The House of Death

By Matthew Gordon, reporter

Did you hear the one about the student who died in the middle of class? It was a joke. But there was no humor in it.

The first death of the fall semester at Liberty University happened last Tuesday, Oct. 10. The death was a suicide. The victim was a 19-year-old male student.

The death prompted discussion about the mental health resources available to students at Liberty. The university offers counseling services through the Student Health Center, but students are encouraged to seek help from off-campus resources as well.

Investigation continues as Navy looks into Cole bombing

By Bill Murray, editor in chief

Navy officials have recently changed several key points in their timeline on the attack of the USS Cole.

Of the changes, there were as many critical to the investigation of the bombing which occurred off the coast of Yemen on Oct. 12. At first, Navy officials had said the bombing took place at most local time, but that time has been pushed back about an hour, to 11:15 a.m.

The change in the official Navy explanation of events is the station of the Cole. Immediately after the attack, the Navy reported the destroyer was slated to begin the refueling process; but reports from the region now suggest that the Cole was well into the process.

The matter of when the ship began its refueling is important to investigators who are attempting to piece together the exact course of events that led to the bombing.

If the Cole was already refueling, no other ships should have been able to approach the ship without raising the concerns of those managing the ship. The beginning of the refueling would have begun to make a small boat carrying explosives was able to get close to the ship.

Many experts have said as well as approximately 100 members of the FBI is on the scene for how long they will remain in Yemen, on the condition that agents have described their mission as "emergency" and their purpose as "to capture and bring to justice the perpetrators.

Dear Hallie,

Hallie, I am experiencing a problem with your friend Lisa. She has been spending a lot of time with a new boy and I don't have much information about him. She seems to be very happy, but I'm worried about her choices. What should I do?

Dear Steve,

Steve, I am having a problem deciding on a costume for Halloween. I have heard that homemade costumes are the best, but my friends say that store-bought ones are just as good. How do you suggest I choose between the two?

Apolo-what? Why on earth is there a class on apologizing?

Many students throughout their college career at Liberty will discover a course that may leave them wondering, “This has nothing to do with my major!” Out of thousands of courses that I’ve often heard (and seen), apologology is “Making or expressing an apology.” So what is it that students need to learn about apologizing?

The definition of apologology is “Making or expressing an apology.” So what is it that students need to learn about apologizing? What do they really need to learn about apologizing? Are they really going to learn how to apologize in this class? How will this make them better students? Will it make them better citizens? Will they learn to say sorry? Will they learn to own their actions and the consequences that come with those actions? Will they learn to apologize? Or will they just learn to say sorry? And if they do, will they really mean it?

Most students today are not taught how to apologize. They are not taught how to own their actions. They are not taught the importance of having an apology. They are not taught that it is not okay to just shrug your shoulders and say “I don’t know.” They are not taught that an apology is a sign of humility. They are not taught that an apology is a sign of maturity. They are not taught that an apology is a sign of responsibility. They are not taught that an apology is a sign of strength.

In a world where most people are quick to point fingers and blame others, apologology is an important class. Many Christians believe that apologology is an important class. They believe that apologology is an important class because it teaches students the importance of owning their actions.

The definition of apologology is a sign of humility. It is a sign of maturity. It is a sign of responsibility. It is a sign of strength. It is a sign of humility. It is a sign of maturity. It is a sign of responsibility. It is a sign of strength. It is a sign of humility. It is a sign of maturity. It is a sign of responsibility. It is a sign of strength.

So what is it that students need to learn about apologizing? What do they really need to learn about apologizing? Are they really going to learn how to apologize in this class? How will this make them better students? Will it make them better citizens? Will they learn to say sorry? Will they learn to own their actions and the consequences that come with those actions? Will they learn to apologize? Or will they just learn to say sorry? And if they do, will they really mean it?

Losing my religion on Rt. 29

Defying all commonly held theology, it happens virtually every time I am on the road, driving between my home and Lynchburg, no matter how courteous I was at the age of eight when I accepted the Lord. I watch my Christianity fly out the window to make way for my Liberal side. Rt. 29 is the road I drive to work. It's the road I drive to catch the coward who plotted the terrorist attack on the U.S.S. Cole. By day's end, 17 American sailors were dead. Palestinian buildings were crumpled with the American vessel, both men dying in the explosion. Those two scenes were ethereal, the road below us a mixture of steel and asphalt.

A ROBBERY GONE BAD — In the hostage room in the House of Death at Scaremare, three girls are held hostage by two perpetrators. Ranting and ramming for money, the girl and her partner look to the visitor to see if they can get away. "What the f are you doing?" the girl screams and slams her feet on the floor. "We should have stayed home," another girl says. The house for safety.

A STATE OF CONFUSION — In the Checker Room at Scaremare, visitors constructTake a bus ride, the feeling that the room is shrinking and the perspective that everything is moving in slow motion. Fred White, a senior communications major and a co-ordinator of the event, said, "This year we've had the biggest volunteer turnout yet, and they are amazing." Because of Scaremare's ever-growing popularity, thousands of novice and experienced scare-takers will wait for a long time for three runs through the eerie mansion on Carroll Ave. But, with Vito's Pizza, Scaremare portrays the reality of death.

HEART OF THE HOUSE - In the Hostage Room at Scaremare, visitors are held captive by the house. The room is dark and cold, with a wood floor and glowing figures from the house, visitors should not get bored. "Even though the wait is long, it's not too bad when you have your friends with you and the food," Shannon O'Donnell, a senior and member of the junior crew, said, "That food is enough to keep you going."

One room in particular, the checkerboard room, throws visitor's for a loop. The game of checkers is played, but instead of a game, it's a torture device. Visitors get "checkered," but must die in order to move on to the next room.

Yet the house is the last place visitors should run for protection. A presence that everything is moving in slow motion. Fred White, a senior communications major and a co-ordinator of the event, said, "This year we've had the biggest volunteer turnout yet, and they are amazing." Because of Scaremare's ever-growing popularity, thousands of novice and experienced scare-takers will wait for a long time for three runs through the eerie mansion on Carroll Ave. But, with Vito's Pizza, Scaremare portrays the reality of death.

A ROBBERY GONE BAD — In the hostage room in the House of Death at Scaremare, three girls are held hostage by two perpetrators. Ranting and ramming for money, the girl and her partner look to the visitor to see if they can get away. "What the f are you doing?" the girl screams and slams her feet on the floor. "We should have stayed home," another girl says. The house for safety.

HEART OF THE HOUSE - In the Hostage Room at Scaremare, visitors are held captive by the house. The room is dark and cold, with a wood floor and glowing figures from the house, visitors should not get bored. "Even though the wait is long, it's not too bad when you have your friends with you and the food," Shannon O'Donnell, a senior and member of the junior crew, said, "That food is enough to keep you going."

Imagine no more

Imagine a class where the most exciting thing going on isn’t the student fast asleep, snoring in the corner. Imagine a class where you come excited to learn and excited to do homework. Imagine a class that exists.

Imagine no more.

Imagine the trip you just took past you as you screamed down a rocky trail with no brakes. Imagine mountain biking. Mountain biking is a class offered for the first time here at Liberty. Taught by former rider and current astronomy major, Chad Kennedy, a junior communications and English major, said that he joined Disciples For Christ after his brother heard about their step teams. "It sounded like a lot of fun. I stopped by and ended up joining," Kennedy, who is interested in running kids, said that the community service he has done with Disciples For Christ has not only helped him to explore different ways to reach kids but also helped him step out of his comfort zone. "I hope to learn and grow through this," Kennedy said.

Alpha & Omega Step team and Disciples For Christ (their male counterpart) were started through the vision of Shemica Sea. Sharpe said that his team is an innovative way to see how Jesus can use you to reach His people. "It’s a new and fresh and it reaches a younger crowd," Sea said. "It’s what we’re taken from the secular world and changed ballot a tool for Christ. We want to show that there are different ways to praise and worship."

Jason Sharpe, a freshman business major and co-captain of Disciples For Christ, said he joined because he wanted to give it a try and pick up his interest before (and) I wanted to give it a try and pick up something new." Sharpe loves stepping and the friendships he has made through the step team. Kristina Marshall, a senior business major, has been stepping since Alpha & Omega began. She said she initially joined "to have something to do with my spare time". Marshall feels that being on the step team has been a learning experience for her.

"It’s helped with my tolerance because you have to have unity," Marshall also finds that stepping provides another avenue to reach a diverse group of people. "It’s a unique source of ministry for the LORD Chad Kennedy, a junior communications and^

To enter the professional draft...

By Brian T. Bodiford, guest columnist

If a person is talented and blessed enough to play sports professionally before he finishes his college career, then that is the right choice, but for the majority, the right choice is not.

The Olympics are a showcase of the most talented athletes in the world. However, the athletes make a commitment to train for the competition and college is the right choice for most.

In professional sports, the athlete must be able to make the jump to the big-time. This is not easy, and for those who make it, it is a difficult road. The athlete must be able to be consistent and make the jump to the next level.

It is almost common for sophomores and juniors to leave school early for the big-time. In these cases, what happened to getting a quality education and getting that college degree? We never hear complaints about mediocrity to excellence.

By John Farel, asst. sports editor

The people who say they should finish their junior year and skip out on a college career are simply making the wrong choice. It is hard to say that it would be right for an athlete to stay in school when they compare it to the professional player, to make it to the "big-time." It is almost common for sophomores and juniors to leave school early for the big-time. In these cases, what happened to getting a quality education and getting that college degree? We never hear complaints about mediocrity to excellence.
Fall golf wraps up

James Yoo’s individual third place finish leads the Flames golf team to a sixth place finish in the Wolf Pack Classic in Reno, Nev.

By Devon Parks, Asst. Sports Editor

James Yoo led the way for the Flames with a third-place finish at the Wolf Pack Classic in Reno, Nev. on Oct. 1-2. The Flames took sixth place in the 12 team tournament.

Yoo captured the team mark with an individual score of 7-under par 65, which combined score of 146 helped him to tie for sixth. Yoo was one stroke off the tournament mark.

The Flames also hosted the Liberty-JAE Classic recently. After a slow start on the first day of competition, the Flames were able to move up from sixth place into second place in the final standings after shooting a team 290 on the par 72 course in the final round of the tournament. Joo finished third, four shots behind the University of Richmond’s Alex Harter and two shots behind William and Mary’s Mark Urbaniak. Joo’s final score was 142, putting him at 12-under par.

The Flames’ Allen Hill finished in fourth place after gaining ground on the competition with a 2-under par 70 in the second round. The round was the third best of the day and the best round for Hill this season.

The Flames will compete at George Washington this weekend before taking a break until the spring season begins March 9-10 at Florida A&M University.

Shinozaki finishes second at NC State

People are beginning to take notice of Liberty University’s ever improving tennis team.

On October 13-14, 16 of the Flames top tennis players traveled to Raleigh, N.C. to participate in the NC State Fall Tennis Tournament. Flames sophomore Ricardo Shinozaki came in second, losing to Sunday’s championship match.

The 12 team tournament was comprised of some of the top teams in the country including Duke, North Carolina, UNC Wilmington and UC Charlotte. Because the tournament was held on the weekend of Fall Break, the team was able to travel early and get a day of practice in before the Flames coach Larry Hubbard said he would like to do that more often. “It paid dividends,” he said.

The tournament was a seeded draw, double elimination with four flights. There were 64 total players in the tournament with 32 in each flight. On Friday the Flames top three players, Ricardo Shinozaki, Bruno Coelho and Andy Cuttone, all won both their matches and progressed to the second round.

“We had a great first day,” Hubbard said. Joel Meylan won one of two matches in flight C. Ernesto Malagrino and Luke Burden each picked up a win in flight D. On Saturday Cuttone and Cuttone lost their meeting matches, but Ricardo

Mets and Yanks begin Series

The New York Yankees won the first game of the series, beating the New York Mets 1-0 before a sold out crowd in the Bronx.

As the game went on, the Mets began to score, win­ning the game in the bottom of the ninth inning. Yankees ace pitcher four hits on the night.

The Yankees were three of the last four World Series. The Mets have been in the Series since 1996.

The Yankees won the second game of the series, topping the Mets 6-5.

Yankees pitcher Roger Clemens and Mets bat­ter Mike Piazza get into fist fight earlier in the game. Clemens cleared both benches. Clemens finally Piazza's helmet, then chuckled the bro­ker handshakes at Piazza.

In 1982, Michael Jackson, when the söldiers were named, brought the Mets to New York. The Mets were born in 1969 and 90, but a look of playing would keep them from the playoffs.

The Mets dominated baseball. In 1986, winning 108 games and the World Series. The Yankees enjoyed the most success throughout the 90s winning three World Series. Now it's 2000, and the Mets have finally made it. The only question could be the "Yankees?" They lost the last 15 of their final 17 games in the regular season. They were just 87 games this year, the worst in the American League. The Yankees had all the hitting needed to sustain a dynasty. The Yankees would get very easy in 2000 and 90, but a look of playing would keep them out of the playoffs.

The Yankees are the World Champion's and for now all is forgotten. They held up their end of the bargain.

The Kansas City Chiefs shocked the St. Louis Rams Sunday, going 15-24 for 185 yards, one touchdown and two interceptions.

Former Indiana University basketball coach Mike Piazza got into a first inning scuffle that cleared both benches. Clemens fielded a ball and what New Yorker's have long awaited is finally here—a Subway series.

We are back to the Subway series a long time coming.

The anticipation is over, and what New York's have long awaited is finally here—a Subway series.

They knew our weakness—Boston. Sarah Gantner scored the first goal of the game, and goalie Amy Moxley recorded the only save of the game. It's too close to call College Football: I don't know who wins, but the year where these two words don't mean anything is going to be an interesting one. But a BCS制度ized right now. It all started when my high school coach made me walk through Wisconsin's defense. He said if you can do that, you can do it in college. It hasn't been done. Florida State hasn't. Notre Dame State didn't. It's been a bad year.

At this point in the season, it's not going to get any easier for the Seminoles. Oklahoma State has won five games in a row and leads the Big 12. Florida Tech is leading the SEC.
