Six-time Champions

By Chris Sappelt, sports editor

Delicious food had more flavor than usual this week. Tents with eye-catching displays were set up throughout the cooler hallways and main corridors signaling the return of Mission Weekend.

Over 50 vendors and about 400 students participated in the World Impact Missions Conference last weekend.

The conference began on Friday night at campus church in the Bulldog Center. Central hype from various countries decreased the stage as the theme of the event was built. Mission Week, John Balmer, introduced the main speaker for the World Impact Missions Conference, John Balmer.

Before the video, Bowers took the podium. His quiet, steady voice filled the Schilling Center as he spoke on why Christians do not witness.

The conference began at Sunday night campus church. Before Bowers spoke an excerpt from his interview with Teresa Dangerman was played. There were some minor technical difficulties that prevented the video portion from being seen.

After the video, Bowers took the podium. His quiet, steady voice filled the Schilling Center as he spoke on why Christians do not witness.

Seminar portrays ‘what if’ scenario

People came from the north and south to this year’s Civil War Seminar to witness the mock trial of Jefferson Davis and Robert E. Lee. Abe Lincoln assumed a scenario in which he had not died.

The trial began on Friday night with the testimony of the prosecution. Lincoln, the day after the trial concluded with the testimonies of Davis and Lee and closed with a happy holiday presented by Lincoln.

Lincoln’s setup was definitely the best part of the whole evening. He was really dynamic. The result was a result of a group of six men with expertise in the Civil War, including Lincoln history professor Dr. Homer Blass and government professor Brian Clowers, who discussed issues such as the historical significance of the trial.

“I thought it was very good. It was different than what I had expected. It was a unique history asking the question: what if? It is different in so many ways, but I would have found it interesting,” said ultrafan Stephanie Eckman.

“We all underestimated the power of the whole evening. It was really powerful,” said. ’If you get a chance to see it, you should definitely see it. It was a great learning experience, and it gave me a greater view of the war.’”

There were no prewritten scripts for the performance. The cast improvised on the run in preparation for the trial.

Prepare for the future at Career Fair 2002

Are you worried about finding a job after college? Do you need to find an internship or a job for the summer? Are you interested in finding work that is related to your major? AFLAC can offer opportunities to students who are majoring in Business, Accounting, or Finance.

There is also the opportunity to make money out of your hobby or interest. Even though you may not be able to make a living from your hobby, you can use this as a way to make some extra money. One of our agents sold over $200,000 in insurance last year. She will be returning for another year because employers want to have the best candidates for the future.

It is extremely important to be prepared for future opportunities. The Career Center will host the Career Fair from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Yates Center.

There will be representatives from 35 national companies including the American Medical Association, the National Safety Council, the Philadelphia Eagles, AFLAC and WSET-TV. These representatives will be looking for students to fill positions in a variety of areas.

To find a complete list of employers go to the Career Fair page on the Career Center’s website.

By Chris Price, columnist

The event does not apply only to graduating seniors or students looking for a permanent position. It is a great place for students to network, make contacts and receive tips for future job hunting. Any student does not know what future employers will be looking for or even where to begin looking for a job. Your own student affairs office will have some of the great job ideas that help you find employment opportunities.

The Career Center is a great resource for students who are looking for internships or jobs in their field.

The Career Center provides a great opportunity for students to gain experience that will give them a competitive edge in the job market.

Yale University and Northwestern University are two of the many schools that are represented can offer job opportunities.

God extinct in an environmental world

The environmentalist’s agenda to preserve and conserve nature is really God’s agenda. Instead, many have other agendas — involving environmental policies and educational programs that assist the environmentalists in their agenda. Without God’s intervention, there is no salvation for the environmentalists. Environmental conservation is not a natural providence. The Bible is full of examples of the sins committed by God’s people. Therefore, such examples are a warning of the consequences of sin.

Animator Chuck Jones dies at age 89

By Rachel Coleman, reporter

Animator Chuck Jones died at age 89 on March 26, 2002. Jones, a legendary figure in the world of animation, was a four-time Academy Award winner who was inducted into the National Film Registry in 1992. He was known for his work with Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Elmer Fudd, and Wile E. Coyote.

Jones was born on March 26, 1912, in Chillicothe, Ohio. He attended the University of Illinois and later moved to Los Angeles to pursue a career in animation. He began his career at Warner Bros. Animation in 1939, where he worked on such iconic characters as Bugs Bunny and Wile E. Coyote.

Jones directed over 100 shorts, many of which featured Bugs Bunny. Some of his most famous works include "What's Opera, Doc?" and "Duck Amuck." He was inducted into the National Film Registry in 1992.

Jones' career spanned over six decades, and he received four Academy Awards, including an Honorary Oscar in 1996. He was also inducted into the InternationalAnimated Film Association's Hall of Fame in 1997.

In 1994, Jones and his daughter Linda opened a museum in Branson, Missouri, featuring works by Jones and other artists. The museum is still open today.

Jones passed away on March 26, 2002, in Beverly Hills, California. He was survived by his wife, Judy, and their daughter, Linda. A memorial service was held at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City.

Jones was a pioneer in the field of animation, and his work has inspired generations of artists. He will be remembered for his humor, creativity, and his dedication to his craft.
Lynchburg couple headed to orphanage to originate in Uganda

By Rhonda Benbow, reporter

A local Lynchburg couple, James and Marilyn Conley, have decided to embark on a new mission to an orphanage in Uganda. Their goal is to share the Gospel and the promise of peace to the children who live there.

"We are committed to helping the children in Uganda," said Conley. "We have been praying about this for a long time, and we feel that it is time to take action.

Conley is a minister at the Lynchburg Public Library and has been involved in several mission trips over the years. She said that she and her husband, who are both members of the Lynchburg Community Church, have been praying about this trip for some time.

The Conley's are part of a small group of volunteers who will be working at the orphanage, sharing the Gospel and praying for the children.

The children at the orphanage are in need of medical and nutritional care, as well as educational opportunities. The Conley's hope to bring some relief to the children by providing them with basic necessities.

"We want to bring hope and love to these children," said Conley. "We believe that the Gospel can make a difference in their lives.

The Conley's are looking for donations to help finance their trip, as well as prayer support.

"We believe that prayer is just as important as financial support," said Conley. "We have been praying for the children and their families for some time, and we believe that God will provide for us.

Lynchburg: Famous for the Exceptional

By Richard Renick, reporter

One of Lynchburg's longest-standing icons is the Incredible Hulk. It is a symbol of strength, courage, and determination.

But what about the rest of the Lynchburg community? It may surprise you, but Lynchburg has hosted several of the most influential people in the past.

Anne Spencer (1882-1976), an important member of the Lynchburg community, was born in Lynchburg. Parents of Liberty seniors are filling up fast for graduation.

By Laurie Williams, reporter

As graduation season approaches, Liberty High School is gearing up for a memorable send-off for its seniors. The school has made arrangements to accommodate the large number of graduating seniors.

"We want to make graduation a special occasion for our seniors," said principal Randy Wallace. "We have worked hard to make sure that our seniors feel celebrated and appreciated.

The school has made efforts to ensure that all students feel welcome and included during graduation. The school has organized different events and activities to make graduation a memorable experience for everyone.

"We want our seniors to feel loved and appreciated," said Wallace. "We believe that graduation is a significant milestone in their lives, and we want to make sure that they feel celebrated.

This year's graduation ceremony will be held on the school's main campus. The ceremony will begin at 7:00 PM on Friday, May 3.

Lady Flames capture sixth straight BS crown

Lady Flames head coach, Allen Henderson, was proud of his team’s performance, saying, “The winning was impressive, especially in the second half. Our defense was magnificent.”

The Lady Flames took the lead early in the game, starting with a basket from Kelly’s Magic Tanning Salon at 11:15. The Flames continued to build their lead, ending the first half with a 61-44 score. The second half was a back-and-forth battle, with both teams closely matched. However, the Lady Flames maintained their lead, securing their victory with a final score of 93-74.

With this win, the Lady Flames secured their sixth straight trip to the NCAA tournament, which begins next week. They will face a tough challenge, as they have not made it past the first round in recent years. However, the Lady Flames are confident in their ability to make a deep run in the tournament.

The Flames will play a game on Friday March 8 and a doubleheader March 9.

On Thursday the Flames defeated Pfeiffer 9-4 in Lynchburg. Nick Forte (1-0) picked up his first win for the Flames. Record-averager Larry Werner took the loss. For the Flames with their three runs in the first run of the season.

On Tuesday the Flames beat James Madison 6-4 in Harrisonburg. Flames starting pitcher, Alex Dooley..." The second period would turn out to be the deciding period of the game. The Flames, with the butter..." The Flames won 14-8 in the first game and will play 8-5.
The Lady Flames captured their sixth consecutive Big South title last week in Roanoke, Va., by defeating UNC-Asheville, Charleston Southern and Coastal Carolina.

The Lady Flames will now go to the NCAA tournament, to play a yet-to-be determined opponent. The men’s team gave Winthrop, the eventual tournament champions, a scare in the opening round before falling to the Eagles, 66-59.

College basketball season winding down and the NCAA tournament just around the corner. The brackets have been released and the fans are buzzing about who will win it all. Here are some of the top Final Four candidates.

My favorite candidate to make it to the Final Four would have to be Kansas. The Jayhawks are ranked No. 1 in the major polls and it's easy to see why. Kansas is the only team in the nation to win all four of its conference games. In the first round of the NCAA tournament, they played Ball State, who has most tournament tradition in recent years, they struggle than anyone—UCLA.

My second candidate is UCLA on the other hand has as much talent as anybody and although they've struggled this year, they're a wild card that many have overlooked. UCLA with Jeff Boschee and Kirk Hinrich at the guards and Drew Gooden, Nick Collison In the frontcourt, they're hitting from the outside and the Blue Devils have played pretty well this season have come to Ball State and UCLA. Although Ball State is a good team, that loss, which came in their last game of the season may have been a fluke. UCLA on the other hand has as much talent as anybody and although they've struggled this year, they're a wild card that many have overlooked.

Thirdly, I also like Duke as a possible Final Four team. With the exception of FSU and Maryland but they're a team that can make a run this season. However, they have been outplayed by some of the top teams in the country. One thing that Duke has going for them is they're hitting from the outside and their three-point shots are hot right now.

The next team I would like to mention is the Bearcats. They have been hitting three-point shots at an unusually high rate, which is a bad sign for any team. The Bearcats have some glaring weaknesses, but they're a quick team and the best defensive team in the nation. They're a grind-it-out team and they're strong defense will be hard for any team to score against. They're also a team that will be tough to stop.

Those are some of the top candidates, but there are other teams that can make a run in the tournament. The Bears, the Terps, and the Gophers have some potential, but the Bearcats have been the most consistent and they've been hitting three-point shots at a high rate.
