Students, SGA uphold LU distinctives

By Anna Rea

The Values in Entertainment Bill failed to gain momentum despite an outside activist’s attempts.

The bill, which called for the acceptance of R-rated movies at Liberty, failed to gain student approval at Thursday’s Student Government Association (SGA) meeting. Although Student Body President Allison Thompson voted the bill, it was once again brought before the student body, this time with just 12 voting in favor of the No. 12 motion. However, SGA members raised concerns over the content and purpose of the bill. As a result, Unlimited Cinemas manager Howard Thomas said, “I don’t think this is promoting the Arts.”

David Thompson, author of the legislation, defended his stance by saying that there are very few R-rated films with historical value and are of importance to students. He concluded that SGA members should vote for the bill to continue on for administrative approval.

“If the bill fails once more and goes to a special vote, I’m not sure if we can make it pass,” he said.

In order for Thompson’s vote to be overturnable, 20 votes in favor of the legislation and 17 votes against would have to be cast. Thompson had originally voted for the bill because he did not believe that the legislation met the standards that SGA members should uphold. The bill was reduced due to the principle that the SGA is based on the policies that are foundational to this great institution,” read his press release at Thursday’s Nov. 12 meeting.

The university has lost its sense of humor,” the SGA member said.

L U Biology Club goes underground for a day

By Ron Potter

The Liberty Biology Club explored one of the strangest in the world on Saturday, October 14. The club, under the direction of biology professor Dr. George Loving, led the group to a cave, where they explored the unique environment of the cave. The group examined different types of plants and animals found in the cave, including bats, bats and nocturnal insects.

"The goal of this outing was to explore one of the unique environments in the world," said Loving. "We were able to see a variety of plants and animals, including bats and nocturnal insects, which are adapted to living in the dark."

"The environment inside the cave is quite different from the outside world," said Loving. "The temperature inside the cave is constant, and the humidity is high, which makes it a perfect habitat for certain types of plants and animals."

After exploring the cave, the group gathered around a fire, where they enjoyed a picnic lunch. The group also had the opportunity to hear a presentation on the biology of bats, given by Loving. The group learned about the unique adaptations of bats, including their echolocation abilities, which allow them to navigate in the dark.

"The biology of bats is fascinating," said Loving. "They are able to navigate using echolocation, which is a form of ultrasound that allows them to locate objects in their environment."

Overall, the outing was a success, with the group learning a lot about the unique environment of the cave and the adaptations of the plants and animals found there. The group is looking forward to future outings, where they can continue to explore and learn about the natural world. "We had a great time," said Loving. "We learned a lot about bats and the unique environment of the cave. We can’t wait to do it again!"

HERE COMES OLD MAN WINTER — Brad Word checks the oil in his car. This is an integral step in preparing a vehicle for the harsh effects of winter driving.

A s the temperature drops, you probably switch your sandals, shorts and tank tops for sport coats, sweaters and boots. One thing you may have forgotten is that your car needs to work properly during the winter. Here's a look at what is needed for a safe winter with your car.

TIRES

Tires are an important part of staying on the road. Tires should be checked to make sure they are not bald. The tread should be good, or a car can slide all over Longbranch's streets and highways.

Special tires with studs are available for the snow season, but the basic all weather tire will do unless you have the alignment checked. If the steering wheel pulls to one side or another, there is probably an alignment problem. Alignment is important when driving in wet or slippery conditions.

BATTERY

Batteries usually last four to five years. New batteries should be low maintenance. Older batteries have to be carefully maintained.

It is also important to keep battery posts clean. According to Greg Magnus, manager at River Ridge Auto Body, when corrosion builds up on the posts, resistance is increased, causing poor connection.

How to fix it

An old battery will need to be replaced with a new one. To clean battery posts of corrosion, use baking soda and water or Coca-Cola and a wire brush to clear the posts.

ANTIFREEZE

A car's radiator cools special water in the winter. Without adding antifreeze, serious damage can occur to water pumps and hoses. "The most important thing to do is to make sure your antifreeze," said Edward Henderson, Jr., owner of Ed's Automotive.

Most auto repair places agree that you should have a radiance flush once a year as well. Water happens to be the best thing to have the radiance flushed because you will have last year's injuries removed.

For some travelers, antifreeze in the gas tank may be needed when traveling to a colder climate or mountains. Generally, the southern states do not get cold enough to require this process.

Here & There

A radiator can be flushed at almost any auto shop.

WINDSHIELD

After preparing the essentials understand the hood of your car, be sure to check out the windshield. It is a good idea to replace windshield wipers before winter begins. If needed, also add a washer insert to windshield wiper solution to keep it from freezing.

Wiper solution is essential to winter visibility.

CAR KIT

A winter car kit consists of cold weather emergency supplies. Items include things such as a battery powered radio, flashlight, extra batteries, a blanket, first aid kit, matches, canned food, rain gear and jumper cables. Another item is a candle in a can, which allows you to melt snow to drink.

MISCELLANEOUS

There are some items which will provide a safer winter driving experience. Windshield wipers must be kept clean, and steel or rubber snow brushes. A winter wiper coating will protect the car's center. Glass surface water repellant can protect the windshield. This will aid visibility when snow and rain hit the windshield.

All of these items are necessities to make your car better equipped for winter traveling and to help you stay on the roads.

Men’s team survives first test of the season

Coach Hankinson also stated what he would like to accom­plish in his first year of being coach.

"Someone asked the question, ‘What are you trying to do your first year?’ Well the reason I was hired is because they were 11-17 last year, but what you try to do is establish an attitude of championship thinking,”

Hankinson said.

"Today I challenged the kids and I said that ‘winners push harder when they are tired, losers quit.’ And I thought that the kids did the magnificent job on the defensive end of the court. Liberty scored 84 points, which already surpassed last year’s highest point total of 82. That’s the first time ever on the University of Richmond for Liberty fans are used to seeing in years past. ‘At West Virginia, we led the Big East the last two years in scoring. We’d like to average 85 to 88 points a game. We missed that by two tonight.’

Liberty hits the road Tuesday at St. Bonaventure before returning home to host the University of Richmond for the first time ever on Saturday."

LU head men's basketball coach Mel Hankinson announced the signing of the five new recruits for the 2000-2001 season ahead of the regular signing period set by the NCAA. Highlighting the new recruits is the most heralded player to ever sign with Liberty University. Chip Richmond, a 6-foot, 200-pound power forward from Toledo, Ohio, signed a letter of intent to play basketball at the Flames next year. Richmond is set to play for Booker T. Washington High School in Memphis, which has been ranked No. 9 in the nation by USA Today.

Hankinson is one of the Top 10 power forwards in the country and a Top 30 overall player according to The Sporting News and Chicago's HoopStars (HoopStars). "Chip is one of the top power forwards in the country," said Head Coach Mel Hankinson said. "He brings both physical and as a basketball player will rank him in the top of the power forwards in the country as he becomes seniorized."

Hankinson was also recruited by Georgetown, Syracuse and Florida State. "I'm looking forward to making an impact on our team and helping take it to a higher level," Richmond said.

Coach Rick Reeves has signed the tallest giz in the program's history, 6-foot-7 forward Meribeth Feenstra, a 6-7, 240-pounder from Grand Rapids, Mich., to play for the Flames next year. Meribeth, from Calvin University Prep School in Grand Rapids, Mich., signed a letter of intent to play basketball at Liberty University and year.

Hankinson is a two-time honor-able mention All State selection and has played all 4 years for the Heights. "I have been preparing for this since my freshman year," Hankinson said. "I have a great love of the game and have always loved playing basketball."

With the signing of Richmond and Feenstra, the Flames now have seven scholarship players on their roster for the upcoming season. The Flames have included the signing of the top player in the country.
