Bream, alumni help recruit new students

BY PAMELA WALK AND BEN LAFROMBROS

The Liberty recruiting department has rallied the help of LU graduates and Atlanta Braves first baseman Sid Bream, alumni and pastors in the recruitment of potential students. According to Jay Spencer, associate vice president for admissions, the program will use the high profile of Bream to market a $4,000 scholarship to be awarded to high school seniors, beginning with the 1993-94 school year. Spencer said, "Sid Bream attended Liberty in the early 1980s and was an excellent student." He added, "We felt that it would make the program more successful.

The program is based on the concept that LU alumni and pastors nominating high school seniors for the scholarships. All scholarships nominating must fulfill LU enrollment requirements.

"This is an excellent scholarship for someone interested in coming to Liberty," McCray said. "How many parents would like to have your student accept a scholarship, like the Somalis were not just targets for evangelism. They were people."
Clean-Up Day proposes that "a fall/spring clean-up day in the past, and it was a good, respectable appearance of campus." Senator Thursday, Feb. 11. The campus clean was passed by the student senate.

The Resolution for Fall/Spring Campus Clean-up Day proposes that "a fall/spring clean-up day."

The Resolution in past years, we've had as high as 500-600 students participating in the clean-up day. According to Babcock, graduates in human ecology can expect success in the job market. "People are less familiar with careers in this area, but there are a lot of career openings. Students that are very creative are usually to be found in fashion merchandising and interior design professions. Our graduates have done well in finding excellent positions."

Other popular elective courses are: HUEC 201, family and the ecosystem; HUEC 261, management; and HUEC 373, parenting.

Music professor holds recital

By JOANNA TEDDER

Dr. Samuel Wellman, assistant professor of music at LU, presented a pro­gramatic recital last Friday evening, fea­tur ing an original composition entitled "Demented Dances, Op. 47." In addition, Wellman also performed several contemporary pieces in addition to classical works from groups such as Bach, Beethoven and Brahms.

"Demented Dances, Op. 47," a piece the title of which is a jumble of letters, is an example of Wellman's musical attempts at contemporary music. Wellman, who began play­ing piano when he was seven years old, admits that though practice is important, he does not like to spend long hours at the piano.

"I love to practice long hours but I love to play," he said. "There is more to giving a recital than just practicing on the piano." Wellman came to LU in September 1992. Before he began teaching at LU, he taught piano theory at the music school for four years at Warner Southern College in Lake Wales, Fla. He received a bachelor's degree in music education from Lee Royce College and earned his master's degree in music and a doctorate in composition from Florida State University.

Although he has gained his doctorate, Wellman considers his family to be his most important achievement. Wellman has two children, Melissa, 16, and Chris, 13. Stack graduated cum laude from Charleston Southern University and then from Southwestern Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas. He earned a master's degree in music and doctorate of ministry degrees from Luther Rice Seminary in Jacksonville, Fla.

Dr. Samuel Wellman, LU piano professor, concentrates on the keyboard during his concert on Friday, Feb. 12. Wellman has had 39 original musical pieces published during his career as a composer.

Selah offers journalism job experience

Selah, the school yearbook, is looking for students to fill several editorial positions including: associate editor, graphics and layout editor, assistant copy editor and assistant photography editor. Applications are now being accepted. Scholarships are available for the editorial staff, with editors receiving nine credit hours and assistant edi­tioners, six.

Students working to serve as editors should have experience working with a yearbook or similar publica­tion, leadership qualities and a writ­ing attitude.

"They have to be willing to help do everything," Jennifer Strandfeld, editor in chief, said. "A willingness to help is one of the most important things." Strandfeld explained that each posi­tion is responsible for certain duties but must be willing and able to help others when necessary.

"There are three different areas involved with the yearbook: design, layout and photography," Dr. Albert Snyder, faculty advisor, explained. "The photography department is the area provid­ing the most work." Selah wants to retain that photography used will be taken, developed and placed on the pages.

The yearbook photographs include: sports, feature stories, group portraits and candid shots. In addition, the graphics and layout aspect is a integral part of the yearly publication. The yearbook editors must remain centered around a specific theme. "It's a real creative challenge," Snyder said.

In addition to editorial positions, Selah is also recruiting writers and photographers. All staff members can receive free course credit for their work, or they can simply volunteer their time and talents. According to Strandfeld, the yearbook is a fun, social activity that provides a great opportunity in gain­ing leadership skills and still is a journalism career.

"This (yearbook) gives students great practical experience to help them in the future. When someone graduates, he needs practical experience or he's kind of got to get a job," Snyder said.

In addition, the yearbook is look­ing for modern students interested in organizing people for promotional and fund-raising purposes as well. "It's a great leadership experience. You learn how to deal with people," Strandfeld said.

Any student interested can obtain an application in the Selah office located in TE 110 or attend a special meeting for potential editors on Wednesday, Feb. 24, at 3:30 p.m. in 115.

America, as you may have noticed, is obsessed with rights. Rights, rights, rights. Well, we've got another one to add to that list.

Chalk it up: We're endowed with an unalienable right - to watch cable TV. Why? Because George Bush signed the Cable Act of 1992, which gave us the right to control the channel line-up on our TVs. In other words, if you don't like what's on, you can turn it off. No muss, no fuss. And if you do like it, you can watch it for as long as you want.

But it's not just the proponents of the 1992 Cable Bill who view TV as an unalienable right. The religious right is also a strong advocate of this right. They argue that the Bible says, "Thou shalt not covet," which means we have a right to watch cable TV. And if you don't agree with them, you're just not living the Christian life.

But what about the rest of us? What if we don't want to watch cable TV? What if we want to turn it off and watch something else? Well, unfortunately, that's not an option. The media has portrayed this as a "right to be entertained," but it's really just a mandate from the government.

So what can we do? One thing is to contact your state council members and let them know how you feel. Another is to vote in the next election for candidates who support your right to watch cable TV.

But in the meantime, remember that your right to watch cable TV is not absolute. It's subject to the laws of the land and the restrictions of the channel line-up. So use it wisely and enjoy it while you can.

Weddings require attention to detail

By LISA McMONIGLE

Weddings require attention to detail, and the major concerns covered by every bridal magazine include invitations, flowers, caterers and honeymoon arrangements.

INVITATIONS

Invitations are very personal and unique to each couple. When choosing an invitation style, it is important to choose the theme and possibly the color scheme of the wedding. Packages usually include invitations, RSVP cards, thank you cards and announcements.

For this wedding, the couple will order a custom wedding invitation. The invitation is a great way to set the tone for the wedding, and it is an opportunity for the couple to express their individuality.

CHINESE RESTAURANT PROVIDES DELICIOUS ALTERNATIVE

One of the city's best Chinese restaurants is located on South King Street. This restaurant offers a delightful fare of authentic Chinese cuisine.

For this wedding, the couple will consider a Chinese restaurant for the wedding reception. This will not only provide a unique and authentic meal for the guests, but it will also give the couple an opportunity to celebrate their heritage.

THE SATISFACTION GUARANTEE

The Sunday buffet offers the ideal foods for the bride's and groom's wedding meal. The buffet has a wide variety of food to please the guests and accommodate different dietary needs.

The best item on the buffet was the sliced pork tenderloin in a light lemon glaze. Another item was the beef with green peppers. It consisted of thin slices of beef, highlighted with a teriyaki sauce. The buffet has six different entrees, and the guests can choose from these options.

The key to packing intelligently is determining the amount of food needed for the wedding. The couple will need to order the food in advance to ensure that it is delivered on time.

For this wedding, the couple will order food from a Chinese restaurant. This will not only provide a unique and authentic meal for the guests, but it will also give the couple an opportunity to celebrate their heritage.
Robert DeLong spends time at the control room for LUSLLL's video production which has produced over 5,000 hours of tape since it began in 1985.

By REBEKAH HURST

DeLong is both a full-time counselor and a psychology professor at LUSLLL.

In the control room, DeLong watches and edits a video for LUSLLL's LifeLong Learning program. He also supervises the video recording of seminars and classes.

The video production is crucial to the program's success, allowing LUSLLL to reach a wide audience.

A number of courses are recorded each semester, including seminars on marriage, parenting, and personal growth.

The video productions are stored on tape and then distributed to various locations, such as churches and community centers.

The process of video production involves planning, recording, and editing. The videos are then made available for viewing at a later time.

DeLong credits much of his work to the support of his family and friends. His wife and children are a source of inspiration and motivation for him.

The videos are an important tool for reaching people who may not be able to attend classes in person.

By REBEKAH HURST

DeLong's work at LUSLLL is not limited to video production. He is also a full-time psychology professor, teaching courses on topics such as marriage and family counseling.

DeLong's passion for helping others is evident in his work at LUSLLL and in his personal life. He is married and has two children.

The videos produced by DeLong and his team are a testament to the impact that education and counseling can have on people's lives.

Towson did a really good job with containment. We feel like we went through a little metamorphosis tonight. We helped to raise the confidence of an offense and defensive plays at the same time. We were a little flat tonight. We came out with a bang, but that's our nature of our team. We've been frustrated when we excel at a higher level." Haber said.

The win dropped LU's overall record to 8-10. It was the first win for the Flames in total points scored this season. Included in the four points were the Golden Bears. The other Shipwreck was held to 16 points on 18 of 39 attempts over Steve Black, 8-2.

The Flames wrestling team lost to Towson State University on Thursday night. On Saturday, the Flames lost to the University of Maryland-Baltimore County, 64-56. Earlier in the week, LU won its fifth and final dual meet of the season against North Carolina at the 167 pound weight class; Scott Torrance again led the LU brand scored 19. It was a weekend of milestones for Virginia Tech. Liberty swept the Hokies by scores of 28-22 and Shippensburg 26-18 on the Bloomsburg, Pa., meet.

When NBC decided it didn’t see one commercial during the Super Bowl the previous Sunday to play a hockey game, some more than five or more spots promoting the network’s new show titled "Homicide." What a joke!

And then, to make matters worse, the network went to a networkwide blackout after the game was "lost." Hockey doesn’t make any more sense right now than it re­cently did, and the final decision to go was being on. So, to summarize the NHL’s entire Hockey League in America, How about the opening of another season with two teams before it has a chance to plug in the home losses. Like I said it is a "Ladies First" spot since non-existent.

Besides, a recent USA TODAY study shows that baseball and basketball have more than twice as many fans as hockey. Strange, huh?

Boxing's ranking system provides checks and balances

Boxing is a sport unlike any other, and few other professional sports are as controversial as boxing. There are three major ranking organizations and numerous lesser-known organizations. This causes a great deal of confusion for the fans who regularly watch boxing. In the space of one week two or three different champions and rankings of those champions can be generated. It is for this reason that boxing would definitely clear things up for the fans.

A reorganization of boxing would also provide a clear champion and would be used to provide the best opportunities for the best boxers to fight each other. Wherever one is in the running for a championship ranking, it is best to check with the organization's official list of their rating system. This would dispel fights by rating groups like to disagree with each other or else there is no clear-cut champion.

A reorganized system of boxing would prevent the number one champ from being a single world-wide ranking system. The game will once again be respected if people do not feel it is being manipulated. It would be in the best interest of boxing to establish a single world-wide ranking system for a unification of its three federations and to regain its popularity, it needs to go to a single world-wide ranking system.

In a unified boxing ranking system, almost all of the organizations recognize the three major organizations. This causes a great deal of confusion for the fans who regularly watch boxing. NHL needs improvement

By BRIAN SPERLING

Since Gary Bettman took over as commissioner of the National Hockey League last year, there have been many criticisms about the officiating and the game in general for the good of the game.

However, anyone who watched the All-Star Game would have to say that we have seen more action on the ice than we have in a long time. The players showed up, and the NHL needs improvement.

Coach: Bob Johnson, the recipient of a personal foul, thinks that the officials need to be more lenient in the game because of the new rules. Johnson was hit in the face with the puck.

Jordi comes away clean

Jordi comes away clean.

I'm sorry, no players deserve that much leniency. Being a fan of both players, I find it hard to believe that Jordan got off clean, and to this little stunt I give him and the official the "cake-eater" award.

The Bulls won just like the series.

The Patrick is the only division in the Smythe which needs to be addressed by the GM.

The Bulls will be a difficult task as the Blackawks were able to get the win.

The Smythe is clumped like the Patrick, and the Bulls are moving up players from all over.

The number-one starting pitcher has signed a number of pitchers, and the team has improved in the pitching staff behind Doc Gooden and Bret Saberhagen.

This season the Flames hope to regain the form which won the team 32 games two seasons ago. LU is counting on Kris Morton to return to his 1991 pitching form when he won five games and was undefeated. He could be the ace of the staff after missing last year with a shoulder injury.

Team goal: to train recruits, stay healthy

By WENDI GIBBS
Champion Reporter

To train recruits, stay healthy, this season the Flames will need to be working with them a little more. Richard Humphrey and Kris Morton on the returning starting pitchers. Humphrey said that there will be tremendous pressure on these two hurlers in the beginning of the season. Left-handed pitcher Rob Eagle will be available as a relief pitcher.

"Humphrey and Morton will have to carry the pitching," Humphrey said. "We have some proven Division I talent, so I know that we are going to be able to score some runs."

With only two returning starting pitchers, however, Humphrey admits the team will be focusing a lot of time on finding the new recruits.

"We have five freshmen pitchers who we will be working with to get them ready as soon as possible," Humphrey said. "They were all good players in high school, but as they have had no college experience, we will need to be working with them a little more."

Kris Morton
Head Coach

Morton returns for his junior campaign to help guide the Flames’ starting pitching staff. Morton was injured last winter and sat out the entire season while the team struggled without him. His freshman season he was 5-0 with a 3.12 ERA. He also led the team with 52 strikeouts and also pitched two complete games.

The Coaches

He is a lefty pitcher with a good fastball and curve.

Sheldon Bream
Assistant Coach

Bream returns for his senior year after batting .384 in 31 games last season. This year he will be counted on to supply punch in the Flames’ lineup and lead the team in home runs and power hitters. Last season he knocked in 44 runs and scored 21. He only struck out 13 times in 112 at bats and finished with a .437 slugging percentage and .465 on-base percentage. He also played solid defense at first base.

Johnny Hunton
Head Coach

Hunton returns after a disappointing season in which he broke his leg after playing in 23 games. At the time of his injury, he was leading the team with a .414 batting average and tallied 23 RBIs in as many games. He also stumped five homers and stole five bases. This season he will be counted on to help produce runs in the lineup as he experienced limited action last year. He had a .713 slugging percentage.

Beau Martin
Assistant Coach
