The campus pastors stressed that each hour of prayer is open to everyone, and it was hoped those five people returning three to four times.

"One can't just come pray for an hour and then drink coffee," Carson said. "This is the aspect of prayer, not only of prayer, but of prayer for one's family, prayer for one's church, prayer for the nation's leaders, prayer for the church nationally, prayer for world evangelization and prayer for the Rev. Jerry Falwell." While in attendance to the Prayer Chapel, the Deli will be available and the Free Tutorial Center will be open. Arrangements groups aloud intervals of an hour each day from Sunday to Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday, "We don't want it to be an organized program, yet we need a style of prayer," Carson explained.

Each state and country has been represented in the 50 prayer stations, and those who enter have presented their own contributions and the national congress. The campus was stuffed with people who would not even agree that America has once been the nation of Judas-Christian values, Christian heritage or religious beliefs. Yet it was a very relevant and unusual experience, "I love it," Carson said.

The campus pastors have recorded the events during the past summer, and they will be publicly released in the fall. "The first one that led to the cancellation of the fall congress was an incident downtown in our city which was a very bad situation," Carson said. "A resident of the development, Patricia Boven, spoke out in opposition to the proposed plan. "We are a group of citizens being pushed around by large developers and nurses," Boven said. "We really put a petition signed by all but two families in the Heritage Hills division who don't want their property value depreciated by this new subdivision which is going to be located near us."
Edwards defeats Duke in Louisiana's election

Statewide polls showed Edwards had won by a narrow margin of 39 percent to 37 percent, with 3 percent of the vote still uncounted.

Edwards said the nation's economy was on the rebound, and he vowed that he would continue to work to make Louisiana a more attractive place for business and industry.

"The economy is improving, and I will continue to work to make Louisiana a more attractive place for business and industry," Edwards said.

Edwards defeated Duke in a resounding victory, with 52 percent of the vote to 43 percent for Duke. Duke conceded in a speech to supporters at a downtown New Orleans hotel.

Thanksgiving changes as we grow older

As children, Thanksgiving meant Pilgrims and Indians. School hallways resonated with frontier images; billboards bristled with autumn's wildflowers; and rustling leaves hinted at a season's blanket. Now, we recognize that Thanksgiving is a celebration of the harvest, of abundance, of community. It is a time to reflect on the blessings we have received and to give thanks for the loved ones who have shared in those blessings.

This year, we welcomed the traditional turkeys, the cranberry sauce, the yams, and the pies. We enjoyed the company of family and friends, and we were grateful for the opportunity to spend time together.

As we grow older, our perspective on Thanksgiving changes. We realize that it is not just a time to celebrate the harvest, but also a time to appreciate the abundance of our lives. We are reminded that the blessings we have received are not just material possessions, but also the love and support of those around us.

So let us take a moment to reflect on the blessings we have received and to give thanks for the loved ones who have shared in those blessings. Happy Thanksgiving!
Girls an alternative to abortion

The ministry is an outgrowth of the Godparent Ministry, an organization that offers an alternative to abortion. The Godparent Home offers a place to live and provides the medical care required to resolve their health. We have to house the 16-year-olds, she says. However, she does not want to disappoint her parents, and that can happen quickly. She fills the girls with love and support for the girls to live.

A 16-year-old girl has just learned she is pregnant. She is unprepared, what can she do? She stumbles to the pay phone. "I could care less about accounting," she says. Hart of the Matter

State of apathy can lead to neglect of obligations

You have ever woken up with apathy during your last holiday? If you've felt like answering yes, you're not alone.

Apathy has its downfalls. Lack of personal involvement, or "involvement," although this condition implies willful neutrality, it is an apathetic stage, unwilling and unable to concentrate on the matter at hand. In anticipation of celebrations miles away, the holidays are almost here.

Are there spies in the NFL?

Arguments about "spies" have been flying around the National Football League for the past 36 years. Some experts believe that "spies" come in a variety of forms:

- Some spies are not actually spies. They are former football players who work for the scouting departments of NFL teams. These "spies" are often former players who have been hired to evaluate the performance of other players.

- Other spies are actual spies. These spies may be hired by the NFL to gather information on teams or players.

The Champion of weeks. Sure, there may have been times when the champions of the first half didn't control the first half. But there have been instances in which New York was going to new heights this season.

"Knew a little more than they should have," said Rossley, who was paid $1,500 a week to provide his input on the Oilers' coaches and apparently gather information from them.

"It may have been enough to tell us that Rossley's information was, indeed, accurate," said one source.

"The distribution of information will only continue to grow," said Gibbs, who admitted to using a source to try to gain an edge.

"The whole spy accusation business is a "spy" masquerading as a reporter," said one source.

"It seems New York is being overlooked by the press," said one source.

"The practice of using "supposed" media members to peel for any suspicious behavior is going on."
