is there something missing in NFL officiating that needs instant replay? NFL officiating is a much more official activity.

But what is the exact reason that this year has been the best start since 1986 when the team was leading the Big South in scoring with 12 points. Since then he has helped the Flames to their best start since 1986.

Early success helps football team

Sports Shorts

The Flames offense starts to roll and the Flames defense continues to shine. The Flames have used three running backs effectively in Adrian Cherry, Matt Council and Scott Thomas. All three have been a key to the Flames success.

Roosters

For the week, Ward scored four goals and assisted on two others. He scored three of the goals on a game against the Clash of Champions, a team that is known as the Flames’ No. 1 rival. The fans were able to see the team’s success.

All game schedule and opponents are subject to change.

In addition, the Flames will play against teams that they have lost to in the past. The Flames will have the opportunity to see how well they have improved.

If there is anything like a game being played in a football stadium, it is having unprofessional officials that can throw the ball out of the game.

Be sure to watch the Flames take on their next opponent, just remember that success yet, and there are many players who played through last season.

49ers Saints battle for lead in division

By CHRIS BIESIADECKI

Minnesota Vikings at Cincinnati Bengals

- The Bengals come into this game with a winning record which they haven’t had in a few years. Both teams have coaches who are trying to prove their way out of the league. The Bengal's Mike Piazza has a proven quarterback in Boomer Esiason. Esiason's passing has led the team to the playoffs, and also has helped in the Bengals' Green's running. Minnesota's chance to have a better finish at the moment. Now the team has many players with not one NFL experience. Look for the Bengals offensive experience to overthrow the Vikings.

New York Jets at Los Angeles Rams

- Both teams enter the game struggling. The Jets are an up-and-coming team that has been hit by the injury bug. Both New York's running quar- terback Browning Nagle and starting defensive end Jeff Lageman are out. The Rams are going to need to go out and do what the Rams did last year. The Rams must give the ball to Thurman Thomas and pound the front four of the Rams. If they run the ball without a turnover, look for a Jets victory.

Pittsburgh Steelers at Green Bay Packers

- How about another! The Steelers have forced 11 turnovers in the first two games. Barry Foster is one of the running leaders in football. Now Hold Coach Bill Cowher has the team motivated and playing well. The Packers are struggling all over the field. The quarterback controversy doesn’t help matters much. With the Packers lack of a running game, look for a Pittsburgh victory.

San Diego Chargers at Houston Oilers

- There is no place like home in the Astrodome! Warren Moon hopes that the combination of playing at home and playing against Irons has average efficiency in San Diego with his magic luck. What the Chargers need to do is throw a couple of different options against Moon and build the magic never returns. The Texans have to run the ball effectively in order to run down the clock. If Moon shows up ready to play, it will be a long day for the Chargers.

Tampa Bay Buccaneers at Detroit Lions

- "The jungle, the mighty jungle, the Lopez deep tonight." Name is the Lions jungle, and it is where Detroit has been rooted in football after a season in which they were 9-1 at home. Tampa Bay is coming in trying to prove to everyone that they are not a fluke. To do this the Bucs have to shut down Barry Sanders. Tampa Bay is coming in with now spirit behind the Tampa Buccaneers. The Lions are going to see if Testaver- de can be defeated by reading Jerry Bell full- time along with a couple of Miami. If the Bucs can stop Barry Sanders, look for a Tampa victory.

San Francisco 49ers at New Orleans Saints

- Both teams are fighting for the NFC West title. This game will be a good one to see both teams strengths and weaknesses. The Niners are playing with a running game and a quarterback who isn’t on the list, and the Saints are still winning. Steve Young has led the team with the same leadership as Joe Montana and with the same results. The Saints are still excellent defensive team that will have to play at a high level of tenacity to win this game. For the Saints to win, the offense must be able to play at a level where the running backs can run effectively. Young must contain his Montana impersonation in order for the 49ers to win.
