Students jam with CCM artists

By Angela Nelson, reporter

In celebration of their last night performing together, the various artists of the Winter Jam 2001 tour had a night of dynamic singing in the Vines Center Monday. Lead singer Mark Stuart of Audio Adrenaline opened the Vines Center Monday, Feb. 12, opening the house for the evening. Many people come forward for solutions at the altar call near the end of the concert.

The concert featured seven different performers. The main performers were Big House, lead singer Mark Stuart of Audio Adrenaline. They really got the crowd energized.

The concert was being held to raise money for Christ-Centered Missions. He said he enjoyed that the audience was able to sing along in the microphone. He said that the change in dress code was a step in the right direction. The concert ended with the classic song In the new "Left Behind" movie.

TO TIE OR NOT TO TIE — Some LU guys celebrate the change in men’s dress code. Dr. Fahvell announced Feb. 7 that men can now be given the option of not wearing ties to class.

"Better Times should help improve the image of the Liberty logo," said one LU student. "It’s a great way to promote our school and attract more students."

Charity Christian, who works for the Center for World Missions, hopes that during this week of events and activities students will realize that racism is not just for the religious right or the seminar students.

Christian said, “There isn’t a place for everyone in missions, especially with the advances in technology, everyone can play a part.”

Hamer particularly wants to encourage missions students to continue the panel discussion on Monday, Feb. 13. He explained that the lost trip to Nigeria was working on a team.

Not “at Liberty to Party”

As an aspiring graduate in a small town like my home here in the US, I find myself questioning the idea of “at Liberty to Party.” The phrase seems to hold a special meaning for those who have never left the comfort of their home. However, for me, it holds a different connotation.

The idea of being able to live life without the constraints of technology seems like a dream. But as I approach the end of my college career, I can’t help but wonder if I have truly lived a life free from the distractions of technology.

While I can appreciate the convenience of technology, I can’t help but feel like I’ve missed out on something by never truly being able to disconnect. The constant connection to the world can be both a blessing and a curse.

As I think about the idea of being at Liberty to Party, I can’t help but wonder if I’ve truly lived a life free from the distractions of technology. The constant connection to the world can be both a blessing and a curse. It’s a balancing act that I’m still trying to master.

Ultimately, I believe that technology has become a part of my identity. It’s a tool that I use to communicate and learn, and I can’t imagine living without it. But I do wonder if there’s more to life than the constant connection to the world.

It's February 13 and still no plans for Valentine's Day? Never fear, even the campus life members have their plans for the romantic holiday. So, take the opportunity to make a date with your sweetheart, plan a dinner, or surprise your other half with flowers. The possibilities are endless.

There are many ways to display our love to the people who are special to us this Valentine's Day, especially to the One who first loved us. This year, take the time to honor Him by what you can buy. Dating back to biblical times, showing appreciation and devotion to the One who first loved us is an important aspect of Valentine's Day. To accomplish this, we will be taking a look at the history of Valentine's Day.

The origin of Valentine's Day is thought to have been started by a priest named St. Valentine, who lived in Rome. It is said that he was put to death for helping偷偷相爱的情侣. St. Valentine gave hope to many individuals and was able to continue to perform his duties despite the danger. He was eventually martyred, and his death was celebrated on February 14th.

Valentine's Day is traditionally a time to show love and affection to those whom we care about. This can take many forms, such as sending flowers, giving gifts, or writing love letters. However, the true essence of Valentine's Day is not about the material aspects, but rather about the expression of love and the willingness to give of oneself.

- 2/16 Black History Multi-Cultural Celebration
- 2/17 Band Night at David's Place
- 2/17 Valentine's Coffee House
- 2/21 Skiing in Beaver Creek

VALENTINE'S DAY IS NOT JUST FOR COUPLES — a group of female UL students put aside some time this Valentine's season to fellowship, have love and romance about old memories.

Whether with a friend, family or flame, Valentine's Day is a day to celebrate love.
The love we give away is the only love we keep.

Baseball readies for season

By Matt Stewart, reporter

As the weather turns warmer, the Liberty University baseball team is on the brink of the 2001 season. The Flames are scheduled to open the season on Valentine's Day with a series against Virginia at the new $2.5 million base at Worthington Stadium. This year the Flames will put out a team that is ranked 26th in the pre-season poll. While many people have questioned the Flames' ability to bounce back from key losses, the team has re-tooled and is now projected by some to be more powerful than the 2000 version is.

With four experienced seniors returning, Wetmore is not counting on the team's defense to carry the team. The leadership that we have, the combination of speed, arm strength and hitting ability is something that we have. The combination of speed, arm strength and hitting ability is something that we have to accomplish. Wetmore said.

The team was asked what they liked best about their opponents this year. "Nothing," said Green.

The Lady Flames barely won the rebounding battle, 36-32, to the mercy of the Merritt-Hutchinson Stadium in Lynchburg. But they made the game much more exciting. Any time fans are in the game, the atmosphere changes and the players respond positively.

The baseball team annually hosts nationally ranked opponents on the road as well as at home at Westfieldton. This year the Flames welcome Virginia Tech. Wake Forest, the University of Virginia, and several other teams to the bench.

As October rolls around this year it will still be the big game that it was last year. "It was a big game that we can learn from," Green said.

According to doctors, however, because Shubert broke the side of the forehead in his fall, he should be able to return to play for the final games in March on February 22.

Despite the misfortune, LU was still able to maintain respectable records and gained some talent with Wilson and too, as well as Jeff Lowes, Mike Gueslla, and John Shubert each with one.

The Flames. Goalie Mike Gueslla and the LU team have a vision to take this place to the top, "Karcher stated during the recruiting period. "We're very excited about all the ways."

Karcher signed 22 players and the recruiting process has been, as they will provide the best team-building "building-a-solid-program" and will address the needs that we have at various positions." Karcher welcomes the competitiveness that the recruits will bring to the field but believes that the biggest difference will be in the running back system as he looked at the school which often produces white spots)

In the history of sports there have been many great comebacks which are so inspiring. Some athletes have come out of retirement to return to the top of their game.

In 1977 at the age of 28, four years after finishing the 1973 season, heavyweight champion George Foreman retired. These same fears Foreman returned to the ring to regain his title. In 1994, 21 years after finishing his best weight championship, George Foreman defeated future Hall of Famer Michael Moorer at the age of 45, to regain his second heavyweight championship. Foreman’s comeback was unbelievable, but the two greatest comebacks in sports history have happened within the last five years, one of which is happening right now.

In 1993 after winning his third NBA title and retiring. However, after 2½ years later Jordan returned to the NBA and shocked the world by resuming his Illustrious careers while others have come out of retirement to get back into the game early in the second half. Chris Caldwell, who led Florida Southern with 17 points, played five minutes in the first five minutes to cut Asheville’s lead to nine. Five minutes later the Flames Nathan Day would knock down a jumper to put the lead to 36-41. That would cut the lead as the Flames would get it and Asheville would respond with a 7-5 run, capped off by the victory. Carey Free, to take 35-41 lead.

The comeback would not be enough as the Flames lost a heartbreaking exhibition in the last five minutes.

In Jan. of 2001 Lemleux was on the verge of cancer as he returned to the mound for Dravecky in his second start. As Dravecky delivered a pitch a loud crack was heard. The comeback was over.

In the early 1980s the San Francisco Giants Corky Demarest was one of the best left-handed pitchers in baseball, but an arm injury which forced out the career forced him from the game.

In 1999 after winning the third NCAA title, Mike Jacobs Jordan retired the world by wearing. However, after 2½, 2½ seasons later, Jordan returned to the NBA and led the Bulls to three more titles, while reestablish his career.

In 1994, 21 years after finishing his best weight championship, Michael Jordan shocked the world by resuming his career after retiring.
