Middle East experiments with peace

"Vicious" play reveals dark side of war

By CHRISTOPHER HORN

As a photo of a group of people looking through binoculars, the title screen of "Vicious: A Play for Peace," a new production of the LU Drama Department, appears in the background.

"Vicious" is a play that takes a look at the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and the ways in which people on both sides have been affected by it. The play, which was written by Terence McNally, is set in the Israeli-Arab conflict and centers on the characters of the Israeli military and Palestinian guerrillas.

The play follows the story of a Palestinian boy named Mohammed, who is forced to leave his home and become a soldier in the Palestinian resistance. As he fights for his country, he begins to question the ethics of the war and the impact it has on both sides.

The play explores themes of war, peace, and the human cost of conflict. It challenges the audience to think critically about the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and the role of violence in resolving it.

The production of "Vicious" is part of the LU Drama Department's commitment to using theater as a tool for social change. The department believes that theater can be a powerful medium for exploring complex issues and fostering dialogue between people with different perspectives.

The production of "Vicious" takes place in the LU Drama Department's newly renovated theater, which features state-of-the-art lighting and sound systems. The production is directed by Professor Elizabeth Guillermin and features a cast of LU students.

The play will be performed at 8 p.m. on November 7th in the LU Drama Department's theater. Tickets are available for purchase online or at the door. For more information, please contact the LU Drama Department at (434) 951-5555.
Spencer reaches out to humanity

By LORRIE TRENT

Spencer's goal is to make a difference in the lives of others. “Vigna is stronger than the Lord... but...the result of all of that is helpfulness,” Spencer said. Because of Anne and Edward Spencer’s inspiration, Campus Crusade for Christ, Spencer, their son, is determined to make a difference in the lives of human beings and human relations. As an LU student today, he actively voices his opinion about community issues, such as cleaning up part of Lynchburg and the move for many years.

“Try to let the city know that there are people in this city that need help, but there are also some people that do not need help,” Spencer said. Spencer, a member of politics whose character the media and other politicians acknowledge, according to City Councilman Steven Newman. Spencer said meeting compared to the profound political. Newman did not say whether he would not use taxpayers’ money to build a room in the city’s library called the Martin Luther King Room. Rather, he said he would not use the taxpayers’ money as hang-ups pictures of politicians, serving in Congress in the move.

Spencer also speaks out concerning manipulated nations, such as the Rev. Jerry Falwell. "I wanted to fly," Spencer said. "Because of the association Spencer's parents had with government, he could learn how to fly a plane before, and we work well together," their relationship. He also began helping people who stood around such difficult roles. "People have to fight for things I think need fighting," Spencer said. "He does not get mad; he gets smart."

"He serves as a police commissioner for his accomplishments but he is also a member of the Tuskegee Airmen and was inducted into the African American Historical Society Aviation Hall of Fame in 1983.

Because Spencer’s parents contributed to society by fighting for issues they believed in like women’s rights and Negro’s rights, today their house is in a historic landmark.

"New Speaker House for the Living Christmas Tree," Crowell said. "With the exception of 1990 there are no tourists with the exception of 1990 we are all relatives one way or another.

"People have to learn to fish, then teach them everything they need to know," Spencer said. "And I want to show them how to fish a plane in Chicago.

"I don’t see why I am 5 or 6 years old and I have a plane by 1990, I used to fly," Spencer said. Chicago, Spencer organized the National Airline Association of America, a federation of black aviators who wanted to join the U.S. Air Corps. Having become a pilot, Spencer

Ministry news in brief

From staff reports

Guillermin recovers from surgery

LU President A. Pierre Guillermin is recovering from gallbladder surgery performed Saturday. The surgery was to correct heart problems. Guillermin admitted to the hospital Friday. He had been hospitalized for several days in early October because of that.

Dr. Jerry Falwell announced Sunday the camp to plan to move to First Baptist Church of Lynchburg for the second semester of this school year. The school said it had decided to move for many reasons.

He also announced that the Old Time Gospel Hour building at Langhorne Farms had been leased to a local religious enterprise. He further stated that the North Campus facilities could be sold in a matter of weeks. He also announced that the North Campus facilities could be sold in a matter of weeks.

The 2nd performance of the Living Christmas Tree at Thomas Road Baptist Church is entitled "This Magnificent Season." Performances and times are as follows: Dec. 10 and 11 at 7 p.m. Dec. 15, 1 and 5 p.m. (A flyer insert will provide the performance times only), Dec. 17 and 18 at 1 and 5 p.m.

All tickets are $5; however, LU students may purchase 10 seats for $40. The tickets of the Rev. Falwell, who is a member of the Thomas Road Baptist Church, will be the doors. Other faculty will also participate.

The school will offer two years of required courses for students who feel a definite call to the pulpit.

Falwell said. He added that many pastors have stated that the school does not provide special training for those who have gained college education, may have families and friends of responsibilities and have not interest in an ordination or graduate program. Many of these men do not feel called to the ministry.

Falwell said. They simply want to learn the Bible and learn how to lead, build and minister in a local congregation.

"There are many questions and answers with substance abuse," Weaver said. "We hope the campus community will join us to make our fight against substance abuse a success."

"The campaign project will be involved in cleaning up the campus and the surrounding communities," Weaver said. "This is an opportunity for the campus community to become involved."
PRESIDENT begins campaign push on unemployment benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, citing the same threat to economic growth, said Wednesday that President Bush would back a trimmed-down $30 billion package to extend unemployed benefits for the year.

Spokesman Martin Frost, who was not authorized to discuss the program offered by Democrats, said if it were to come up before Bush aides would recommend a veto.

The bill would debut and give Bush's call for an immediate economic stimulus.

Bush told the House Ways and Means Committee last week that lawmakers should act to keep a sharp eye on them over the next few months as the nation nears the end of its record 82-month expansion.

Bush's remarks came in response to questions from Rep. Richard W. Cutler, R-N.H., who has been leading the push in Congress for the relief.

Bush's visit to New Hampshire came as the nation lapsed into recession last week, with Bush pressing for a $30 billion package to extend unemployed benefits.

Bush is expected to announce his plan on Thursday, according to a White House aide.

Frost said the administration is not yet ready to assess the impact of the recession on the economy.

The plan would be unveiled after the president finishes his trip to the Midwest.

Bush said he would not put a figure on his plan, but he would be calling for a "full and fair" solution to the unemployment problem.

Bush said the administration has already asked Congress to extend the benefits for another 14 weeks.

He said he would also press for a third try by congressional Democrats to extend unemployment benefits for another 14 weeks.

The administration is also considering other options, including extending benefits for another 14 weeks and increasing the maximum benefit for unemployed workers from 39 weeks to 52 weeks.

Bush said he would be working with Congress to find a solution to the unemployment problem as soon as possible.

He said he was "very happy" with the progress being made.

Bush added that he would be "very happy" with any progress that is made.

Self-made cooks need to consider safety aspect of dorm cooking

For some reason, you just don't feel like eating in the cafeteria. Maybe it's a dark and stormy night and you don't want to be walking around in the rain. Or maybe you are just too busy to get to the cafeteria. Whatever your reason, there are almost always people around in the dorm cooking something to eat in their dorm room. Sometimes, they are preparing a meal for a friend. Other times, they are preparing a meal for themselves. Whatever the reason, almost every college student eats in their dorm room at some point.

However, there are some hazards associated with cooking in dorm rooms. One of the main hazards is the risk of fire. Dorm rooms are not equipped with the same level of fire protection as regular homes. When cooking in a dorm room, you should always be careful to keep the cooking area clear of flammable materials. You should also make sure that the cooking area is well-ventilated to avoid the buildup of smoke.

Another hazard in the dorm room is the risk of foodborne illness. Dorm rooms are often crowded and may not always be the cleanest place. When cooking in a dorm room, you should always wash your hands thoroughly before and after handling food. You should also be careful to wash your hands after handling raw meat and poultry.

Also, you should be careful when using a microwave or oven. Microwaves can be dangerous if they are not used properly. When using a microwave, you should always be careful to avoid burns. You should also make sure that the microwave door is closed tightly to avoid spills.

Another hazard is the risk of burns when using an oven. Ovens can be very hot, and you should always be careful when handling hot cookware. You should also make sure that the oven is turned off and cooled down before you use it.

It is important to remember that cooking in a dorm room is not the same as cooking in a home kitchen. When cooking in a dorm room, you should always be careful to follow proper safety guidelines. You should also be sure to use the appropriate equipment and utensils.

Baseball ends with a classic

The major 1991 World Series featured two unlikely World Series leaders. The powerful Kansas City Royals and the Atlanta Braves each season were considered to be in the race for the World Series, but in the end, both teams were eliminated in the World Series.

The Braves had a few chances at the World Series, but the game to put together a drive and not lose the ball. At the same time, the team was expected to perform in the World Series. The team was playing for the championship, but it was almost a little too long. We are taking the remainder of the game into consideration for a 5-15 record in the second half of the season. However, the Braves came out and showed that they were not to be taken lightly.

The Flames have received funding from the National Collegiate Athletic Association to help pay for drug testing.

The NCAA provides funding for drug testing at member institutions to help prevent drug abuse in college athletics. Liberty has been approved for $2,500 per year to fund drug testing for its student-athletes.

The funding will be used to cover the cost of drug tests and the administration of the program. Liberty will be one of the first Big South schools to have a drug testing program.
