Assessment promotes change

The assessment program at Liberty University is aimed at improving the service and educational programs for students by involving every level of the university. Dr. Ellen Black, LU director of planning, research, and assessment, described the assessment program as a process by which educators ask questions, gather data, and use the information to improve their major and begin improving the entire university. The assessment program is in place to assess the performance of each student as well as the programs and services provided. The data is then used to make key decisions about future changes.

Downtown Lynchburg is slowly being redeveloped on the basis of history, recreation and commerce. The city recently acquired 30 acres of land in North Carolina's Southern Railroad for $300,000. The purchase is the first tangible evidence of a vision conceived more than two years ago during Lynchburg's Bicentennial. The vision, known as Forth's Island, is in the middle of the James River by the Carter Glass Bridge and has minimal possibilities. "We are aiming on one of the most beautiful pieces of land in the area and we have no public access for boating, canoeing or hiking," Lynchburg City Council member John Callen said. Several ideas were generated during the Bicentennial. The City Council member was also asked to find out what they would like to do for the city. He said, "We can ask a lot of different questions and see how we can make improvements. We are looking for a form of transportation that is accessible. That is why we are asking the public to try out what they would like to do." The City Council member was also asked to find out what they would like to do for the city. He said, "We can ask a lot of different questions and see how we can make improvements. We are looking for a form of transportation that is accessible. From staff reports

Dr. Albert Guillermín, president of Liberty University, was admitted to Virginia Baptist Hospital in Lynchburg to help oversee the development of a Christian education program from kindergarten through high school. County residents resist spot zoning request

By BEN LAFROMBOIS

Although the Campbell County Board of Supervisors heard from two groups Tuesday, it delayed a vote on rezoning a property next to the Lynchburg Zoo Commission.

The rezoning request, submitted by Jerry Hipps, 3000 Lynchmeade, would allow commercial development on a piece of land that has been zoned residential since the Lynchburg Zoning Commission was formed. Developers want to build offices or an industrial building.

Uncertain how the vote will turn out, Hipps hopes to obtain rezoning approval this week. The supervisor's decision will affect nearly 30 residents from Castle Craig and District, who have been opposing rezoning the land for years.

"We're not opposed to commercial development, but we're not opposed to rezoning either," said Roger Stout, who lives by the property.

"One of the reasons for the Full Debate teams completed their first national tournament at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City and competed against the University of Colorado. To date, the team has won two tournaments and is second in the nation in the preliminary rounds.

"Also, the team's goal is to develop debate skills and develop character. By doing so, students are better prepared to handle life's challenges in the future.

In addition, each floor has prayer leaders who are responsible for six students. These prayer leaders "have more than enough experience to be a number one prayer leader in another program," Carson said.

"The prayer leaders are available to students more than the coach, and they are a part of their group by nature," Carson said. "In addition, the prayer leaders have more responsibility for disciplining the students in their group than the coach.

"This disciplining work is done in private, not in front of the students, and the prayer leaders are the only ones who carry the team with a high score this high of an average."

Tally and emotionally violated is barbaric and a pitiful misperception of a woman’s body and personality. As a result of the high profile case of rape in the news media, Smith was released on a $10,000 bond, and the victim’s past, personal life, previous acquaintances and even language and wardrobe become justifications to the crime against them. However, this mentality results in the victim’s privacy both in the courts and in society itself. For years society has equated masculinity with the courage to overcome their humiliation and place themselves in the public eye, yet if a woman is raped only once, she has to relive the ordeal every night in her dreams and many days in the court room. Although a possibility exists that a man may be wrongly accused, she has to re-experience that emotion every night for the rest of her life. If the criminals were put on trial as opposed to the victim, then other victims may find the courage to come forward and demand vindication from the courts.

Under current conditions, not only is a woman sexually violated during rape, but her whole life is devastated. After suffering through that crime, she is haunted by a constant sense of fear, guilt and mental trauma. Although she may have been physically raped, she has to remember the event every night in her dreams and many days in the court room. Although a possibility exists that a man may be wrongly accused, this is not a logical basis to support the victim’s privacy and prolong the victim’s affliction.

Women’s legal protection has made legal improvements in favor of the victim, much improvement is still needed to protect the innocent victim both in the courts and in society itself. Society should not even question whether a rape victim was “asked for.”

Rape victims should remain nameless and not be robbed of their privacy by journalists or by the legal system.
Internships offer various opportunities for experience.

By CYNDI STROUD

For students who are looking to get real-world experience, an internship can be a great way to network and gain skills that will be beneficial going forward. Internships can help students understand the realities of the business world and prepare them for their future careers.

"The goal of the internship office is to help students plan for their careers," said Cypress Long, director of the Internship Center. "We provide resources and guidance to help students make informed decisions about their career paths.

"Internships are a great way for students to gain hands-on experience and make connections in their field," Long said. "They can also provide students with valuable skills that they can carry into their future careers.

"We have a variety of internship opportunities available for students," Long said. "There are internships in fields ranging from business and marketing to healthcare and social services.

"Students can also choose to pursue internships in their own communities," Long said. "We have partnerships with businesses and organizations in the area to provide internship opportunities.

"In addition to helping students find internships, we also offer support and guidance throughout the internship process," Long said. "We provide resources and advice to help students succeed in their internship.

"Overall, the internship office is here to help students explore their career options and gain valuable experience," Long said. "We encourage students to take advantage of the resources we offer and pursue internships that align with their career goals and interests.

"The internship office is always looking for ways to improve and offer new resources and opportunities to students," Long said. "We welcome feedback and suggestions from students and are always working to provide the best possible experience.

"We hope that students will take advantage of the internship opportunities available to them," Long said. "The internship office is committed to helping students succeed and providing them with valuable experiences that will benefit them in the future.

"We encourage students to explore different options and find the internship that is right for them," Long said. "We are here to support and guide them through the process.

"The internship office is dedicated to helping students achieve their career goals," Long said. "We are committed to providing the resources and support needed to help students succeed in their internships and future careers.

"We thank students for their continued support and look forward to helping them find great internships in the future," Long said.

The NFL needs to be kinder to quarterbacks

CRUNCH!

There’s then a death rattle to the nose, the football quarterback lie on the ground in gasoline smelling smoke. As the blood pools and the virus spreads and he’s held with the shoulder pads the lower part of his body and he was still one in piece. But we’re not very enrage. As the quarterback was becoming a part of the profession as they came to be known as quarterbacks out of games and out of careers because of the possibility of being hit by defensive line.

In the NFL’s line of work, they have seen many back-up quarterback missing on the plane in the midst of quarterbacking due to injuries throughout the game. At times in the NFL that many have taken baths or been scratched in a game or been cut.

This season the National Football League has instituted a new rule that of starting quarterbacks is not due to injury. This new rule will not help because nine times out of ten the quarterback was not in any danger at all. This rule was put in place for the purpose of helping the NFL.

Quarterbacks are hurt when they are hit hard from behind or are purposely driven into the ground. Quarterbacks are hurt when they are hit hard from behind or are purposely driven into the ground. November 4, 1991, Troy Aikman was hurt when the Eagles Clyde Simmons hit Aikman in the face mask area.

Eagles’ Randall Cunningham is out of games and out of careers due to injuries last season. This third quarterback was not in any danger at all. This rule was put in place for the purpose of helping the NFL.
