Movie dredges up Falwell legal battle

By TIMOTHY J. GIBBONS

Falwell said Larry King told him about a scene in the movie in which Charles Keating is seated which is still an option for SACS. "He wants to show that he loves Flynt," Falwell said.

"Flynt is a very, very lonely and bitter person," he said. "I think the movie is part of Flynt's quest for respectability," the LU chancellor said. "He wants to make the movie an example of how he could make a success of his life after his mother was exempt." "I am delighted with the accuracy," Falwell said. "I thought the movie was a very good representation of the life of Flynt and the events that occurred."

"I am pleased with the movie," Falwell said. "I think it shows that Flynt was a very successful businessman and he was a very successful publisher."

"I think the movie is a very good representation of Flynt's life," Falwell said. "I think it shows the importance of his contributions to the First Amendment and the importance of his contributions to the First Amendment to Liberty." "I think the movie is a very good representation of the life of Flynt and the events that occurred," Falwell said.

SACS changes name to SALTS

By JASON FRIEML

Changes have been ushered into the office of Liberty University's pro-life club, Students for a Culture of Life. The club changed its name to Students for a Culture of Life, and its members have made a new statement of purpose.

In a prepared statement, SACS President John F. Earl said, "The new name of the organization has been announced as Students for a Culture of Life. Our goal is to "educate students in the plight of the unborn" and to "involve the students in the active fight against abortion and bio-ethics.""

"We are committed to "educate students in the plight of the unborn" and to "involve the students in the active fight against abortion and bio-ethics,"" Earl said.

Students flip out over stir-fry bar

By JAYDE DION

A variety of new dishes can be seen on student trays this semester in the cafeteria. The addition of a new wok service at Marriott enables students to stir fry their own meals.

Six new wok cooking stations have been added with wide-open space. According to the novelty of the new line, service is expected to be a little rocky in the beginning.

However, according to Marriott workers, this new line is running much smoother than previous additions dined by the cafeteria.

The new service gives students an opportunity to prepare food for themselves. "I like it much better than take taste changes," said John Edens, a returning student.

The service is expected to run throughout the entire spring semester. One Marriott worker was assigned to the area, with an additional person helping during the rush hours.

Some students are cooking for themselves for the first time. "I touch these, then I learn a little," said Geraldine Saunders, a Marriott促使 worker on the line. "The menu for the week includes a selection of various fresh vegetables which are served daily, and a choice of meats which are prepared personaliy."

The line also allows students to eat a little healthier. "The vegetables are fresh, plus they're good for you," said student Alessandro Lee.

Feedback from the student body has been positive so far and the long lines have been evident of it. Students have been willing to stand in the lines in order to sample this new addition to Marriott. Most students have already tried the new dish more than once. "I vised the lines were shorter with more woks because of time schedules," saidstudent Hawkins.

One that will cost $1.2 million to $1.5 million and take three to five years to complete.

Sargeant said. "It's on-going for students."

The fee has enabled the school to provide e-mail accounts for all students. "Everybody already has an e-mail address," Sargeant said. "All they have to do is activate that account. We've had very few account problems so far."

The rest of the improvements will be less visible, as Liberty plans to construct the infrastructures necessary to support a technologically-aware campus.

"We're committed to doing the right kinds of things," Sargeant said. "not just buying more stuff."

Students plan to march for life in D.C.

By JASON ROSE

Champion Reporter

A chartered bus will leave Liberty University at 7 a.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 22, and head to Washington, D.C., for the 24th annual March for Life demonstration.

The date marks the anniversary of the Roe vs. Wade decision, which legalized abortion in 1973.

In the past, more than 300,000 pro-life supporters have attended the march.

"We need to be aware of what is taking place in our country," said Dennis Johnson, a member of VIP, a life organization stalled by members of the pro-life movement.

Johnson said last year's march was unorganized and never got on the light for the nations. He pointed out that the march will be organized by the members of the Liberty University March for Life.

A rally will be held in the ellipse area behind the White House, followed by Constitution Avenue and around the Capitol for the rally.

Last year, two buses from Lynchburg to Washington, D.C., were cancelled due to Washington for the rally.

Faculty, students cope with new class times

By JAMIE ENGERINGER

Champion Reporter

This semester's class time changes have met with mixed reactions from students and faculty.

The changes, announced by President Dr. Peter Gottfried last semester, were extended Monday/Thursday classes by 10 minutes and Tuesday/Thursday sessions by 10. The change was made in response to a request from the City of Lynchburg for LU to move graduation up a year.

As a result, there has been some consternation that has developed on campus. "It causes chaos," said freshman Joy Fehsenfeld. "Teachers are getting off track constantly trying to determine when class begins or ends."

"I am a very patient person," said psychology professor Martha Gabrielski. "This change makes it difficult to remember when it goes to class. While she is glad the university is able to help out the city of Lynchburg, Gabrielski hopes that this change will not be necessary next year.

In addition, many find the lengthy classes difficult to hear.

"Classes are too long on Tuesdays and Thursdays," sophomore John Mills. "There should be a break during them."

Several students agree. "Since I am a literature, philosophy, religion, history, political and social issues 10% Student and Faculty Discount

The big bang theory really is true, after all

I have New Year’s resolutions. It seems like every year the whole country makes commitments to improve their lives during the first week of January. Feet are put on, diets are started, and New Year’s resolutions are made to become a healthier or a little less, a little more exercise, study more and many others are made.

I don’t think I have ever made any New Year’s resolutions because I know that the first of January has no magical power. The date is not going to change my life, but the Holy Spirit will.

This year, however, was different. Being stuck in my house for most of the holidays due to snow and flooding, gave me the chance to analyze my life and where it was going.

I decided to make some changes so I started a new year, a new semester, the first day of the rest of my life. If realisti-cally I was home, but not with the Holy Spirit’s help, they will never happen.

I was also looking at how to start a new day, so I was on the lookout for advice and help. How to start the next day was not easy for myself or anyone else.

Let’s start with the first day of a new year. New Year’s resolutions are made, but without the Holy Spirit’s help, they will never happen.

We get a lot of advice on how to start the next day, but not for our selves. We get advice from the newspaper, the TV, the radio, the internet, but not for our selves. We get advice from the newspaper, the TV, the radio, the internet, but not for our selves.

Some say to get up early and have a good breakfast. Others say to go to bed early and get up early. Still others say to get up early and have a good breakfast.

Let’s start with the first day of a new year. New Year’s resolutions are made, but without the Holy Spirit’s help, they will never happen.

Sometimes you laugh. Sometimes you cry. Sometimes you’re the one that cries in the morning and people laugh and cry. Either way, for peo-ple who want to change something in their life, they have to start doing it now.

Starting to change something in your life is not easy. It takes a lot of hard work and determination. You have to be willing to change and be willing to see the results.

However, in the end, it is worth it. You will feel better and more confident in yourself.

The best way to change something in your life is to start small. Make a small change in your life and see if it helps. If it does, then make another small change and see if it helps. Continue doing this until you have made the changes you want to make.

Several years ago, we started with small changes, and before we knew it, we had made big changes in our lives.

White wins battle of the guards: Part I

By KERRY RODRIGUEZ

Michael Pretmann pole vaulted 15 feet six inches to take second place. Dan Stanley finished fourth in the 5000m with a time of 15:23.5. The distance medley relay team, made up of Laura Gossell, Kay Chandler, Regina McFarland and Amy Teer, set the school record, finishing fourth with a time of 10:11.2.

According to White, the rivalry became a friendly one after the two players sat down and talked at the Big South awards dinner last March. Instead of trash talk and spite, the two guards have respect for each other.

"It's just pure competition — two guys trying to get on teams going," White said. "Every time I play against him it's like playing against myself. I was just ready to play tonight, and really to get on teams going."

The next time the two guards hook up will be on the Yankees' turf at the Winningham Coliseum in Radford, Va. The rematch promises to be just as intense.

Sharon had pulled her quadriceps muscle and twisted her ankle in the 1st half. "I think the magic number seemed to be 33-33. The senior center scored 19 points, grabbed nine rebounds and swatted away seven Winthrop shots.

The Flames came out early and took the upper hand for 11 minutes of the first half. Aluma put down a two-hand dunk to give the Flames a 4-0 lead with 6:35 remaining in the first half. The Flames built their lead by knocking down a number of shots from the perimeter. Liberty hit nine of 19 shots (47 percent) from three-point land.

Winthrop gained some ground as the first period, but the Lady Bucs found themselves down 70-67 with 2:10 to play after Sharon Willisson landed a three. CSU put the game away on a pair of diamond-cut free throws with 13 ticks left on the clock.

The Lady Flames next take the floor Thursday night at the Vines Center when they will host Radford at 5:15 p.m.

This week the LU women's basketball team will have three R's on its mind: respect, reason and recovery. The team will be taking on UNC Greensboro Thursday and Brown Sunday night at the Vines Center. The Eagles will also go on the road for a doubleheader against Midwestern State University at 7:30 p.m. in Brown. The Eagles will be facing a team that has lost their last four games. The Eagles will be hoping to make a comeback on their homecourt against UNC Greensboro. The Eagles will need to step up their defense and offense to have a successful game against UNC Greensboro. The Eagles are hoping to end their losing streak and build confidence for the upcoming games. The Eagles will need to focus on their weaknesses and improve their skills to have a successful season. The Eagles will need to work hard and stay positive to make a comeback. The Eagles are determined to win and make their fans proud. The Eagles will be looking forward to playing against UNC Greensboro and hope to come out with a win.
