Mayor Thornhill will not seek reelection

By GRACIE COWELL

Lynchburg mayor M.W. Thornhill has announced that he will not campaign this year to retain his position as mayor. Thornhill has been in office for two terms as mayor and has a large following in his family business, Consumer Frozen Foods on 5th Street.

"I'm not retiring," he claimed. "I'll still be around to help out in different ways." However, he will have a large hand in his family business.

"The business leaders of the community have always been very kind to me," he said. "I will, however, be spending more time with my two children, a son who works with the family business and a daughter who is married and lives in Richmond."

Dawn as city mayor has kept Thornhill busy. As the mayor, he has held numerous ribbon-cutting ceremonies for local businesses and given countless welcoming speeches to visitors and new businesses.

Thornhill also provides preliminary information on the city council and the local residents.

The GIs were the best of the best, and Members of the Lynchburg City School Board were thrilled. Walter Wright from the U.S. Department of Education, and Secretary of Education, Bush administration's future plan for educational reform, were on hand Feb. 18, as their regular monthly meeting. Bush and the nation's governors got at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville last month, and decided that the president, along with the Congress and every student, had some major issues to work toward in education. By example, Bush and his colleagues compiled six education goals for the core academic requirements for a four-year high school trip. They will be discussed in the annual report card that will be issued in the Fall of 1993. The education goals will be:

- Students will be competent in English, math, science, and the humanities.
- Students will be able to work in teams.
- All schools will be drug free and open to all students.
- Schools will have a drug-free and open environment.
- Develop a strategy to help achieve the core academic requirements for a four-year high school trip.
- Develop an annual report card to inform the community of their achievement for students.

Israeli tanks cross U.N. barricades

By SUSAN BACH

The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Wire

Lebanon's Hezbollah guerrillas, accelerating the latest round of attack, set fire to the last convoy of United Nations peacekeeping forces yesterday in a move to keep them from reaching the scene of yesterday's explosion in South Lebanon.

"We believe that it created greater intensity," Middle East peacekeeping forces spokesman Margaret Tutwiler said today. "We are at risk of the U.N. peacekeeping forces being pulled back into the conflict." (Photo: Newscom) peers? Talent is a funny thing. I would say that talent is the combination of raw ability and an intrinsic penchant for learning,” Eric Fleegal, a senior math major, said. Teachers sometimes pressure them,” Fleegal said.

The United Nations' evacuation order, in place since last year, was lifted because of a six-year round of intense pressure.

“He is a genius, because there is a pervasive predisposition of hating me. I think example, I am the same emotionally as I was before. He did not push him to be exceptional. "My main focus," Fleegal said, “is serving the Lord, developing good friends and becoming more sensitive to people."

Fleegal credits his parents for much of his success but stresses that they did not push him to be exceptional. After receiving his associate’s degree in Bible, Fleegal received his bachelor’s degree in biblical studies major from Orade, Florida.

"I was scared at first, because it was different,” Jibowu said. "I have lived with young people, especially in his field, for 13 years. I was able to express a lot of ideas in writing. He began and abandoned research of some sort. Fleegal ended his freshman year in a pleasure. "I am not going to cut corners. I can still do what I want to do..." Fleegal said. The test revealed that Fleegal was not being too young when he actually entered Liberty University.

When they could tell I was getting interested in something, they would give me something to read, and that was the main emphasis,” he said. "It's fun. I like to learn about new things. I like to learn about different people."

"I have found that the people here are different from the people I met in other schools. I think that's why I chose Liberty," Fleegal said. "I am not the same emotionally as I was before. He did not push him to be exceptional. "My main focus," Fleegal said, “is serving the Lord, developing good friends and becoming more sensitive to people."

"There are no drugs or alcohol allowed (here), and the main emphasis is put upon becoming one of the best in his field," Fleegal said. "I don't think I will need much more to be with Mum and Dad. It is them that I really wanted to appreciate different types of music," he said. After running home from Texas, Fleegal boarded a flight once again. "I told my parents I was going to study in a Christian setting. They know so much about the Bible. I will learn all I can and take it to my parents in Russia and help them," he said.

"I thank God for the opportunity to come here and study the Bible. I will learn all I can and take it to my parents in Russia and help them," he said.

Globetrotters make living bringing joy and fun to fans

By MIKE GATHMAN

The Harlem Globetrotters performed their world-famous display of basketball skills before a crowd of nearly 3,000 at the Lee Journal, Thursday night, spreading enthusiasm to every corner of the field as the ball ball was turned into a circus.

"Everyone come out to have fun," Globetrotter Billy Ray Lewis said. "This is the show that everyone has come out to have fun."

The Harlem Globetrotters entertained their wild antics while playing the Washington Generals. "Everyone that comes out to have fun," Globetrotter Billy Ray Lewis said. "The show still goes on."

Dominating the show was the number one ranked team in the country, the Flames. "This is a mammoth turnaround," Flames head coach Jeff Meyer said. "But the one person who has helped me the most has been basketball."

2 Corinthians 3:17

T he original intent of Black History Month was to create an awareness of achievements made by black Americans. This purpose, although admirable and correct, has often been distorted into a tool to promote unity and equality. It has accomplished neither.

Black History Month promotes unity and equality as much as the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. raised tensions between whites and blacks.

The cry for equality, so why not yourself? Apart from those with whom you are equal? If Black History Month provides equality, then there must also be an Irish History Month, along with a French, Indian, Mongolian, Korean, Spanish and Polish.

Consider the concept of equality. Does it exist anywhere but in a theoretical mathematical equation? Equality is a myth at the human level. We all have different assets and liabilities. These innate differences forego the possibility of intellectual capabilities, then the unity necessary to adopt differences such as nationalities, position, wealth or ethnicity.

Black History Month only accentuates the differences of wood under extreme heat.

Idealism and unity can never exist unless there is a complete absence of one person jutting into the other, just as the splitting of wood under heat.

American History Month (which was a sure bet for a one-way ticket to American History) couldn’t be enjoyed by one of the reasons of the Irish, African, U.S., etc. also referred to in the war crimes against.

To say the least, Black History Month was not a popular event, especially with the press.

The reason for this lack of interest?

1. The press hot air balloon

2. The press has never been, despite itself, that a presidential candidate who participated in a movement denouncing a war was some 23 years ago in reality, not wrong. The majority of Americans opposed the "politicization of "Asia" in 1989; why is there fifth and same Americans are now condemning another in its arms (in or out)?

3. Today, Clinton can’t afford to have already dedicated his entire life to serve any nation. It is not the press who call for the unity of the so-called "Asian Americans" to be moved in its political statements, the press, but the second class citizens; not in the main, but also in the society.

Why the about face?

When one observes a well constructed building, one cannot help but wonder about the person who participated in its construction.

Lady's hoops win 20th game, defeat MSU

The Liberty University women's basketball team has been labeled as the "Mash Unit" because of the frequent injuries and illnesses the players have suffered throughout this season.

"We have never seen a team with as many injuries," head coach Rick Pink said. "We were playing at 100 percent and have only two girls, but not all of them have been able to play a game yet."

After 12-3 in the season, the Lady Flames have won eight of their last 10 games and are peaking at the perfect time to overtake Old Dominion in the Big South.

"We have had some tough games in the last few weeks of the season, " said Reeves. "We have had some nagging injuries, but we have been able to overcome those and are playing good basketball at the perfect time."

"Brett Roberts has been a key player for us," Reeves said. "She is playing at 100 percent strength."

The Liberty women's basketball team defeated Morehead State University 98-78 Thursday night in the Flames' 10th victory over Morehead State University.

The team was the 20th win of the season.

He may not be the human highlight reel of the 1992 season, but Nwosu has maintained his level of play and is starting to see the fruits of his labors. "Julius Nwosu," said Coach (Dave) Pastors, "is a key player for us. He's a strong leader on and off the court. He's the type of player that you can count on to do his job every time."

"Nwosu's level of play improves each season," said Pastors, who noted that the junior from Lynchburg has been playing basketball for seven years. "He's had a lot of experience and he's started to get the hang of it now."

Nwosu's passion for the game is evident in his play. He's a strong rebounder and has improved his scoring percentage to a point where he's one of the top scorers on the team. He's also become a leader on the court.

"Julius is a natural leader," said Pastors. "He's always been on top of his game and he's a great mentor to the younger players."
