LU celebrates Black History Month in style

Miss Liberty discontinued indefinitely

By Suzanne McDuffie
Opinion Editor

After 10 years of highlighting Liberty University's Humanities Institute, the final Miss Liberty has been crowned, citing a lack of student interest, expenses, and this year's computer problems.

Traditionally, Miss Liberty reserved her crown during the fall and spring show of the informal homecoming football game. However, this year's Miss Liberty was crowned to open the 1998-99 academic year.

In order to win the Miss Liberty contest, participants competed in a four-part voting process. Seniors received the first ballot with all the eligible contestants. Only 5 percent of the senior class voted for this crown, and the turnout rose to one-third of the eligible voters. But according to traditional voting rules, only 5 percent participated in the final voting.

The faculty voted in order to narrow the list, but in 1998, only 13 percent participated. This year's seniors had a strong interest in the final contest, and the turnout was about 13 percent of the eligible voters. However, the turnout was only 5 percent of the eligible voters.

In 1998, the final contest was held at the basketball game, and in 1999, the final contest was held on campus.

In 1998, the final contest was held in the student center, and in 1999, the final contest was held in the student center.

In 1998, the final contest was held on campus, and in 1999, the final contest was held in the student center.

“Antichrist” sermon draws fire to LU’s chancellor

BL RICK BOWES

LU Chancellor Dr. Jerry Falwell has come under fire recently after speaking his perspective on the Antichrist will be Jews. In an April 14, Falwell said the Antichrist will possibly return within 10 years, and that the Antichrist will be white and to be today after 20 years. Falwell also quickly stated, Jesus may not return for 10 years. No one knows the date of the Antichrist’s return.

Some Jewish groups and opponents of Falwell reacted strongly, with Abraham Foxman of the Anti-Defamation League labeling Falwell’s comments “rooted in Christian fundamentalism.” The situation escalated June 24 when Harvard law professor Alan Dershowitz, a Jewish figure who has clashed with Falwell politically, stated when Falwell publicly clarified it was wrong to be working at Harvard. Dershowitz supplied what he heard from reliable people who heard the comments. Falwell said and was surprised by the reaction to his sermon. Most fundamentalists have been preaching the Second Coming of Jesus Christ for a long time. In a sermon, Falwell said the Antichrist will be a counter-part of Jesus and, since the cornerstone of the Christian faith was humanism, Jesus would be the other. Rabbi Janis Rudows of the American Jewish Committee defended Falwell by stating, “Jewish people are not like anti-Semitic people. The committee wanted to be sensitive to the cries of Jesus’ followers on both sides and that it is a Jewish event, not an anti-Semitic one. I am probably the most pro-Jewish... evangelical in the world.”

“Wilshire” coming for Junior/Senior

BY BROOK KENYON

Student Life and the Student Government Association (SGA) have announced the “Wilshire” as the entertainment for the year’s Senior Prom, yet to be held on March 20 at 8 p.m. Additionally, they have announced the pre-price tickets for the event.

The senior group of Mabie and Lettice were the driving force behind the Wilshire, a new Indianapolis Nekton label. The two will be introduced to the even’s living room.

Michael W. Smith’s "Live the Life" tour stop with Chris flea at the Schilling Center, 7:30 p.m. on April 13. We have heard all positives things about these groups and Chris, Stuart John, Stuart June and members of the planning committee. They are a 14-piece band and it is a couple evening, so we are hoping they will have some decent engagement and things like that as well. Wilshire will be a full band for their performance, which will highlight that they continue with their "Mabie Voyage." Lavender house. Liberty was first. Parties and junior seniors will be charged the same price for the event. Prices for tickets will be $10.50 in advance and $11.50 at the door. We have all die latest ADA issues. We are going to provide the best possible service and a food delivery service. The member will provide guests with several options for their evening. A complete meal can be purchased for $80 and includes chicken, mashed potatoes, vegetables, a salad, dessert. Waffles waffles, fresh fruit, and sides to complete the meal. The cost will begin with pictures at 9:00 p.m.

Recognized students must be juniors or seniors and a good Christian service record, also needed. The black gala will be held in the Hollander Ballroom at 8 p.m., and tickets can be reserved in MISO for $20.

The focus of this year’s celebration, Pearl said, is “I really just to acknowledge what a lot of students have overlooked. I’m looking to put our students on the view on Black History Month this year.”

Dashawnпле, chair of MISO, said, “We believe that because of Liberty, and Liberty’s for all the students. If you call your mom, and you should all count together as one. God don’t see colors.”

Researchers: AIDS came to humans from chimpanzees

A research team at the University of Alabama has discovered that the first HIV-1 mutation in humans was passed on to an chimpanzees.

Chimps carry the virus without becoming ill. After first infectinghuman in the 1950s or 60s, the disease has spread to over 35 million people today.

The U.S. Army team says it has found at least four cases of cross-species transmission of the AIDS virus.

LU debate ranks one, two in nation

By Bill Meyer
Champagne Reporter

The young Liberty varsity debaters continued their improvement over last semester by starting 1999 with a dominant victory at the George Mason National Debate Tournament. The Liberty debaters are ranked number one in the nation for the first time in school history.

The final national ranking is based on the following criteria: winning percentage, number of wins, number of rounds won, number of rounds won in the final round, and the number of tournaments in which the team advanced.

The Liberty varsity debaters are ranked number one in the nation. They were the only team to win all six of their prelim rounds, and they advanced to the final round of the tournament. They defeated the varsity team of the Naval Academy to win the national championship.

The Liberty debaters are ranked number two in the nation. They were the only team to win all six of their prelim rounds, and they advanced to the final round of the tournament. They defeated the varsity team of the University of Miami to win the national championship.

The Liberty debaters are ranked number three in the nation. They were the only team to win all six of their prelim rounds, and they advanced to the final round of the tournament. They defeated the varsity team of the University of South Carolina to win the national championship.

The Liberty debaters are ranked number four in the nation. They were the only team to win all six of their prelim rounds, and they advanced to the final round of the tournament. They defeated the varsity team of the University of Georgia to win the national championship.

The Liberty debaters are ranked number five in the nation. They were the only team to win all six of their prelim rounds, and they advanced to the final round of the tournament. They defeated the varsity team of the University of California to win the national championship.

The Liberty debaters are ranked number six in the nation. They were the only team to win all six of their prelim rounds, and they advanced to the final round of the tournament. They defeated the varsity team of the University of Texas to win the national championship.

Dr. Brett O'Donnell, Liberty University director of debate, said, "That victory shows their maturity. This team is getting better and better as the season progresses."

‘Christmas with an Orphan’ provides love for needy kids in India

Trainer for the Liberty football team, teaching the kids American sport. The younger girls hovered over some of the Liberal girls, wanting to be held. The shade of the tapioca tree, children would be needed against an LU student. The children came from all walks of life. The orphanage began when Dr. M.A. Thomas had a burden for the leper children of India. Lepers are shunned from society and are made to live in their own colonies. It was difficult to provide for their children. While Thomas was working among the lepers, a doctor informed him that children born into leper colonies were not necessarily lepers, however, if they continued to live in the contaminated colony they would contract the dreadful disease. It was at this point that the first Emmanuel Orphanage was started in Kota out of pity for these leper children and compassion for the many orphans in India. Not all of the children are from leper families. Many at the home are orphans because their parents were killed to tribal wars in India. Most orphans have lost several members of the family and are made to work. Orphaned children are shunned by society. Several of the older children were killed to tribal wars in India. Lepers and orphans in India. It is ironic to truly understand one’s willingness as stated in James 1:27, said Leger. The Christmas Carolers gathered at Emmanuel Orphanage to spend time with the children and provide love for them. "Through the highs and the lows that come with a missions trip, I learned that come with a missions trip, I learned that I have a passion for these children and the love, which is far more than people of India.” - Erin Taylor, Sophomore Erin Taylor said, “I know I want to go back and help the people of India.”

ON THE STREET - Members of the Liberty team meet some of the locals while exploring downtown Kota during their stay in India.

There are so many rewards to gain in India by spending time with the Emmanuel Bible Institute students and orphans. It was great as they remembered me by giving back the love that I gave them last year,” she said.

"We are so happy that you are here and if we were here and if we were to live in their homes, and organized and distributed gifts to the children. Through the highs and the lows that come with a mission trip, I enjoyed the time spent with my American team," Taylor said.

“I know I want to go back. I have changed my major so I can go back and help the people of India.” - Erin Taylor, Sophomore Erin Taylor said, “I know I want to go back. I have changed my major so I can go back and help the people of India.”

"The love that I gave them last year was concentrated on the orphans through Emmanuel Ministries International. Junior Mike Leger returned to India for the second time this Christmas. Both times were unique. Last year’s Light team led evangelical crusades, while this year was concentrated on the orphans. "It’s ironic to truly understand that it takes on special talent of skill to love and invest in these little children, only availability and willingness as stated in James 1:27,” said Leger.

Putting the Super Bowl loss in perspective

It wasn't a great weekend for Atlanta Falcons safety Eugene Robinson. Not only did his team get plastered by John Elway's Broncos. Not only did his teammate Dan Reeves get kicked in the head. But, oh, let's face it, a parade without a queen and a excitement over the Miss Liberty contest.

The student body's voter turnout not only reflects their intellect but also their something to believe in, something to look forward to and something to pull us closer to our alma mater. LU should join her collegiate counterparts and pursue a thing to take pride in.

COMMENTARY

Protesting Clinton's defense

By Joseph Franklin

Champion Editor-at-large

This past December the House Republicans and the House Democrats gave America a show of force that was completely predictable. The House of Representatives impeached William Jefferson Clinton, President of the United States, on charges of perjury and obstruction of justice in the sexual harassment civil suit brought against him by Kathleen Willey, and on charges of perjury in the obstruction of justice in the sexual harassment civil suit brought against him by Gennifer Flowers. In a three-hour long speech, the president of the United States, the Honorable William Jefferson Clinton, addressed the charges and made his defense. The American people, for the most part, will not be impressed with the defense. They would like to know why the president, or any other person, lied to a grand jury. They would like to know if the president, or any other person, obstructed justice.

"In the collection of taxes for their [the Democrats] failed social programs more charges are made. If one person is supposed to be impeached then all others are supposed to be impeached?"

Especially on the 3rd

At long last all grocery store in America today can finally advertise their products in packages that display in big, bold letters such things as "Low fat," "50 Percent Less Sodium," "No Salt Added," and "Sugar Free." These labels, so happily propagated by companies like Utter^hampior^Page8 Tuesday. February 2, 1999 were ignoring our supposed popular opinion and putting out their products in the same manner that they would have done before any American has become aware of the fact that the president, or any other person, lied to a grand jury. They would like to know if the president, or any other person, obstructed justice.

By Tom Hampton

Champion Defender

Everyone knows that curing obesity will be the real test of Clinton's defense strategy (at least for Republicans). Any reasonable person can see that the essential points are: (1) the president did not commit these offenses, and (2) the president has been removed from office. And the more we hear about the president's defense strategy, the more we will realize that these essential points are the only ones that are really important.

I was ignoring our supposed popular opinion and putting out their products in the same manner that they would have done before any American has become aware of the fact that the president, or any other person, lied to a grand jury. They would like to know if the president, or any other person, obstructed justice.

"Perhaps your conversations have been boring, " you're no more than a secretary of state, and I don't know what salt is."

By conclusion

Even as soon as the first day of school, many students begin missing the days of school, until the next break. The Stanley's eats quality of their diet, the drizzly prospect of long nights of study, and fond memories of home (especially of the food found there) can make one intensely anxious for the next holiday to arrive. Unfortunately, some students end up deciding to leave early. Any congressman who left before Congress* session ended would have to answer for himself. But at least it means that you have to experience a little bit of pain.

"Come on, guys! Don't give up yet! Defending Bill is EASY! There's only one tiny problem... he's guilty."

A visitor's guide to Lynchburg's restaurants and hotels

A through graduation may seem few light-years away during the cold winter months. However, it's never too early to start making plans for celebrating the big day. The problem of finding and housing out-of-town guests may seem daunting, but rather than spend five or six figures on one large banquet hall, consider some of the many other options that can serve the same purpose.

Backyard Grill

By Corey Davis

The bright, open interior of Backyard Grill is located in the parking lot of River Ridge Mall, not far from Liberty. Although several others have tried to open in Lynchburg back in 1950, it's never been more popular, because it simply because she wanted to be different — for car or wish to be, but not for the weekend. The restaurant is on a Renaissance with mushrooms.

"I haven't forgotten it yet," said Knauf. "I can't stop thinking about it. I can't get it out of my mind."

The restaurant is one of the most popular places for students to eat in Lynchburg, and it's not difficult to see why. The food is delicious, the atmosphere is inviting, and the prices are reasonable. For reservations, call (804) 237-2704.

"It's kind of cute, don't you think? It's not as intimidating as a fancy restaurant, but it's not as casual as a fast-food place," said Knauf.

The restaurant was opened in 1993 by a group of local businessmen who wanted to provide a place for students and faculty to eat on campus. The restaurant has been a success, and it continues to grow in popularity every year.
When Liberty University was still a "dropout" in Dr. Falwell's eye, the first building built on the campus was coming up in its 60th anniversary. This building was named Montview by its first owner, but most students know it as the Mansion. It is nestled in a grove of trees on the Liberty University campus, virtually hidden from the Stadium and has a front porch that offers a breathtaking view of Lynchburg.

"It's one of Lynchburg's older homes; it's history," said Brenda Casell, a secretary at the St. Paul Episcopal Church.

Montview presently houses the offices of Dr. Jerry Falwell Jr. and Dr. Guetterman. It is also the place where Dr. Falwell's publications — the National Liberty Journal and The Jerry Falwell Confidential are written.

The U.S. Department of interior placed Montview on the National Registry of Historic Places. The mansion is also listed on the Virginia Landmarks Register.

Built in 1923, it was the second Liberty house to be constructed. Montview is one of our most famous public servants: Carter Glass.

Glass was the editor and publisher of the Lynchburg News for 20 years and served as a senator from the Commonwealth of Virginia for four terms. He took his oath of office for his fourth term at Montview because he was unable to travel to Washington at the time for health reasons.

"I don't much mind being a U.S. senator, but I sure would like to live in the Virginia Senate. But I am sufficiently pleased to be a Virginian than being a U.S. senator."

Montview, originally a farm house, was so built that there was a large room on the second floor where Mrs. Glass did not lose her sun room on the south end, held the senator's library and the one in the Sitting Room had been added from a building to the Virginia Senate.

On the opposite side of the hall was the dining room and the staircase, set off by 16-foot ceilings and polished oak floors.

"I sit in my office sometimes and think, 'Wow, this was once the bedroom of a great American.'"

Another thing I like about my office is my window looks out over the bare field so I can keep track of the score," Smith added.

Liberty modified the house for office use, but most of the original woodwork and doors have remained. The sitting room on the south end, held the senator's bedroom until it was torn down and the Senate changed its mind about adding the room.

The entrance may have been restored, but Montview is anything but a "typical farmhouse."

The front hall was dominated by a large stairway, set off by 16-foot ceilings and polished oak floors.

To the right of the hall was the living room, a large room that extended from the front (east) side of the house to the back. Beyond, along the south side of the house, was Glass' favorite room: a sun-capped porch which he could sit in at any time of day and look out at the Liberty mountain.

The room was named Glass' sitting room because it was used by Mrs. Glass while she was in the Senate.

Mrs. Glass' sitting room was off the living room on the first floor. It was a sun room on the south end, held the senator's library and the one in the Sitting Room had been added from a building to the Virginia Senate.

On the opposite side of the hall was the dining room and the staircase, set off by 16-foot ceilings and polished oak floors.

The environment may have been restored, but Montview is anything but a "typical farmhouse."

Liberty students enjoy various forms of entertainment on the campus lawn where the Jesse House's Carter Glass Farm Friends or the Falwell mansion serves as a tribute to a man who symbolizes the integrity of the state of Virginia and the university where his mansion now stands.

NEW YORK — As the second home of Virginia Senator Carter Glass, Montview presents a fascinating complete with Jersey cows grazing on the front lawn.

The former bedroom of Carter Glass is now the office of National Liberty Journal Editor Mark Smith.

"It’s neat," said Smith of his Montview office. "I sit in my office sometimes and think, “Wow, this was once the bedroom of a great American.”"

"Another thing I like about my office is my window looks out over the bare field so I can keep track of the score," Smith added.

Radford punishes Flames 86-60; LU losing streak reaches seven straight games

BY BROOKE HERRMANN

Stables broke ground in late April 2009 to start the Liberty Baseball Field House. However, construction didn’t last long.

“We hired SBM Engineers as the general contractor,” Head Football Coach Dave Peticolas said. “Then they hired Ahern Construction as a sub out of Raleigh. Ahern hired a sub out of Raleigh, but the sub only built a baseball field house. However, all the work will be done by Liberty and SBM.” Peticolas said.

So we have the builders, where is the building, you ask? Peticolas went on to say, “All of the funding for the project was taken by the state.”
