Donors provide new lounge

By Chris Edwards, editor in chief

Donations from friends of Liberty, including a large sum from a board of eastern member and her husband, will allow the creation of a new student lounge in Building 13.

Kelly Saunders, administrative assistant to Dean of Students Greg Dowell, told the SGA senate Thursday that a major gift from Dr. Tim and Dr. Beverly LaHaye brought the plan to action.

Student Affairs has met with contractors, and a bid package for the lounge was opened Wednesday. The construction of the lounge is scheduled to begin in May.

SCHOOLS OUT — A group of students play in the snow near dorm 2 on Tuesday, when classes were cancelled.

The recent influx of the snow is the worst to plague the Lynchburg area in four years.

Students slowly discovering new dial-up service

By Kristen Rachel, reporter

When students first heard about the new Internet service being developed by Liberty University, they were a little skeptical.

Now, thanks to the hard work of the Information Technology Directorate (ITC) and Chris Stover, student body president who worked with the university’s IT Committee, students now use the new service.

However, as of Friday, only 60 people have signed up. The ITC department head, Aaron Mathes and ITC’s department chair, Jonathan Minter, hope that increased knowledge of easy Internet access, will encourage more students to sign up.

“There are so many benefits,” Minter said. “Not only is this Internet service free, but students can sign on with no password and have access to any of the university’s resources from anywhere.”

First two bills move to Borek

By Chris Edwards, editor in chief

Liberty President Dr. John M. Borek is currently considering two pieces of Student Government legislation.

The first bill, “Traveling With a Purpose,” was introduced in the fall. It was authored by Isabella George and recommended for approval by university’s IT Committee.

First study hall measure would ban alcohol

The study hall measure would be voted on by the Student Senate for the first time in the spring.

Currently, Liberty students are offered several options for study halls. After hours, students may use the Academic Success Center or the Library. If students wish to have food, they must bring it to the Information Technology Center.

Students interested in the services must go to www.liberty.edu/support, print out the form provided, fill it out and bring it to the ITC. Then, students pay $90, on the basis of $80 per month.

The first study hall measure would designate Science Hall 135 as a study area, and all alcohol and other distractions would be prohibited.

Seniors slowly discovering new dial-up service

Liberty students are only now beginning to explore the new Internet service being developed by the university.

“Many people don’t know how to sign up,” said Laura Blackstone, a sophomore from Central Virginia.

The new service, which is free and developed in-house, will allow students to access university resources from anywhere.

“I heard about it, probably because my friend Lee R. Sawyer was involved,” Blackstone said.

Drama group preps for tour

By Charlie Beckett, reporter

The King's Players is holding auditions for Road Trip 2000, a nine-week tour that begins on the first of September.

According to group director Dr. David Allison, the auditions will give people an opportunity to not only serve in the mission field but also to learn from the experience. According to group director Dr. David Allison, the auditions will give people an opportunity to not only serve in the mission field but also to learn from the experience.

The tour will involve the performance of plays which will include the ancient Christian play Everyman. Other performances will include What's Up, an evangelical play depicting people from different walks of life in their afterlife, and Family Outings, a moving story about the difficulties experienced by the Bailey family.

The highlight of the tour will be the King's Players' production of Resurrection Celebration, written by Allison.

The tour will focus on the central themes of the country and world, and also to serve in the mission field and to share the Christian to closer to God. Allison said.

The team's website states, "It is a goal of the King's Players to present plays with a message that would compel people to accept Christ as their Savior. Our ministry is not about seeing how many souls are won to Christ, but of using Word and the arts to lead the decision to God."

In a previous interview, the King's Players have stated that they want to "tell the stories of the country that we cannot tell live."

Students flock to for shots

More than 600 students entered the Vines Center to receive a meningitis vaccine Thursday. The vaccine was being offered to students along with the flu vaccine due to concerns over meningitis breakouts.

When students walked into the Vines Center they were greeted by a nurse who handed out a clipboard and asked them to fill out a medical form. The students then waited in line to get their shot.

"I didn't care about it, but my parents really wanted me to get it," Warner said.

"It's worth the $75 to avoid getting meningitis," Spalding said.

President calls for tax cuts in State of the Union

In his longest State of the Union address, President Clinton outlined his agenda for his final year in office. In his one-hour and 30 minute speech, the President spoke of a 10-year, $350 billion package of tax cuts, more tutoring aid for college students, elimination of the marriage penalty, and the first major overhaul of the Social Security system in 30 years. The President also said that he will sign the Medicare bill when it arrives on his desk.

Al Gore: Focused on defense

In one of his final speeches as Vice President, Mr. Gore spoke of a 10-year, $350 billion package of tax cuts, Medicare, Social Security, education, and the economy. Mr. Gore also said that he is concerned about defense.

Gore, Bush capture Iowa caucuses; N.H. today

In the race for the presidency, George W. Bush took the lead in Iowa as the nation’s largest early-voting state. Bush won a decisive victory, while Gore’s 93 percent to 84 vote margin of victory in New Hampshire was far from overwhelming.

The candidates are now focusing on their campaigns in New Hampshire where primaries will be held on Feb. 1.

SNOW AND ICE

Snow and ice continue to plague roads in Arkansas, Georgia and Tennessee as another winter storm passes through the South.

The schools closed for the remainder of the week as they waited for main roads and parking lots jammed with snow.

At Liberty, plugged parking lots also plagued people searching for space, as grounds crews cleared the snow.

Snow: Causes problems with traffic, parking

Weakened the student body's day. "The first thing I thought was that I should have listened to the weather reports," said junior Fred Sevigny. "I didn't do something on my own. I heard a snow warning and I thought we should have had the snow alert." The snow alert for Liberty was issued late in the evening.

Although Liberty didn’t have the luxury of a week off from classes, Campbell County schools and Greater Cincinnati Academy did. The schedule closed for the remainder of the day, so they waited for the snow storm to ease up and try to reopen.

Against social studies, we broke the Okaibo in 70s every time we did this and that we relate to blacks on Christmas Eve. A few weeks ago, I shared how Polish heroes are the heroes in church. Historically, most of the people in this church (the church’s German background) were Polish people. Now, I can imagine that someone might ask me what Polish heritage.

After all, Polish people have a reputation for being hard workers, and there is some truth in that. So why did so many people voluntarily go into Europe, away from their relatives, and become terrible at times in the world with their Polish as their neighbor. Ukrainians often face the same accusation, along with some incidents of heritage between the two cultures. This is the point where we must remember that there are many interesting stories that are only to be explored. It’s the fun heritage or self and blood and bone traditions.

Scottromanski says it loud- I’m Polish and proud

Many Americans use February to celebrate Black History Month. They use this time to focus attention on their own heritage.

As you can probably tell me, this is a new name and picture. I’m not African descent, but the observances have caused me to reflect on my own heritage.

My mom’s relatives primarily came from the Ukraine, while my dad’s came from Russia and Poland. These adjoining countries share many cultural similarities.

A little preparation can curb common illness

By Brandon Benoit, reporter

Influenza, commonly known as "the flu," has killed 200 million people worldwide since 1918. This potentially deadly virus also kills an average of 20,000 people a year. Influenza has fiercely attacked thousands of different forms in which it can be tricked and is a full-time student.

Sophomore Joyce Marita said, "If I don't manage my time, I can reach temperatures up to 105 degrees. Symptoms can last anywhere from a week to 14 days."

Those most susceptible are infants aged under six months, elderly people, and those with long-term health problems. "I think everyone, especially college students, is susceptible to the flu," said sophomore Joel Lashway.

One of the ways she plans to fit in a three-ring binder. A student can write down her organized method for planning the time we have to do homework. Study Skills, by Linda Wong, gives the following as basic strategies:

• Create strong patterns in your schedule
• Include time for your goals
• Include time for the good nutrition, exercise, and sleep
• Add several flexible study times
• Schedule breaks, family and social time.

Applying the skill of time management may take some creativity and effort. However, the results, especially in higher grades, will make the added effort worthwhile.

Sophomore Joyce Marks said, "I get up early in the morning and plans out what she is going to do each day."

"This is the most important semester, if lost, we can never replace it," she said.

Students can receive the shot, hit the slopes and enjoy The Homestead and Massanutte resorts.

Lyme disease also became a campus wide immunization. Medical research has not only developed new vaccines to fight the spread of influenza. These vaccines came in the form of nasal sprays or a pill. Most of these vaccines are effective if taken within 24 hours of contact, though. While influenza may be quite a dangerous illness, there are ways to prevent contraction and severity of the virus.

Courses are back in session and many of us could have done better with our grades last semester. By Richard Lane of Light Medical.

Many students are also like me or can't afford to wait until flu season. The disease is most contagious in late fall, winter and early spring months. Its levels affect millions of people every year.

As one of the leading causes of death, this respiratory virus affects millions of people every year.

"Ninety percent of illnesses spread could be prevented if people would wash their hands regularly," said Dr. Richard Lane of Light Medical.

The most effective time to get the shot is during the months of September and October. The vaccine takes about two weeks to take effect and lasts up to 14 months.

"Ninety percent of the students are effective," said Lane.

Winter brings great opportunities for outdoor sports and recreation

The most effective time to get the shot is during the months of September and October. The vaccine takes about two weeks to take effect and lasts up to 14 months.

"This is one of the things that Wong suggests in her book is that you actually plan out the schedule for the week."

The Lady Flames will open the season at home against the University of North Carolina on Feb. 13 at 1 p.m.
The Flames track and field program is taking great strides this semester to not only improve but make a push for another successful season. The 2000 campaign opens years after the athletic program has moved from NAIA to NCAA division I.

Over the last six years, the women's team has won Big South each year, placing consistently in the top three in the ECA conference. The competitive nature of the program includes colleges such as Davidson College, Wake Forest, Virginia, West Virginia, Virginia Tech and Duke University.

According to head coach Bruce Tolsma, the Lady Flames look to jump into the new millennium with a promising unit. "We have a new head coach who has been very helpful with our women's team," said Tolsma. "We have a lot of new recruits on Feb. 2, Liberty will be competing at the National Signing Day for the first time, Liberty is looking for and can find a new coach to keep us going in the right direction."

Tolsma is anticipating the team's success on the gridiron .only. "We have given a list of criteria to the firm and they will then print out a list of candidates and Liberty will select who to interview and who to hire," according to Graham. "There has been a great deal of pressure on the LU officials to act fast and fill the head coaching position as soon as possible, but that may not happen."

Lady Flames: Rebounding woes continue for Lady Flames against RU

The RU defense then shut down the Lady Flames attack and came out on top in the final five minutes of the contest. The solid defense effort by the Highlanders was the key to Liberty making it nearly impossible for the Lady Flames to pace a threat down the stretch. Tull's two free throws with 0.8 seconds remaining in regulation directed the 85-81 win for BU.

According to Graham, the Lady Flames were unable to establish anything from beyond the arc and finished with 23 three-pointers.

"We are, however, better than what will happen," Tolsma said. "We may have the best team we have ever fielded, right across the board." Tolsma said. "This is not to say that every event will be the strongest we have ever had, but on a team as we have out had a stronger contingent to date," he added. "One of the best," Tolsma said.
Rutigliano retires, searching for new purpose

By Doug Stewart, sports editor

As Coach Sam Rutigliano announced his retirement from the Liberty coaching ranks last week, the Flames' football program is now searching for a new direction.

Rutigliano has made decisions official and left that the time is right for him to turn over the reigns. The legendary coach announced that he would not return for the 2000 campaign, existing "at this time."

Rutigliano showed his appreciation for the impact that Liberty has had in his life and the university. "For myself and my family, we believe it is time for me to step away from the day-to-day activities of football and to spend more time with my family," Rutigliano said. "Some of the things that we are interested in doing as we step away from the day-to-day responsibilities of football are being with my family, being more involved in my church and my community, and doing some things that I have wanted to do for a long time but have not been able to do before due to my commitment to the football program."

But Rutigliano's impact on the Liberty football program will be felt for years to come. Under his leadership, the Flames have been a model of success, both on and off the field. His record-breaking seasons and his ability to consistently develop winners have helped to establish Liberty as one of the top programs in the country.

Rutigliano also showed his gratitude for the support he received from the fans and the university. "I would like to express my appreciation for the impact that Liberty has had on my life and the university," Rutigliano said. "I am deeply grateful for the opportunity to have been a part of this great institution and to have had the chance to make a difference in the lives of so many people."

As we move into the 21st century, we need to find a coach who is prepared to take charge, motivate the players, and ensure that we have a competitive program on the field. The 3 yards and a cloud of dust纫 is no longer enough. The Flames need someone from the outside to come in and take charge, a coach who is prepared to take charge and drive our team to gridiron success.

The only way to ensure that we have a credible, well-managed program for the future is to find a coach who is prepared to take charge, motivate the players, and ensure that we have a competitive program on the field. The 3 yards and a cloud of dust is no longer enough. The Flames need someone from the outside to come in and take charge, a coach who is prepared to take charge and drive our team to gridiron success.
