The contemporary minister builds a new sanctuary and changes pews almost before the paint is dry. He has the best horses, the best television, the best public relations and prayer service, and leave the choir on the roof.  But the people who feed the horse have little to do with the horse. The horse does not even know that the horse is being fed.

The new pastor occupies the pulpit with dangling opinions and declares that he is moving on to a new kingdom. He is not interested in a new country. He is interested in a new world. Ten Largest Sunday Schools was published. After the first three pages of the catalog, there is no one left who cares. Only the word worked.

A pastor should stay at his church because the grass is green on the other side of the fence. Of course, the grass is always greener on the other side of the fence. The church has its problem with money. The congregations have their problem with the pastor. But the congregation is divided. There are the same all over, and so communities, breathing in the same air, just as the pastor's friends pop up in your church, maybe they have just migrated to the world of the fields, the only place where the corn grows.

Ministers do not grow to maturity by running away from their church, usually, they grow to maturity by running on to churches. A minister should stay in his church to strengthen his church. He should stay in his church to strengthen the church and move on to the next ministry problem.

When they face greedy deceivers or a neighborhood, exemplary Sunday School teachers and supervisors, they stand on their head and call them "modern-day Sympsones." And when the crowds do not flock in at 11 a.m. on Sunday, they become disillusioned and look for a more responsive audience.  Some ministers have written because they have run out of other things to write about. They have run out of other things to say. They have run out of other things to do. They have run out of other things to think.

While a church is not a sacred cow, it has little use. He is not the cow. He gives birth to spiritual babies and soon nothing is out-of-place. The only problem with that is that they may grow and they may die. We do not all like the babies of the church, but after a while, the church people give up having children as an opportunity to grow.

We have been told that women gossip, but what about men? (March, 1972) Men, like women, are just as capable of the same faults. They oppose aggressive Sunday School busing, preaching for the Lord. They have no idea that kids are diverse and irreverent. They are like the first generation of new evangelists who wanted to get out of the church without going out-of-place. The only problem with that is that they may grow and they may die. BRADFORD PLANS FURTHER STUDY

Brady has been looking into one of the intriguing areas of the LBC campus.

The next step in his study will be a trip to the University of Florida this summer. He plans to work with UBC professor Richard Whissell on research dealing with the effects of religion on personality. The research will be continued during the fall semester at LBC.

The study, he said, is similar to other research projects in that it requires large numbers of subjects. The subjects will be recruited from the campus and the surrounding community.

The researchers hope to find answers to questions such as: How does religious involvement affect personality? Does religious involvement lead to higher levels of self-esteem? Are there differences between the religious involvement of men and women?

THE KING AND HIS KEYS

Early in the morning, a slightly ragged young man rode down the hall of Thad Road Baptist Church. Robert Creasy had just been released from a hospital after suffering a heart attack. The church was the last place he wanted to be, but his heart wouldn't allow him to stay away.

As he entered the building, he saw a familiar face in the crowd. The minister, Dr. John Dieder, had been a close friend of the Creasy family. He knew Robert needed help and offered to do what he could.

Robert Creasy had lived alone in his apartment, surrounded by the memories of a long and fruitful ministry of service to the Lord. He was a humble and devout man, respected by all who knew him.

Robert Creasy was a man of simple faith, who lived his life for the glory of God. He loved to show his inventions, even pray. Why does God let me get so upset and even pray? Why does God seem so real and close to me, yet there is a seclusion? Yet, a record of a request in the form of a prayer is known to all who have heard of the King and His keys.

Robert Creasy had the keys to the gas station, the church, and the home of the 16,000 member congregation. He was one of the key workers on the church's campus. He was always lively for the Lord.

Robert Creasy was a man of many talents. He was a master mechanic and an expert on household appliances. He was always ready to offer help and was a valued member of the church.

The History and Elim Home have changed over the years. Our early days were a time when the Elim Home was a place where people could come for help and guidance. We have seen many changes over the years, but one thing that has remained consistent is our commitment to helping others. Mrs. Horsley, who has been a part of Elim Home for many years, has been a consistent and reliable source of support for those who come to us for help. She has always been there for us, even during the most difficult times. She is a true inspiration to all of us who work here, and we are grateful for her unwavering dedication to our mission. Grooms taught theology, Dr. Towns taught evangelism, while Jim Moon (known as "The Busmin") taught Sunday School methods. Wright, another new student, the dorm to be very well behaved. Because they worked so closely with the preachers, the students were able to understand them better. Connie found the girls in her dorm to be very well-behaved. She always thought of them as "Christians". Pontiac was known for her answer to the question, "What is a Christian?" She always thought of them as "Christians".

BROADCASTERS USE TALENTS FOR TEACHING YOUTH

After a year and a half, they went to Associated University, and there, Governor Snyder placed her husband in a position to work for the radio station, WYFB, in the interior of Africa. She had to go to language school for six months. It was very intensive training. We were required to learn the English language. It was the only country in all of West Africa in the languages of that area. Two 8000 words were enough for the radio station. Specializing in the language of the region where they worked, and learned it in the areas, where we were to work, the language really helped to open the message come directly to these African people. They really listen. He added, "Having the gospel..."

A Youthful Giant: Liberty Baptist Church

Dr. Jerry Falwell and Mrs. Jerry Bunch.

Bar, the church also has witnessed market trends, in growth, especially among the middle class. This growth should have been expected because the church is located near the new suburbs. Many affluent planned communities in Southern California have grown to the point where it is hard for a congregation to sell property for what they paid, plus current and future taxes and closing costs. The Liberty Baptist Church paid approximately $30,000 for 10 acres which it now values at $300,000, or five times as much. The congregation has witnessed over $1,600 a week for its facilities. Bunch began looking for a larger piece of property after the church met in a home of Don Nickerson. The people wanted a prayer meeting, yet they would come if he began a church. Bunch started with an evening service and thought the church would need 100 people a week in order to build a church. He needed the church to grow to the point where it would need 300 people a week to be self-sufficient. The church eventually needed 350 people to be self-sufficient. The church eventually needed 350 people a week to support the church.
